COMMITTEE UPHOLDS SENATE RIGHT TO ALL NAVAL TREATY DATA

Foreign Relations Group Reiterates Views to Hoover.

PRESIDENT'S ANSWER ANTICIPATED AT ONCE

Efforts Fail to Soften Text of Dissension Resolution.

STIMSON BROADSIDE HITS CRITICS OF PACT

Fleet Officers and Press Draw Ire of Secretary in Radio Talk.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

After a spirited discussion yesterday the Senate foreign relations committee adopted a resolution expressing dissent from President Hoover's action in refusing to transmit secret documents connected with the London naval treaty. The vote was 10 to 7 and the resolution was sent to President Hoover and Secretary Stimson.

It is now anticipated that the President will reply without delay and the committee will meet today and continue its consideration of the pact while awaiting word from the White House. What action the committee will take in case the President ignores the resolution has not been decided, though several members of the committee assert that it is obviously impossible now for the Senate to retreat from its position without abandoning its constitutional function as a copartner with the Executive in the making of treaties. A serious move will unquestionably be made to discontinue consideration of the treaty until the desired information is forthcoming, if the President pays no attention to the resolution. But the opinion is general that Mr. Hoover will reply.

The discussion in committee concerned the language of the resolution, which some senators regarded as too drastic and designed to be viewed as a censure of Secretary Stimson's position. But efforts to soften the language failed and the vote on the resolution, originally proposed by Senator Black and redrafted without substantial change, was as follows:

For the resolution—Borah, Johnson, Moses, La Follette, Robinson, of Indiana; Swanson, Black, Pittman, Wagner and Shipstead.

Against the resolution—Capper, Gillette, Reed, Fess, Vandenberg, Harrison and George.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, who was one of the delegates, was absent, as were Senator Walsh, of Montana, and Senator Goff.

"I don't see how the committee, in view of the action we have taken, can go ahead without all the facts," said Senator Shipstead. "Secret diplomacy is a dangerous doctrine which we thought had been discarded."

Stimson to Be Consulted.

Secretary Stimson will be consulted by the President before a reply is made to the committee. That Mr. Stimson is in a fighting mood and ready to fire back without reserve at the Senate, if the President will permit him to do so, is indicated by a speech which Mr. Stimson made over the radio last evening.

A feature of Mr. Stimson's speech was the scorching attack made on naval officers as a class, but with an exception made of Admiral William V. Pratt, who proved the only ranking line officer willing to indorse naval provisions of the treaty.

Criticism by Stimson.

"The critics," Secretary Stimson said, "are naval officers—fighting men. They are handicapped by a kind of training which tends to make them think of war as the only possible defense against war. It is not their function to consider the preventative measures of international relations which are intended to make war less likely. They do not weigh the factor of international good will or rightly evaluate machinery which will prevent war by substituting other remedies for settlement of disputes between nations. They are thus likely to be blindfolded to one-half of the horizon—a very important half."

Mr. Stimson appeals for action without delay on the treaty. If ratification should be postponed, he says, "there will be projected into every senatorial contest the bitter efforts of a single group of newspapers which is now devoting itself to the defeat of the treaty.

"These efforts do not now and

Text of Stimson Address On London Naval Pact

Following is the text of a radio address delivered last night by Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of State:

For over a year the work of the State Department of the United States has been very largely directed towards carrying out the movement initiated by President Hoover looking towards a treaty of general naval limitation. This movement has just culminated in the London naval treaty of 1930, and that treaty is now pending before the Governments of the United States, Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy for ratification. To understand the issues which are thus presented to the peoples of these countries, it is necessary to survey the background and history out of which this movement and this treaty have arisen.

The causes of this movement date back to the great war. When the war ended, the United States was finishing a great Navy which had been authorized in order to place America in a position to defend itself against the possible attacks of German militarism if that force should succeed in dominating Europe. The British nation had likewise a large navy which had been increased by the necessities of the war. The Japanese navy had also been affected by the situation before and during the war. After the war was ended and German imperial militarism had been succeeded by a peaceful republic, a new condition arose. Nearly all the nations of the world had been engaged in the war and all of them were hungry for peace.

The large navies which had been created for the exigencies of the war had become not only unnecessary, but an actual source of danger as well as involving a great burden of cost. Their size was sufficiently great to suggest the constant possibility of offensive action. The contemplation of this possibility produced continual irritation between the various countries. It was primarily to remove this that the American Government called the Washington conference, and at that conference led in the formulation of the Washington treaty of 1922.

This conference was one of the great victories of peace. It demonstrated a specific method of working for peace by naval limitation and it convinced the world that this method was practical and efficient. It is true that prior to that date there had been treaties of naval limitation and they had been very successful. For over 100 years the experience of the United States and Canada with the Rush-Bagot agreement which limited warships upon the Great Lakes of America had shown that this arrangement contributed greatly to the good re-

LOBBY INQUIRY DROPS CANNON CONTROVERSY

Will Not Compel Prelate to Tell of Activity in Politics.

REPORT TO SENATE WILL BE SUBMITTED

Blaine and Walsh Plans for Further Action Voted Down.

DECISION IS RECEIVED BY BISHOP IN SILENCE

Committee Undecided About Necessity of Holding Further Session.

(Associated Press.)

The dramatic controversy between Bishop James Cannon, jr., and the Senate lobby committee was officially ended yesterday when the investigators agreed they would not compel him to answer questions about his 1928 anti-Smith activities and voted to submit a report to the Senate.

By a four-to-one vote the committee agreed not to require the bishop to answer questions and later during a two-hour session behind closed doors, decided to submit to the Senate a transcript of the examination of the churchman.

Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, contended that when the report is made to the Senate the Vice President is required by law to submit to the district attorney the fact that Bishop Cannon refused to answer questions and that the district attorney is required to lay the matter before a grand jury.

Caraway Takes Opposite View.

A directly opposite view was taken, however, by Chairman Caraway, who explained the committee had ruled it had no power to ask the questions and, therefore, the Southern Methodist churchman had not legally declined to answer.

Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, expressed the opinion that nothing could be done until some one raised the question in the Senate as to the relevancy of the questions asked Bishop Cannon.

Two proposals for further action against the bishop were voted down at the executive session. A motion by Senator Walsh to ask the Senate for specific authority to inquire into political activities was defeated three to two, while a proposal by Senator Blaine to cite the bishop to the Senate for possible contempt proceedings received only one vote.

Senators Walsh and Blaine favored the first proposal while Blaine cast the only vote for his motion.

After agreeing to take no further

FAIRFAX RADIO MEN SAY S O S WENT AT ONCE

Flash Unmentioned When Conversing With Shore Station.

CUTTER NEAR CRASH IGNORED, IS EVIDENCE

Death List Reaches 47 as Search for Bodies at Sea Continues.

Boston, June 12 (A.P.).—The circumstances surrounding the mystery call for help sent from the liner Fairfax immediately after her collision with the tanker Pinthis last Tuesday night but never received by any other station were explored at length today at the opening of the Federal inquiry into the disaster which to date has cost 47 lives.

Three Fairfax officers including Capt. Archibald Brooks testified concerning the S O S. The captain told of having ordered it sent. Eugene W. Neff, assistant radio operator, who rushed from his cabin to the bridge at the impact, swore he had received the order from Brooks. J. W. Gewekin, chief operator, told Capt. Charles M. Lyons and Inspector John Stewart, United States steamboat inspectors who are conducting the hearing, that he sent it. In addition, Neff said he heard Gewekin send the message.

Whether the radio antenna was actually in working order when the message was supposedly dispatched, neither Gewekin nor Neff could say. They testified that a minute or two after the message had apparently cleared, the antenna was put out of commission by the fire which raged alongside the port side of the ship.

Did Not Try Again.

Thirty minutes later, when the radio had been restored and the fire was under control, Gewekin admitted he did not again try to send the message because he thought it had already gone.

Pressed by Capt. Lyons to admit that he had usurped the master's perogatives and had canceled the call on his own responsibility, Gewekin stuck to his story that he thought it had gone out even though in subsequent conversation with shore stations neither he nor they had made any reference to the S O S.

Gewekin admitted he had commu-

WILD SCENE IN RING BEFORE THE VERDICT

Sharkey Toys With Foe and Has Big Margin at Time of Foul.

FINAL BLOW UNSEEN BY REFEREE, JUDGE

Opinion of Second Official Decides Bout; Jeers and Cheers Greet Verdict.

By DICK WILLIAMS.

New York, June 12 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—A murderous left hand that struck Max Schmeling, of Germany, in the groin and dropped him writing to the canvas at the Yankee Stadium tonight took the heavyweight championship out of the United States for the first time in 50 years and crowned a great fight night with as dull a coronet as ever was pulled out of the pugilistic grab bag.

Blue-eyed Jack Sharkey, of Boston, whipped the left hand into Schmeling's middle that ended the fight in the fourth round. Schmeling groveled into the canvas, grasping his stomach and weeping, his face distorted in a gurgling moan. The bell rang as Knockdown Timekeeper Arthur Donovan began tolling off the seconds and Schmeling's seconds clambered in through the ropes and hauled him away.

Referee Charley Crowley began a count. Then he stopped. Then he counted again. Sharkey was standing in a neutral corner, swaying from side to side, his blood-stained tongue thrust out, his head forward, his pale blue eyes popping from his head in his fever. He hauled at the ropes and then, as the bell sounded and Crowley called Schmeling's seconds into the ring, he ran to his corner, throwing his hands into the air.

Pandemonium Ensues.

There ensued then the sort of pandemonium that boxing fans have come to expect from the childishly hysterical sort of men found in the boxing game. John Buckley, Sharkey's fat manager, crawled through the ropes. Sharkey remained standing in his corner, refusing to sit down. Manager Jacobs, of the Schmeling retinue, and his helpers were lugging the suffering German kid to his corner. Crowley was running from one side of the ring to the other, gesticulating wildly at the judges.

The crowd was shouting madly. Buckley, tubby and short winded, was running from Crowley to the press rows, to the judges, puffing asthmatically and screaming in his high, piping voice. Sharkey leaned forward and tugged on the ropes, waving his second back out of the ring when he tried to sooth him.

The gong rang, announcing the end of the rest period. Buckley was shouting. "Get ready Jack," his hand on his man's back. Jacobs was waving his arms before Referee Crowley's face.

Sharkey Thought Winner.

As the gong sounded Sharkey bounded across the ring and tried to pry his way through the crowd about Schmeling. Crowley waver him back and then Timekeeper Donovan began hammering the ring with his little wooden gavel, tolling off the ten seconds demanded when a fighter fails to answer the bell for a round following a round in which he has been floored.

This gesture gave the crowd the

SAW COMPANION LOST

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., June 12.—Fred H. Cole, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Cole, sr., of Petersburg, and a Harvard student, one of the survivors of the ill-fated liner Fairfax, which collided with the oil tanker Pinthis last Tuesday night in a fog in Massachusetts Bay bringing death to 47, arrived at his home today.

Mr. Cole gave a thrilling account of the tragedy. He escaped injury, but told a sad story of those who lost their lives and who were badly burned as the Fairfax caught fire from the flaming oil of the tanker.

Mr. Cole declared that "if the people had not jumped, the death toll would not have been so great. A man and his wife and little baby were drowned. It was just after the crash occurred. They were on the side of the boat in which the fire was confined and rushed away from the flames, to leap into the ocean and burning oil. The mother had the baby.

"One of the men I was playing cribbage with saw a woman and attempted to rescue her. She dragged him over with her. Just a few minutes before he had been enjoying a game, and that Marine's life was snuffed out in an attempt to save the frightened woman such a short while after.

"To me the most horrowing part of the experience came after we were assured of safety. Some of the passengers and crew were badly burned. A woman, I guess she was about 30 years old, and her little baby about 18 months old, had been severely burned.

"The skin from the mother's face had been torn away, and flesh was hanging in strips, some a foot long, from her body. The baby continued to cry and the suffering mother

TWO MEN ARRESTED IN KIDNAPING SCARE

Alexandria Girl, 3, Is Taken by Colored Man in Auto; Police Recover Her.

WHITE MAN UNDER QUIZ

Alexandria authorities today will arraign a colored man on a charge of kidnaping Virginia M. Herbert, 3 years old, from in front of her home, while police are attempting to sift the conflicting stories of the prisoner and a white man who was visiting the Herbert home at the time of the alleged abduction.

Robert Gladen, 33 years old, of Schott's alley northeast, was last night charged with kidnaping by Mrs. Linwood Herbert. Gladen was taken under heavy guard to a jail near Alexandria following his capture at the Highway Bridge by Patrolman Frank McGrath, of the Fourth Precint.

Exact location of the place the prisoner is lodged is being kept secret by Alexandria police as a precautionary measure. Alexandria authorities are also holding Charles Hays, 25 years old, of C street northeast, who, Gladen says, requested him to take the child for a ride.

Hays denies knowing Gladen, although Alexandria police say the colored man drove Hays to the home of the girl, at 116 North Fayette street. Gladen was driving a car, the tags of which were issued to a Miss Ella McCarthy, of C street northeast.

Hays said he was at the Herbert home to meet a Walter Holden, one of his acquaintances. Alexandria police say that the two men had spent time on the Virginia State Farm for violations of the liquor law.

Holden works with the girl's father at an oil plant in Alexandria. Hays said he wanted to learn from Holden whether he was going to carry out his expressed intention of boarding with hmi in this city.

As soon as the child was missed by her mother an alarm was sent out. Charles Kramer, who conducts a furniture store in the same building in which the Herberts live, said he

PASSAGE OF TARIFF VIRTUALLY ASSURED

Reed and Grundy Definitely Commit Themselves to Vote for It.

HOOVER APPROVAL SEEN

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Passage of the tariff bill by two votes and possibly three at 2 o'clock today was assured yesterday when both Senators Reed and Grundy definitely committed themselves in support of it.

There had never been any serious doubt that they would vote for the bill, but they both had been acting very coyly for several days as a part of the game of make-believe which both sides have been playing and, therefore, importance attached to their declarations, at least in a humorous way.

Newspapermen raced for their waiting telegraph wires when Senator Reed gave his announcement shortly after the Senate convened and again late in the afternoon when Senator Grundy solemnly proclaimed that although there were many things about the measure that he disapproved he would vote for it. To the people over the country who watch news bulletins the picture was given of great excitement in the Nation's Capitol.

Senator Reed's statement tended to end the speculation as to whether the President would sign the bill, about which there has never been any serious doubt either. But in his great session of deliberating, extending over three or four days, Senator Reed consulted with the President as well as

CHICAGO ASSEMBLES SPECIAL GANG STAFF

Tribune Attorney Is Named to Direct Investigation of Reporter's Killing.

PRESS VOWS SHOWDOWN

Chicago, June 12 (A.P.).—With an aroused populace demanding results, Chicago newspapers moved tonight to take over active leadership in tracking down the assassin of Alfred "Jake" Lingle and purging the city of criminals. Scarcely had Lingle been buried when Charles F. Rathbun, of Tribune counsel, was made assistant State's attorney to handle the investigation.

Pat Roche, former ace of the Federal narcotic forces and now chief investigator for the State attorney's office, will head the investigators, while Rathbun will have complete charge of the legal phases.

The action came close on the heels of a meeting of representatives of seven leading newspapers which adopted a resolution pledging their organizations and resources to the cleaning up of "gang, police, official and any other public viciousness."

"Considering the causes and the connotations of the unbelievable total of 100 gang murders in little more than a year and acting in accord and union," the resolution said, "we pledge our organizations and our resources to the cleanup of gang, police, official and any other public viciousness wherever it may appear, in order that corruption and the resulting gang activities may be brought to an

Cannon Letters Show Daily Deals in Market

Stock Messages Sent on Sundays, Lobby Committee Data Reveals; Loss Met by Advance on Church Salary.

New York, June 12.—A Washington dispatch to the New York World says:

Letters written by Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, who has consistently denied allegations of gambling, reveal that he dealt extensively with a New York bucket shop, fought or followed market pools according to his own financial interests, with an advance on his church salary to cover losses, and gave vent to "I am—sorry," leaving a long blank space preceding the "sorry."

The letters, copies of which were obtained for publication today, are those which have been placed before the Senate lobby investigating committee. It was on the basis of these letters that Josephus Daniels, former Secretary of the Navy, and 22 other lay members of the church, May 23, in Dallas, asked, asked that Cannon be unseated. The church, through its quadrennial convention, refused to do this and declined to admit these letters as evidence of gambling, after Bishop Cannon, in tears, admitted that he had made a mistake and promised never again to "speculate."

The bishop's losses in bucket-shop operations have been variously estimated from $30,000 to $85,000. He dealt with two firms, one of which was permanently enjoined from further business, and the other forced into bankruptcy, resulting in fraud convictions. Each of these firms termed its marginal operations as partial payment plans.

On October 17 H. Goldhurst, whose correspondence with the bishop is printed herewith, pleaded guilty to using the mails to defraud in sales of worthless stocks, and was sentenced to five years in Atlanta Penitentiary.

The correspondence shows that the bishop frequently requested closing quotations of the stock market by cable and wireless, that he insisted on "taking profits and rebuying on recessions," that he bought and sold from South America, that five financial communications were dispatched by him on Sunday, and that he was dunned continually by the bucket shop to cover up the losses of market manipulations.

At one time the bishop "managed after a hard struggle to land $400," he wrote. He urged "do not get caught on a slump or I shall think all our ventures are boodooed," complained once that "reliable houses promptly report sales," explained in urging secrecy that "my bank cashier would not understand," urged that certain market pools "push their pets" in order that he might profit, and in another letter said "I am afraid of the pools."

Upon arriving in South America, he changed his financial cable address from "Cannon Methodista" to "Can-

Blacksmith Starts Fifth Day Under Attack of Wracking Malady.

Emergency measures applied at a late hour last night failed to halt the hiccoughs which have wracked the body of Charles F. Reid for more than 110 hours, and physicians at Casualty Hospital said that apparently only nature could correct the strange malady which seized the 32-year-old blacksmith at his home in the 1300 block of Girard avenue last Sunday.

The hospital and The Washington Post were flooded with suggestions fro mwell-meaning individuals, who urged everything from damson plums to standing the patient on his head, tickling his throat with a feather, and employing osteopathic treatment. Harry A. Shinnick, a former Washington resident, wired from Flushing, N. Y., to suggest that an osteopath

Death of His Father Before Split Gave Her Rank, Ruler Asserts.

Bucharest, June 12 (A.P.).—Queen Mother Marie returned from Germany tonight to find that her son, the new King Carol II, had proclaimed his divorced wife Queen Helen of Roumania.

Carol's decree followed his statement earlier in the day that he considered his divorced wife, "already queen of Roumania," but he later made an official proclamation. The king's view was that on the death of his father, King Ferdinand, he, as Crown Prince Carol, automatically became king by right. His wife, since they were not then divorced, became queen in the same manner.

idea that Sharkey had won on a knockout. There were cries of foul and loud mouthings from 80,000 throats that might have been friendly or otherwise. Finally, Buckley waddled dejectedly over to the east press box, wringing his hands and then spreading them out in an appeal for sympathy.

"My god," he moaned, "they gave it to him on a foul—they give it to him on a foul—my god." The man must have been blubbering, but he came out of it sharply as Sharkey's chin dropped to his chest and he began his celebrated crying service. Buckley rushe dto him, slapping his face fondly and shouting, so that those within 50 feet of the ringside might not be denied the full purport of his tenderness. "It's all right Jack—it's all right, Jack, boy—"

Sharkey Grasps Foe's Hand.

Sharkey lifted his head and ran out of his corner, almost upsetting Buckley. He hustled over to Schmeling's territory, pushed the German's gaily bedecked helpers aside and grasped the dark-faced kid's hand. Then he plodded back, wrapped his blue marine bathrobe about him and left the ring. There were screeches of derision and loud and long hand-clappings, but in spite of his expressed and exploited patriotism, the jeers came in greater profusion than the cheers.

Prior to the hapless ending, the fight had been far and away Sharkey's. He hit the German with everything in the pugilistic repertoire and was inventing punches in every round. He was whipping a stinging left into Max's face as the German plunged in, bobbing in the style that is said to resemble that of the lamented Dempsey. The right was blazing over constantly, and to Schmeling's credit it can be said only that he took his medicine with a leonine courage and won a championship with less successful work than any title holder in the history of the big division.

Sharkey Toys With German.

Sharkey's equipment was as superior to Schmeling's as ring knowledge and experience could make it. He had won every round and with each succeeding round was pulling farther away. He seemed to gain confidence and the gray gleam of indecision that had smoldered in his strange eyes turned to one of complete confidence as he went along. It seemed that he almost smiled as he toyed with his opponnt, whirling him about into position to plaster that devastating right on his stolid features.

Once in the third round Schmeling almost went down and again in the third Sharkey cut a left hook to the head and then followed it with a right to the jaw. His knees sagged and he stumbled backward.

Sharkey leaped upon him and flailed away, but the German got in close and buried his bruised face on his opponent's wide breast.

Foul Unquestionable.

There was no question about the foul. It occurred directly in front of this writer's eyes. Over against the north ropes and close to Sharkey's corner, the glove landed a good 6 inches below the wait line and Schmeling's mouth flew open.

It was a bit of pity for those 80,000 there in the cavernous black stand that the punch wasn't 6 inches higher. It was a terrific blow, driven in with all Sharkey's 197 pounds behind it. One hardly could have expected the German to survive it, yet he had survived several almost as vicious. One couldn't question his gameness. Even though he showed no disposition to fight after the blow. If ever a foul blow hurt a fighter, that whack in the abdomen hurt Schmeling.

It was reported after the fight that Sharkey had exclaimed in the depths of his woe, that he had been fouled twenty times by Dempsey without winning the fight. Be that as it may, the responsibility of winning the Scott fight in a pecular manner has not entirely been lifted from his broad shoulders and it seems that if there is a justice available to the fighting business, Sharkey got about an even break.

For a crowd that had paid money to witness the performance, those unhappy 80,000 were commendably tractable after the decision was announced. There were a few yips of discontent and here and there noises were seen to be protruding from betwen clenched thumbs and forefingers but on the whole, the debacle brought no tumultous rioting from the customers. Perhaps the realization that as many babies as there were customers in the seats could be fed milk restrained them from more vociferous manifestations of disappointment.

Some even went so far in their tolerance as to remain for the denouement, or anticlimax bout, between Al Fay and George Hoffman, a pair of aspiring young men who looked bright and happy when they entered the ring and gory and interesting when they went out, Fay the winner by a decision.

COUNTY STUDENTS RECEIVE DIPLOMAS

Four Montgomery Schools Hold Closing Rites for Graduates.

ADDRESSES ARE MADE

Graduation exercises were held last night in four of Montgomery County's high schools, Bethesda-Chevy Chase, Sherwood, Damascus and Dickerson.

Dr. Samuel N. North, State superintendent of schools, made the address at the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School.

Diplomas were awarded to the following:

Academic—Goldie Christ, Jeanne Molyneaux, Elizabeth S. Benson, Elizabeth S. Kiser, Eugene R. Capozio, Dorothy H. Lundell, Richard H. Clark, Wilma A. Smith, Beatrice J. Williams and Louise J. Way.

Commercial — Violet Buchanan, James M. Lowe, Maxine L. Voorhees, Grace Pulliam and Richard L. Voorhees.

The address at Sherwood High School, Sandy Spring, was made by Dr. Joseph A. Apple, president of Hood College. Diplomas were presented by Dr. George Edmonds, member of the Maryland House of Delegates and of the board of education.

Diplomas were awarded the following:

Academic—Louise V. Valdemar, Jacob Wheeler Bird, jr., Joseph Eris Powell and Elgar Clyde Soper. General—Minnie T. Brown, Margaret G. Harriss, Gladys Lucile Leizear, Anna L. Parent, Stanley Arthur Harding, Francis M. Hawkins, jr., Douglass Howard Riggs, jr., Leroy Benson Soper, Richard Bentley Thomas, jr., and Henry Tyson Wheeler.

The Rev. Rowland Wagner, Rockville pastor, made theaddress at the Dickerson High School exercises. Miss Elizabeth C. Jones was valedictorian.

Diplomas were awarded the following: Edwin David Upton, Joseph Henry Hoyle, Maggie Rose Stowers, Douglas Donald Day, Cleta Alma Dove, Dellat Sampson Furzer, Elizabeth Creighton Jones, Margaret Virginia Jones, Walter Kirts Matthews, jr., Dorothy Virginia Moxley, Mildred Virginia Poole and Mildred Cordelia Stottlemyer.

Dr. Richardson, professor of public speaking at the University of Maryland, was the speaker at the Damascus High School exercises. Diplomas were presented by Mrs. Julian Waters, of the County Board of Education, as follows: Academic — Alma Estelle Stanley, Mildred Virginia Watkins, Mabel Leone Burdette and Laura Olive Burdette. General—Parepa Estelle Snyder, Myrtle Catherine Medairy, Austin Lewis Beall, George Franklin Burdette and Everette Rufus Jones.

The graded schools of the county will close for the summer today. Most of the schools have held closing programs and several are scheduled for today. The season has been the most succeeded in the history of the county, according to Edwin W. Broome, county superintendent of schools.

William Miles, Burtonville farmer, was arrested last night by Montgomery County police on charges of cruelty toanimals. He is alleged to have wounded the bull of John W. Mathias, a neighboring farmer, and to have left the animal in the field to suffer.

Miles told police that the bull had destroyed a large quantity of corn on his farm. It had broken loose from its owner's farm.

Students Receive Honors of School

John Q. Adams Awards Two Medals for Saving Life of Boy.

Four bronze medals and more than 100 emblems and certificates were awarded pupils of the John Quincy Adams School at an assembly yesterday morning. Miss Florence Gore, principal, made a speech accompanying the awards.

Richard Schrieber and Victor Purse, of the traffic patrol, were given medals for saving the life of Albert Hobbs, who was caught between two cars several weeks ago. Medals were also given to Capt. Harvey Kreuzburg and Lieut. Jack Leonard, of the patrol, for faithful and conscientious service.

The other awards were made as prizes in a recent spelling bee and for various events in the school track meet. Among those receiving emblems were George and Eugene Broussard, sons of Senator Edwin S. Broussard, of Louisiana.

Man Sues for Divorce, Blaming Card Reading

Mathew L. O'Brien, of 3533 Sixteenth street northwest, filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court seeking a limited divorce and custody of a minor child from his wife, Mrs. Helen Catherine O'Brien, of 1701 Massachusetts avenue northwest.

Through Attorneys John P. Mullen and James B. Archer, O'Brien tells the court that his wife's practice of card reading has led her to leave him on numerous occasions. The couple was married August 4, 1923, and there is one child, 6 years old.

Virginia Methodist Cabinet Called.

Lynchburg, Va., June 12 (Special).—The cabinet of the Virginia Methodist Conference, composed of ten presiding elders, will meet Bishop W. B. Beauchamp here tomorrow afternoon for a conference. It is said the matters to be considered will be of routine nature. Most of the members of the cabinet are here attending a church institute at Randolph-Macon Woman's College.

Commissioners Favor Taft for Bridge Name

Renaming the Connecticut avenue bridge over Rock Creek the William Howard Taft bridge was approved by the District Commissioners yesterday in a report to the House District committee on a bill providing for the new name.

Proposal to name the bridge in honor of the late Chief Justice and former President was made to the Commissioners by the Women's City Club soon after Mr. Taft's death and the Commissioners replied that the change could be made only by act of Congress.

"The Commissioners of the District of Columbia are heartily in sympathy with the provisions of this bill and recommend its passage," the Commissioners told the House committee yesterday.

WOMAN CANDIDATE DEFENDS CAMPAIGN

Mrs. McCormick Says Large Fund Is Necessary to Offset Patronage.

NO LIMITS ON PRIMARY

Toledo, Ohio, June 12 (A.P.).—Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican candidate for the Illinois senatorship, addressing a Republican women's mass meeting here today, defended her recent primary election expenditures and pointed out such use of money is necessary to offset the patronage advantage of an incumbent.

Mrs. McCormick said that her $252,570 expense paid by herself in the primary was to organize, circulate and canvass the State of Illinois. She added:

"Under present conditions one or more of the candidates in senatorial primaries must battle against all the influence of the sitting member and the power of his patronage.

"He must find another organization and make an alliance with it or he must create an organization of his own. He then must decide upon the financing of his campaign. Either he must use his own money or he must accept contributions from individuals or corporation of political groups and place himself under such obligations that his later career will be touched at every point by those who have selfish claims on him.

"Without organization and without funds he can hardly prevail against the opposition he will be called upon to meet. The result will be that the office holder will become a permanent officer instead of an elective one. Destroy the use of patronage and other political devices in this effort to establish perpetuity in office and you will take away one of the main causes for large campaign funds in primary contests.

"There is a specific legal limit to the amount which a candidate for the Senate may expend in his campaign for election, but there is no Federal law which limits the expenditures in a primary campaign.

"I believe that this present discussion of campaign funds should not be permitted to pass until there has been launched a movement for a constitutional amendment or whatever other method may be found practicable and desirable to correct this situation."

Girl Driver Succumbs To Injuries in Crash

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., June 12.—Miss Isabelle Pendleton Hunt, 22, of New York City, driver of the automobile in which John Ferguson, of Huntington, W. Va., University of Virginia freshman, was killed near the local airport Sunday morning, died this morning at University Hospital of bronchial pneumonia following injuries received in the wreck.

Other occupants of the machine were Misses Charlotte and Flo Brown, sisters, of Huntington, W. Va., and William Moye, of Rocky Mount, N. C. The first named sustained a fractured pelvis structure and broken shoulder.

SHRINERS DEDICATE PEACE MONUMENT

Senator J. T. Robinson, in Talk at Toronto, Hails Naval Treaty.

IS CHOSEN LIFE MEMBER

Toronto, June 12 (A.P.).—While airplanes hovered overhead, dropping bombs which unfurled tiny flags of the United States, Canada, Cuba and Mexico, a majestic monument to international accord among the four great nations of North America was dedicated today by the Ancient Arabic Order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine.

A massed band of 2,200 pieces played national anthems of the four countries and 800 chanters joined in singing "Onward, Christian Soldiers" as the monument was unveiled.

Statesmen of all the nations, using the theme of international brotherhood and world peace, addressed the throngs, Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, and Gov. Louis L. Emerson, of Illinois, attended the exercises from the United States and Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of State, broadcast a talk from Washington.

Robinson Lauds Treaty.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King's speech also was broadcast with the carillon in the peace tower of the Parliament Buildings at Ottawa playing "O Canada" as a prelude. George S. Henry represented Premier Howard Ferguson, of Ontario, and representatives of Mexico and Cuba spoke.

The monument was unveiled at the conclusion of Senator Robinson's speech, in which he referred to "the Christ of the Andes," standing for peace between Argentina and Chile.

He declared the London naval pact to be a seal of friendship among the United States, Great Britain and Japan.

Premier Thanks Shriners.

Prime Minister King thanked the Shriners for the monument which, he said, would be cherished by Canada as a national possession and as a symbol of international amity and good will.

Senor Lizardo Munoz Samudo, representing the president of Cuba, recalled that today is the birthday anniversary of Jose Marti, patriot and liberator, revered in his own republic.

Mexico was represented by Gen. T. M. Tapia, who outlined the peaceful progressive program of his government.

The peace memorial unveiling ceremonies marked the climax of the international Shrine convention which opened here Monday.

The imperial council, by an unanimous vote, today elected Senator Robinson an honorary life member of the Shrine.

DAY IN CONGRESS

SENATE.

Met at noon and recessed at 5:25 o'clock to 11 o'clock today.

Senators Reed and Grundy (Republicans), Pennsylvania, announced that they would support the tariff bill.

Foreign relations committee adopted a resolution asserting its right to confidential notes exchanged between the powers, and leading up to the London naval parley.

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, attacked the Agriculture Department for failure to control the sale of "ginger jake," a bootleg concoction that has caused many cases of paralysis in the South and Southwest.

Received the nominations of Cameron Forbes, of Boston, to be Ambassador to Japan, and Chairman Legge and C. C. Teague for reappointment to the Federal Farm Board.

Lobby committee voted not to attempt any further action against Bishop James Cannon, jr.

Confirmed the nominations of David E. Kaufman, of Pennsylvania, to be Minister to Siam, and Edward C. Plummer, of Maine, for reappointment to the Shipping Board.

HOUSE.

Met at noon and adjourned at 5:15 o'clock to noon today.

Representative O'Conner (Democrat), New York, called attention to the Fairfax steamship disaster in an effort to block consideration of the Senate bill to allow the Merchants & Miners Transportation Co., owners of the vessel, to file claims against the Government for war time service.

Chairman McFadden, of the banking committee, introduced a resolution to prohibit the purchase of German reparation bonds by national banks, Federal Reserve and bank members of the Federal Reserve system.

Representative Lozier (Democrat), Missouri, urged immediate and unconditional independence for the Philippine Islands.

Thomas F. Cadwalader, of Baltimore, appeared before the judiciary committee and attacked the constitutionality of the Wagner unemployment bills.

Received from the President recommendations for supplemental appropriations of $160,000 for the purchase of land at Punta Paitilla, Panama Canal Zone, and $22,500 for a joint investigation with the Canadian government of fisheries of Passamaquoddy and Cobscook Bays, between Maine and Canada.

Chairman Britten, of the naval committee, announced that a decision would be reached Monday as to whether the committee will go to California to inspect the proposed sites at Sunnyvale and Camp Kearny for the $8,000,000 Pacific Coast dirigible base.

HOWELL ASKS PRATT TO DRY UP LEGATIONS

Nebraska Senator Insists Embassy Liquor Load Violates U. S. Law.

MAJOR EXPLAINS VIEW

Senator Howell (Republican), of Nebraska, yesterday sought to induce District police authorities to act to stop the shipment of liquors to accredited members of the Diplomatic Corps in the National Capital.

The tall Nebraskan, who fell into difficulties with President Hoover early in the administration when he made various charges about conditions in Washington, is the author of the pending bill which would authorize police to enter private homes without warrants whenever they suspected the presence of liquor there.

He called on Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, at the latter's office in the District Building yesterday and contended that the shipment of liquor to embassies and legations here was a violation of the prohibition law. Maj. Pratt agreed that the prohibition law forbade the shipment or transportation of liquor for beverage purposes but pointed out that members of the Diplomatic Corps enjoyed the same immunity here that American diplomats abroad and others throughout the world are accorded.

The latest sally of the senator was prompted by newspaper accounts and photographs of a shipment of fine wines and other beverages for the British Embassy. The shipment received Wednesday is the first to reach the embassy since Sir Esme Howard, former British Ambassador, announced that he would not import any more liquor into this country. The new ambassador followed the usual practice. Sir Esme's announcement was hailed with joy by the drys but it was common report that the embassy had received a large shipment just before the ambassador made his announcement. The supply, incidentally, was sufficient to last beyond the departures of Sir Esme.

VICTIM OF HICCOUGHS ENTERS FIFTH DAY

block the patient's phrenic nerve. If that fails, he said, small applications of choloroform should be given at five-minute intervals.

Besieged with advice from every side, physicians at Casualty exhausted all standard cures without success. After parathyroid extracts and belladonna had been given to no avail, the entire staff joined in the preparation of a solution that was administered at 10 o'clock last night. Several hours later, however, the patient was still hiccoughing.

Members of Congress and leading pharmacists of the city were among the hundred or more persons who called the hospital yesterday to suggest "sure cures." The blacksmith's hiccoughing went into the fifth day last night.

Mr. Reid tried holding his breath, sipping water and other home remedies before applying to the hospital. This is the second hiccoughing attack that he has suffered within the year, the first lasting more than ten days. At that time he was treated at Emergency Hospital, but treatments which proved successful then have so far given him no relief.

Dr. J. Rogers Young, one of several physicians attending Mr. Reid, said that the patient was hiccoughing at the rate of between 30 and 40 per minute. In advanced cases, he explained, it is not uncommon for the paroxysms to occur at the rate of from 60 to 80 per minute.

The patient was not allowed to see visitors yesterday, due to his nervous and weakened condition. Although not alarmed over Mr. Reid's condition, attendant physicians said that the malady might easily prove fatal if it is not corrected in the near future.

The patient is confined to bed, but is allowed to eat anything that he desires. Crowds of friends and curious strangers came to the hospital yesterday to see him, but only his wife was admitted.

Decline in Birth Rate Cuts School Attendance

(Associated Press.)

Despite an increasing population, a declining birth rate is cutting down school registrations.

The office of education, in announcing the result of a study yesterday, said there were 4,320,000 children in the first grade in 1920 while in 1926, with a population increase of 10 per cent, there were less than 4,000,000. In Chicago at the end of September, 1924, there were 260,872 children in the first six grades of the regular day schools. In 1929 the enrollment was 254,866, a decrease of more than 6,000.

In an average group of 200 Americans in 1915 five children were born each year. In that same average group in 1928 less than four children were born.

GEORGETOWN PREP GRADUATES 28 BOYS

Bishop McNamara, Address-Lads, Counsels Them to Show Gratitude.

CHARLES DARR SPEAKER

Advising the members of the graduating class to hold fast to the Christian principles taught them at school, the Right Rev. John M. McNamara, Auxiliary Bishop of Baltimore, yesterday presented diplomas to 28 students at the Georgetown Preparatory School graduation exercises held in the school hall at Garrett Park, Md.

Bishop McNamara told the graduating class that the debt of education can not be paid back with a check or money but must be recompensed for by exemplification of the things taught in the lives of the graduates. In closing he told them that if they forgot all else he had said, he hoped they would remember one word, "gratitude," to their parents and their teachers.

Crowley Wins Prize.

The principal address was made by Charles W. Darr, prominent Washington attorney, whose grandson was among members of the graduating class. The Very Rev. Coleman Nevils, S. J., rector of Georgetown University, also spoke. The Rev. Robert S. Lloyd, S. J., headmaster of the preparatory school, introduced the speakers.

The salutatory address was by William Dyer Foote and the valedictory by George David Crowley, jr., winner of the Hamilton Medal for general excellence in studies, school activities, leadership, athletics and in promoting the best interests of the school.

Charles William Darr 3dw and Rupert Hermes Friday each received the gold medal for the highest average in Latin, English and Greek, and the premium for the next award was given to James A. Gannon, jr. Honorable mentions were awarded Prudencio F. Lach, Joseph F. Sullivan, jr., George D. Crowley and George E. Cutley, jr.

Other Premium Recipients.

The premium for modern history was awarded to James P. Edwards. The trigonometry premium was awarded doubly to Charles W. Darr 3d and Somers Matthews, with honorable mentions for James J. Fitz-Maurice, jr., Rupert H. Friday, jr., Prudencio Llach, Joseph Sullivan, James A. Gannon. The French premium award was won by James A. Gannon, jr., with honorable mentions to Charles W. Darr 3d and Joseph F. Sullivan, and the Spanish premium was won by Rupert Hermes Friday, with honorable mention to Somers Matthews.

The John Keating medal in Christian doctrine was won by Somers Matthews, while George David Crowley, jr., won both the O'Reilly elocution medal and the Naylon debate medal. The Henry Walters medal for speech on the Constitution was awarded to James A. Gannon, jr., and the William Quicksall medal for oral examination in three plays from Shakespeare, Macbeth, Merchant of Venice and Julius Caesar, was won by William Dyer Foote, with the premium for second honors awarded to John P. Gallagher.

Winners of Diplomas.

Diplomas were awarded to the following:

end, and thereby restoring to the citizens of Chicago civic decency and security of life and property."

At about the same time Alderman Arthur F. Albert issued a statement demanding that Police Commissioner William F. Russell and Deputy Commissioner of Detectives John Stege take furloughs for one or two months.

Albert urged that Capts. James Alman and Thomas Condon, known as "hard-boiled" officers, be placed in charge of the police department. He said he would place this demand before the police committee meeting Monday.

Don't Want Clews, He Says.

"This is another case where they know where to look for clews, but don't want to," asserted Albert. "Let Commissioner Russell take a rest, without reflecting on him. He is tired out and in the interests of the service he should take a furlough of from 30 to 60 days. Stege should do the same."

Albert asserted that if the heads of the department did not take kindly to his suggestions he would place the matter before the city council.

Meanwhile, the six veteran police gang fighters and their picked squads continued to raid the haunts of Chicago's gangsters, combing the underworld dives. The squads seized 25 prisoners, including Peter Genna, James Belcastro and Rocco Fanelli, bringing the total arrested since Wednesday night up to approximately 625.

Dr. John Thompson, pastor of First Methodist Church, announced during the day that Methodist clergy would take a hand in the situation. He said a campaign of education against crime would be waged from every Methodist pulpit in Chicago.

GREEN BARES PLOTS OF REDS IN AMERICA

A. F. of L. President Tells House Committee of Machinations.

U. S. OVERTHROW GOAL

(Associated Press.)

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, told the House communist investigating committee yesterday that the Soviet government was trying to bring a revolution in the United States by centering activities of the American Communist party on the masses.

Mr. Green named organizations which, he said, had been formed by Moscow representatives under direction of Soviet officials "to accomplish the overthrow of the so-called capitalist government in the United States."

In order to bring about destruction of the American Government Communist leaders in Russia felt, he said, that the American Federation of Labor would have to be overthrown and controlled.

Organizations Formed Here.

To accomplish this, he said, "there have been organized in this country the Workers (Communist) Party of America, the Trade Union Educational League, the Trade Union Unity League, the Pioneer Youth Movement, and the American Negro Labor Congress, directed from Moscow and thoroughly allied with the Communists International and the Red International of Trade Unions."

Efforts were being made, he said, by Communists to split affiliated organizations of the American Federation of Labor, but, he added, "we have been able to cope with them."

The American Federation of Labor, he continued, "is uncompromisingly opposed to communism and to the communistic philosophy."

Others to Appear Today.

E. F. McGrady, a member of the federation's legislative committee, Assistant Secretaries of Labor Robe Carl White and W. W. Husband, and George J. Harris, assistant commissioner of immigration, are to testify today.

Representative Fish (Republican), New York, chairman of the committee, announced that it would open hearings in New York probably July 5 or 6. In that connection, Representative Perkins (Republican), New Jersey, acting chairman of the House accounts committee, introduced a resolution to provide $25,000 for expenses of the committee.

WAGNER DOUBTFUL OVER RELIEF BILLS

Time Too Short for Passage of His 3 Unemployment Measures, He Says.

HEARING ON WEDNESDAY

(Associated Press.)

Doubt that Congress at this session will enact the three bills he proposed for the relief of unemployment was expressed yesterday by Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York, when the House judiciary committee adjourned to consider them in executive session next Wednesday.

Pointing out that adjournment of the session is planned for late next week, the senator said he "doubted very much" that the bills, which have been passed by the Senate, could be reported to the House and passed before that time.

Hearings on the two measures before the committee proposing the establishment of a system of uniform State employment exchange agencies under a Federal aid plan, and for the advance planning of public works were concluded yesterday.

The third bill, providing for the collection of employment statistics by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, also passed by the Senate, has been reported by the House labor committee.

At the conclusion of yesterday's hearings, Wagner said Chairman Graham, of the judiciary committee, had been requested to call a meeting earlier than Wednesday, but had insisted the committee needed that much time for consideration of the bills.

Senator Wagner attacked constitutional arguments against the proposed employment exchange system as "untenable and fantastic."

Exact knowledge of employment conditions was needed, the senator contended, so that public works could be launched in times of depression.

Witnesses who opposed the bills today included Thomas F. Cadwalader, Baltimore; Fred L. Peckham, Washington, D. C.; Grace E. Cooke, Boston, and Fred J. Winslow, Chicago, representing the Illinois employment board, composed of private agencies. Representative Mead (Democrat), New York, appeared on behalf of the bills.

TOUR CALLED PERIL FOR VIOLIN PRODIGY

Doctor Says Young Ricci Is Overemotional and Has Heart Enlargement.

FATHER SEEKS CUSTODY

New York, June 12 (A.P.).—Dr. Oswald Larontonda, a diagnostician, testified today after an examination of Ruggiero Ricci, 9-year-old boy violinist, that in his opinion a proposed concert tour of the country this winter would be injurious to Ruggiero's health.

He appeared as a witness for Pietro Ricci, of San Francisco, father of Ruggiero, who is attempting, through habeas corpus proceedings, to regain custody of the boy and his younger brother, Girgio, from Miss Beth Lackey, their legal guardian. The father charges the boys are being exploited.

Dr. Larontonda testified that when he examined Ruggiero today he found an enlargement of the heart, unusual for a boy of 9, and a more than normal emotionalism. Otherwise, he said, Ruggiero appeared to be in good health, well nourished and in pleasant surroundings.

He said he would advise strongly against all public appearances. Ruggiero made four public appearances last winter and is scheduled for a tour of the East and Middle West this winter, in which he is to play ten concerts in little more than that number of weeks.

Miss Lackey's attorney pointed out that Fritz Kreisler was playing recitals at the age of 12, Heifitz at 9 and other great violinists at earlier ages, but Dr. Larontonda said that would not cause him to change his opinion.

"They are the successful ones," he said. "We hear nothing about those who failed."

Dr. Larontonda was the day's only witness, hearing being adjourned until next Tuesday.

PASSAGE OF TARIFF IS EXPECTED TODAY

Reed and Grundy Assertions of Support Forecast Two-Vote Margin.

FINAL ATTACKS MADE

with Secretary of the Treasury Mellon. So it is only fair to assume that neither sought to dissuade him.

In so far as appearances are concerned, Senator Reed had much more trouble making up his mind than Senator Grundy. Indeed, his session of cerebration was a revel for the psychologists.

He was a most interesting study when he was "veering toward a decision" which one of the bulletins from his chambers represented as the progress of his deliberations. All psychologists recognized this as meaning that the needle of his cranial compass was pointing either a few degrees to the right or a few degrees to the left instead of straight northward as it had been.

It may or may not be that what finally caused the needle to move on around to a decision was the word that the Democrats were prepared to rearrange their forces so as to make both Mr. Grundy and Mr. Reed vote for the bill, that is, if the Republicans wanted it passed, which, of course, they did. The Democrats are said to have had two votes upon which they could have drawn had Senators Grundy and Reed decided to vote against the measure.

The final vote today is expected to find 49 recorded for the bill and 47 against. In as much as there are about six pairs it is probable that the roll call will stand 43 for and 41 against. There is some talk about one senator being absent without a pair in which event the bill would win by a margin of three votes.

Yesterday was devoted to the singing of swan songs. The Democrats said that Senator Reed made the best attack on the bill that has yet been made, but this is perhaps their cynical way of looking at things. Senator Norris, of Nebraska, gave the measure a farewell punch, complaining particularly that it did not have his anti-monopoly provision by which the tariff would be removed from those commodities in which a monopoly had been formed.

Senator Hatfield, of West Virginia, added to his reputation for a long-windedness, speaking to virtually an empty Senate for nearly two hours.

The monotony of his voice was broken, however, when near the conclusion of his speech, he said:

"I have so far declined to be interrupted, but I now——."

The four senators on the floor were huddled around the desk of Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, at the time arguing with Representative Sirovich, the noted surgeon of the House, and who being a member of that body is used to talking loud. The galleries, too, were all hub-bub. Certainly no one had attempted to interrupt the husky West Virginian.

Walsh Sets Stage.

If a stage had not already been set for Senator Grundy, Senator Walsh set one up for him when as he arose to speak just ahead he announced that he would take only a few minutes because he realized the country was waiting for the decision of Mr. Grundy.

Senator McKellar, of Tennessee, asked mischievously if Senator Walsh had any idea what Senator Grundy's decision would be. Senator Walsh replied in the same vain that he was confident it would be that Senator Grundy was against the bill because it gave Pennsylvania "so little."

There was much truth in Senator Grundy's lamentation at that. The bill does not go as high as he would have it go. And there was a ring of sincerity when he expressed his disappointment that the Amelcan valuation plan was not adopted.

This plan would virtually put an embargo into effect.

Senator Reed's excuse for voting for the bill despite his dissatisfaction with it was that if the bill failed of passage the tariff agitation would continue and that business could not stand that. He spoke right prophetically when he said it would be worse to go into another session and face another Senate coalition "which I fear, and fear very greatly, because perhaps they will do worse by us than they have done this time."

The House intends to remain in session Saturday and dispose finally of the bill. It should not take the President long to sign it.

Then the Republicans will have their bill and the Democrats their issue of Grundyism. Everybody seems satisfied.

Message From Brazil.

Cablegram, October 12, 1927, from Cannon, Sao Paulo, Brazil, to Kable & Co.:

"Cable today, Thursday; Friday close. Not Cannon, Methodista, but Cannon, Western Sao Paulo, insuring promptness."

Cablegram, October 13, 1927, from Cannon, Sao Paulo, to Kable, Jersey City: "Nothing since Tuesday. Critical time. Cable immediately last closing, listing later Thursday close."

A cablegram, October 14, Cannon to Kable, from Sao Paulo, asking specific quotations and advising "Sell Lehigh 110. Rebuy good reaction."

Cablegram, October 15, 1927, from Cannon, Sao Paulo, to Kable, 32 Broadway, New York: "Cable immediate opening, low, high, close quotations motors Thursday and other quotations requested. Is Gleasonite collapse permanent? Quote drug."

(The Kable Co. had offices in both New York and Jersey City.)

Cablegram, October 16, 1927 (Sunday), from Cannon, Sao Paulo, to Kale.—"Ebel offers 500 motors option 10 to 30 days. Cable whether can no make better offer, whether any probable profit that high. In cabling eliminate unnecessary words. Half rate eight. Never greater activity. Hope Resell Lehigh 110 soon."

("Ebel" refers to William J. Ebel, originator of the "Ebel thrift plan" of buying securities. Bishop Cannon's first known market operations were with this firm, with which Goldhurst was connected until the Kable Co. was formed late in 1927.)

Would "Fully Protect."

Radiogram, November 6, 1927 (Sunday), from Cannon, S. S. Western World, to Kable:

"Fully protect during purchase 700 shares present option doubtless lost if conditions exceeding favorable not 100 to 500 close 131 cable 30 otherwise delay cable finally Monday closing quotations same stocks."

Telegram, December 2, 1927, from Kable & Co. to Cannon, Richmond, Va.:

"Kindly forward 2,000 to bring your account up to date. Thanks."

Letter, December 2, 1927, from Cannon on stationery Hotel Mayflower, Washington, to Kable & Co.:

"Dear Mr. Goldhurst:

"A wire was sent me from Richmond today from Kable Co. . . . I certainly regret that we happened to strike such a line of difficult stocks. Kindly have statement made out showing all sales and purchases since last statement was sent on November 10, which showed balance of $18,035. . . . regretting very greatly the loss of the motor call $1,000.

"Sincerely yours."

Bishop Kept on Edge.

Letter, December 10, 1927, from Cannon to Goldhurst, on stationery of the Board of Temperance and Social Service, Methodist Episcopal Church South, 52 Bliss Building, Washington:

"My Dear Mr. Goldhurst:

"I came down to Richmond today and managed after a hard struggle to land $400 which I am inclosing by draft. I am being (kept?) on edge and fearful of flop in the Paige, Butterick, Porto Rico and Moon have conspired to induce pessimism. I started to wire 'sell at 17½,' but thought surely would make 18. If it seems 17½ will be high on Monday sell at that and repurchase if wise. But do not get caught on a slump or I shall think all our ventures are hoodooed.

"Sincerely yours."

Telegram, December 13, 1927, from Cannon, Birmingham, Ala., to H. Goldhurst, Kable & Co.:

"Your wire Washington forwarded. Never wire Washington unless I give definite instruction. Always causes unpleasant complications. Write Richmond, where secretary understand how forward. Can not send anything more 'til return Richmond when will send 600 for 200 Ohio. If bought notify Richmond price paid also Paige sales if any.

"M. P. CARMON."

The signature is as given above, Cannon repeatedly insisted that only his Richmond secretary, Miss Burroughs, in the church board offices, be intrusted with his financial information.)

In a longhand letter February 4, from Cannon to Goldhurst, the bishop said that "nothing disturbs me more than failure to send promptly at close of market ticker of sales. It required three telegrams to get report of sales of Texas, and my secretary wired me at Columbus, Ohio, tonight that up to present he had received no confirmation of sale and purchase of Middle States.

"I was called suddenly Friday night to Columbus, but hope to return Tuesday. Ask Kable & Co., send receipt for $500 and sale and purchase slip. If you have any information concerning Transcontinental Oil and possible merger send to Richmond Monday. Hastily and sincerely."

Waiting for Salary.

Longhand letter dated February 15, 1928, from James Cannon, jr., on train to H. Goldhurst (4 sheets).

"All of my plans have been upset by unexpected complications in sickness of my wife and son . . . (places orders to sell stocks). If I could see and talk with you I might take some other course. But I have no money in sight now until March 1, when salary check of $2,000 will come in."

Telegram dated February 17, 1928, from Kable & Co., to Cannon, Hotel Mayflower, Washington:

"Do not see any necessity for disposing of holdings in this weak market. Would rather hold stock at our risk until you can put up a little money. Stocks will eventually show you big profits. Advise."

Letter dated "Sunday" from James Cannon, jr., on stationery of the February conference on 1928 prohibition enforcement plans, Washington. Eugene Crawford, secretary, to H. Goldhurst.

"Dear Mr. Goldhurst: It looks as if the deluge broke loose Friday and Saturday. I can only say what I wrote you on Thursday night. I can not get any money until my salary check comes from Nashville, for the quarter beginning March 1. I trust you people can hold on to the stocks 'til then or until they recover sufficiently to sell at prices indicated in my letter at which of course I will lose heavily on all but Butterick, but if they sell now at present prices it is quite uncertain when I can get money to pay the losses."

Obtained Salary Advance.

Longhand letter dated February 29, 1928, from James Cannon, jr., on the stationary of the Hotel Driscoll, Washington, to Mr. Goldhurst.

"It sems difficult to keep one item straight. You wired me stating that if I could raise $100 you could handle balance on 200 shares of match. I made a great effort and secured advance on salary and wrote sending you checks of that amount. You have sent no receipts to my office for those checks. So Miss Burroughs telephones me. Send receipt at once. She must keep her accounts straight. I do not know what you mean by 150 more, whether you mean $150 money or shares of stock, but in either event I can not take anything more. To me shares of stock at that price is heavy for me, very heavy . . . Do not ever wire or telephone to Washington unless I direct."

Bishop is "Sorry."

Letter, dated March 1, 1928, from James Cannon, jr., on the stationery of the Antisaloon League of Virginia, State Planters Bank Building, Richmond, Va., the Rev. David Hepburn, superintendent, to H. Goldhurst.

"I find your telegram on my return to Richmond. I am sorry, not only for my own sake, but for yours, that you are not a prophet of the first grade, I do not know from whom you get your information, but they are evidently not prophets of the first grade, and with the exception of the paige and the Northern Ohio (which, by the way, was doing very well when I last noticed it) all of our stocks have gone back and wallowed in the trough of the sea. * * *

"I am writing this, however, especially to emphasize the fact that I am not in a position to take such expensive stocks * * * I was disgusted to see today that Continental Baking "A" had tumbled down one-third. * * * Do not wire to Richmond or to Washington until you hear from me again."

In the original, in the first line of the letter above, a long blank space precedes "sorry."

CADET OFFICER

INQUIRY AGAINST CANNON DROPPED BY LOBBY COMMITTEE

action against the bishop, the committee adopted the following resolution:

"Resolved, That it is the sense of the committee that it should not insist on answers to questions propounded to Bishop James Cannon, jr., and the transcript of the whole record be laid before the Senate."

Senator Blaine voted against deciding not to insist on answers to questions but approved presenting the record to the Senate. Senator Robinson (Republican), Indiana, voted for the first part of the resolution and against the other portion. The other three members approved the entire resolution.

Senator Walsh explained, however, that he assented only because of the doubt raised as to the authority of the committee to go into political activities. He has contended all along that it did have authority but he favored asking for specific power to remove any uncertainty.

Bishop Hears Decision.

Chairman Caraway said the committee's decision would not prevent any individual member from offering resolutions in the Senate to seek further action against the bishop. Senators Walsh and Blaine declined to comment on whether they intended to follow this course.

Meeting yesterday morning with Bishop Cannon present, the committee informed him of its decision reached late Wednesday not to compel him to answer the questions to which he objected. The bishop received the information in silence and made only two statements during the entire hearing.

At one point he told Chairman Caraway that Dr. Clarence True Wilson was an officer of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Church, and at the conclusion of the hearing said he had to leave next Monday for Nashville, Tenn., to attend a church meeting.

The bishop, who was without the crutch he has been using, leaned comfortably back in his chair and listened to the explanations by committee members of their attitude.

Hold Lobbying Not Involved.

Senators Caraway and Robinson contended the activities of the bishop did not involve lobbying in any manner, and therefore the committee did not have authority to question him. Senator Borah, who was absent, was understood to agree with them.

Senator Walsh said he concurred in the decision not to compel the bishop to answer questions about his political activities. He thought it would be unwise to go farther because of the doubt about the committee's authority. He immediately presented his resolution to ask for specific authority.

Vigorous opposition to the decision not to compel answers was voiced by Senator Blaine, who contended the investigators had asked other witnesses about their political activities. He insisted that the bishop's political efforts were linked up with lobbying. But he fought a lone battle.

Whether the lobby committee will hold further sessions has not been determined. It adjourned yesterday subject to the call of Chairman Caraway.

Cannon Issues Statement.

Bishop James Cannon, jr., last night gave out the following statement:

"On April 12, 1930, I sent a letter to T. H. Caraway, chairman of the Senate lobbying committee, from which I quote: 'In view of certain statements which have appeared in the press concerning the work of the Board of Temperance and Social Service of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, as officers of that board, we are writing you to state that, if your committee desires any information concerning the work of our board, we shall be glad to appear before the committee and furnish such information.'

"In pursuance of that communication, I appeared before the committee on June 3, 4, 5, 11 and 12, and answered all questions asked me concerning the work of our board. But when the two members of the committee present began to ask questions concerning my part in calling the Asheville conference and my political activity as chairman of the anti-Smith Democrats, I presented my objections in writing to answering such questions, emphasizing that the committee on lobbying was not empowered to inquire into political activities, and that, if it assumed the right to investigate my political activities as an individual in the anti-Smith campaign, then it could assume the right to investigate the activities of every individual citizen who votes or works in any political campaign for national officers. I furthermore insisted that the singling out of the anti-Smith Democrats for such special investigation was in the nature of a threat to independent citizens against any repetition of the uprising of 1928 in 1932.

Happenings of Thursday.

"On Thursday morning, June 12, the chairman of the committee announced that the full committee had considered my objections to answering certain questions, and said: 'Concerning the questions yesterday propounded to the witness and the declination of the witness to answer on the ground that it was going into his political activities, which he contended were separate from his activities connected with the board of which he is chairman, the committee, by a vote of 4 to 1, directed the chairman to say that the witness would not be required, and should not be required, to answer.'

"I was convinced that, whenever a full meeting of the committee could be held, it would sustain my objections to the answering of the questions propounded by senators concerning my political activities. I have only to say that this ruling of the committee makes it clear that I did not refuse to answer any question which the committee itself has judged to be pertinent to the investigation with which it is charged."

241 ARMY CADETS GET COMMISSIONS

Hurley Stresses Peace-Time Leadership Problems; 30 to Be Married.

CAPITAL MAN HONORED

West Point, N. Y., June 12 (A.P.).—Two hundred and forty-one cadets today received their commissions as second lieutenants from Patrick Hurley, Secretary of War. Immediately 30 of them headed for the marriage altar.

Although the class was the smallest in years, the number of weddings planned was about normal.

Addressing the cadets at the graduation exercises Mr. Hurley told them they were soldiers of peace as well as war, and that it was the aim of the academy to "create leaders who will maintain the peace and safety of the Nation."

"Under our national defense policy," he said, "the leaders of our Army are called upon to consider and solve social and economic problems in addition to providing for the military defense of the Nation and leading its Army in time of national emergency."

Harbor-River Work Cited.

As evidence of this he pointed to the control of rivers and harbors exercised by Army engineers, and as monuments to Army endeavor he named the Congressional Library, the Washington Monument and the Lincoln Memorial in the Capital.

All but two of the cadets received their commissions direct from Mr. Hurley's hand. The other two, Paul R. Weyrauch and Joseph E. James, jr., received theirs in the hospital, where they were recuperating from a broken leg and a tonsil operation, respectively.

Just to show that it takes more than a broken leg to halt an Army wedding, Weyrauch, son of Gen. and Mrs. Paul H. Weyrauch, of Spokane, Wash., will be married in the hospital tomorrow to Miss Lucy Hodges Mercer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Mercer, of Shreveport, La. She is the niece of Col. Campbell B. Hodges, military aide to President Hoover.

Other Cadet Marriages.

Other cadet marriages scheduled for the next three days include:

Miss Marguerite Fenetta Ott, of West Englewood, N. J., to Lieut. Edward Irving Sachs, of Evanston, Ill.; Miss Birrell Poole, of Ancon, Canal Zone, to Lieut. Joseph H. Twyman, of Fort McArthur, Calif., and Miss Frances Louise Romer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Romer, of Columbus, Ohio, to Lieut. Phillip Frederick Kromer, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Kromer, of Columbus.

New cadet officers to take the place of those graduated were announced today.

First captain, Cadet J. K. Waters, of Lutherville, Md. Captains, R. L. Jewett, Lincoln, Nebr.; C. W. Ott, Erie, Pa.; E. J. Cotter, Brockton, Mass.; J. S. Sullivan, Chicago; F. G. FAIRFAX SENT S O S AT ONCE, TESTIMONY

DENIED HARM TO SHIP

nicated with the sister steamer Gloucester through the Radio Marine Corporation's station at Chatham on his own responsibility and referred to a message from the Coast Guard cutter Tampa as having been informal because it was "unsigned."

Denied Trouble on Ship.

He said the Tampa had asked him what was the mater and that he had replied, "Everything o.k." Capt. Lyons interrogated the operator sharply at that point concerning what he meant by "o.k." in view of the large loss of life. Gewekin explained he meant the ship was in no danger. It has been subsequently brought out that the Tampa was within 15 or 20 minutes sailing distance of the crash, while the Gloucester, which like the Fairfax, was bound for Norfolk, Va., was nearly three hours away, having left Boston several hours behind the Fairfax.

Practically all of the Fairfax's officers were heard during the day. One by one they told what they knew of the events that succeeded the moment in which the Chelsea-bound tanker had loomed across the bows of the Fairfax in a fog, which all agreed was "very dense."

Capt. Brooks admitted that the Fairfax was steaming at 11 knots. He estimated the tanker was then 300 feet distant. First Officer James Hunley thought the other vessel was 150 feet away, while Joseph Brito, lookout, said it was between 70 and 90 feet distant. All swore that they had heard no whistles preceding the crash except that of a nearby whistling buoy and except a single blast of the tanker itself, a second before the impact.

Explosion Story Told.

They told of the ghastly explosion which followed as the tanker, laden with 12,000 barrels of gasoline, burst into flame from stem to stern before it plunged beneath the waves with every member of its crew of nineteen men.

The Fairfax, Capt. Brooks said, was put hard aport the instant the Pinthis loomed through the fog and full speed astern was ordered. The engine-room log, R. S. Lowery, third engineer, who was on duty, said showed this to have been at 7:03. Less than 60 seconds later the crash followed and within a minute the Fairfax had been showered by flaming gasoline from the doomed tanker.

In describing the next half-hour, every officer from captain down, declared that contrary to published stories of panic and disorder, there had been nothing but calmness on the part of the passengers and strict discipline on that of the crew.

None had seen the more than a score of passengers and crew who threw themselves into the blazing oil-coated waters to escape the torments of burns inflicted by the flaming gasoline only to perish in a sea of liquid fire.

Death List Now 47.

The toll of death in the collision stood tonight at 47 persons. A complete checkup following upon the identification of several of the bodies recovered from the sea yesterday and of the passenger and crew lists showed a total of 33 still missing.

The bodies of only four of the Fairfax passengers who lost their lives remained unrecovered. These were: Mrs. Lucille Mulvanity, wife of Lieut. Augusto O. Mulvanity, U. S. N., of 63 Bridge street; Howard N. Rose, a Harvard law student, of Cincinnati; Miss Catherine Gardner, of Medford, formerly of Winston-Salem, N. C., and Dr. William J. Meagher, of Milton.

Lieut. Mulvanity and his daughter, Eileen, also lost their lives but their bodies were recovered and identified. Mrs. Meagher also died in the collision and her body was recovered.

Thirteen members of the crew of the Fairfax, including the one unidentified waiter whose body was at the morgue and eighteen of the crew of the Pinthis were still unaccounted for tonight.

Jones' Body Identified.

The body of Capt. Albert V. Jones of the Pinthis was identified at the morgue tonight by Fred Gower, superintendent of the Lake Tankers Transportation Corporation, of Fall River, owners of the vessel. Jones was a resident of Fall River. Charles Weisser, of Pawtucket, R. I., second mate of the Pinthis, was positively identified by his son late today. He had been tentatively identified last night when the word "Weisser" was found on his arm.

Only one body remained to be identified. It was believed to be that of a white man, an oiler on the Pinthis. The bodies at the morgue which were brought to Boston by the schooner Rainbow, which found them near the scene of the disaster, were those of the following:

Capt. Jones, Naval Lieut. Augustus Mulvanity, of Nashua, N. H., and his daughter, Irene, 3; John J. Lewis, Philadelphia, Negro; Henry Jackson, Jacksonville, Fla., Negro; Miss Mary B. Craven, of Boston; Mrs. Agnes G. Meagher, Milton; Miss Georgette Critten, Boston; Byrd T. Constantine, Birmingham, Ala.; Charles Weisser, Pawtucket, R. I.

KING CAROL PROCLAIMS HELEN AS QUEEN, DESPITE DIVORCE

Sunday, she was reported today to be satisfied with the plans to crown her as queen.

When the queen mother arrived tonight she received a welcome which bystanders said never had been surpassed for spontaneous warmth in this Balkan kingdom. She waved from the window of her compartment as the train rumbled to a halt and her eyes glistened with joyous tears as she sighted her tall son who has taken the throne of his father.

They embraced as Queen Marie alighted, and a great throng cheered as brilliant groups of army officers and high civil officials kissed her hand. With the formalities over, Queen Marie went to the waiting room of the station with King Carol.

Although it had been forecast that Princess Helen would meet her mother-in-law, she did not appear. Queen Marie appeared at her best. She was handsomely garbed in a light gray georgette dress and cape, with a gray toque to match, and wore a huge lilac-colored silk scarf.

Others greeting her were her younger son, Prince Nicholas, her daughter, Queen Elizabeth, of Greece, and Carol's 9-year-old son, the former boy king, Michael.

Just as the inhabitants of Bucharest danced in the streets the night Carol was proclaimed King of Roumania, so tonight did they show joy that the mother of young Michael had been proclaimed Carol's consort upon the throne despite her divorce from him two years ago.

King Carol's decree annuls all laws and ordinances enacted from the time he left Roumania in exile until he returned as monarch.

The decree, published in the Official Monitor, is as follows:

"By vote of Parliament, which annulled all acts promulgated after January 4, 1926, the king enters into the rights he had before that date, and in view of the fact that his marriage was dissolved, subsequently the king authorizes her royal highness, Princess Helen, to bear the title 'her majesty.'"

It was said in some quarters that, at Princess Helen's instance, the divorce was not included in the acts annulled. Whether that meant she would be recognized a queen while still separated from her former husband, or whether she would join the king and the decree would be voided later, no one could say.

Gen. Prezan tonight failed to form a government and returned the mandate to King Carol. It is believed that former Premier Maniu, leader of the Peasants party, who was instrumental in having the king return from exile, will be asked to form a new ministry. Maniu resigned Saturday to effect the parliamentary proclamation of Carol as king.

Woman Teacher Shot By Boy in Classroom

St. Louis, June 12 (A.P.).—Miss Ella C. Meyer, 54 years old, a teacher in the Riddick Public School, was shot in the back and critically wounded today by an unidentified youth while she was teaching her class of sixth and seventh grade pupils.

The assailant fired through the door and was seen fleeing down the stairway, revolver in hand. He appeared about 16 years old. Associates said so far as they knew Miss Meyer had no enemies. It was learned, however, she had appeared in court yesterday in response to a subpena.

Mrs. L. Allen Hoover, of Baltimore, Again Tries to Bar Using Name.

FOREIGN REPORT WINS

Denver, Colo., June 12 (A.P.).—Today's session of the twentieth biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs saw reintroduction of the question of the "commercialization" of the federation by the motion picture industry, believed disposed of Monday with the adoption of the report of Mrs. Ambrose Diehl, of Pittsburgh.

Apparently designed to place the federation on record as opposing any mention of the organization in connection with the work of Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, of Pasadena, Calif., associate director of public relations for the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, a resolution submitted by Mrs. L. Allen Hoover, of Baltimore, was referred to the resolutions committee.

Fails in Her Effort.

Mrs. Hoover sought unsuccessfully to bring the question up on the floor, and an objection by the chair sent the resolution to the committee.

"Certain members of this body," she declared, "have said that I showed the 'white feather' in not bringing up this matter before. I am here to refute that assertion."

The federation's executive committee last Saturday tabled a telegram from the executive board of the Baltimore District Federation of Women's Clubs protesting against "commercalization" of the general federation, and reference of the resolution to the resolutions committee was taken as evidence that similar action probably would be taken with it.

By an overwhelming vote the convention adopted the report of Mrs. Ben Hoper, of Oshkosh, chairman of the department of international relations. Mrs. Fred Eric, of Philadelphia, objected to approval of the report on the grounds that it was "misleading" and placed the convention on record as indorsing the world court without qualification before the Washington Government's reservations had been accepted at Geneva. She was opposed by the committee chairman and others, who asserted that the report in no wise could be construed as indorsing anything but the stand taken by the State Department.

Prohibition Bobs Up.

Prohibition also showed its face at today's session in the report of Mrs. John C. Urquhart, of Los Angeles, chairman of the division of law enforcement, who said "every member of the federation is considered as a speaker for the cause."

Reelection of Mrs. John F. Sippel, of Baltimore, president, and other officers, excepting treasurer, was announced today.

Mrs. Edward Hammett, of Sheboygan, Wis., was chosen to succeed Mrs. H. G. Reynolds, of Paducah, Ky., who did not seek a second term as treasurer.

STIMSON UPHOLDS NAVAL TREATY

lations between those countries. Similarly in 1902 the republics of Argentina and Chile had found a treaty of naval limitation a potent help in solving the difficulties that had arisen over their boundary line and with its aid had succeeded in inaugurating a new era of friendly relations which still exists.

But neither of those instances, striking and important as they were, had affected enough nations of the world to have brought this method of preserving peace into general recognition. The Washington treaty of 1922 did this. It convinced the world that naval limitation was possible and directed the conscience of the world toward an insistence upon such limitation. Although it only succeeded in arresting competition in two classes of warships—the battleship and the aircraft carrier—it commenced a movement for further limitation which will not cease until all naval competition has been arrested. It not only did this but it had an immediate beneficial effect upon the relations of the nations which participated in it, particularly of the United States and Japan.

Prior to the Washington treaty there had grown up in these countries, which were both engaged in building great fleets of battleships, a spirit of suspicion and distrust. Irresponsible people in both nations were beginning to talk of the possibility of war The Washington treaty, ending not only the competition in battleships but also providing that neither nation should increase its fortifications and naval bases in certain regions, put a stop to this growing ill will. The willingness of both parties to make sacrifices in armaments ended the tendency to look upon each other as possible enemies, and made possible the beginning of a new era of good will.

But in spite of these great successes, the Washington conference left a loophole for future trouble. Only two kinds of warships were limited; cruisers, destroyers and submarines were not. After the conference adjourned competition began in Europe in these unregulated types and, as always happens, that competition gradually spread to other nations. No less than seven international meetings were called, one after another, for the purpose either directly or indirectly of meeting this situation and trying to close the loophole.

Six of these were meetings of the preparatory commission of the League of Nations, and the seventh was the three-power conference of America, Britain and Japan which was called at Geneva in 1927. None of them were successful and the failures, together with the increasing competition in these three classes of warships, tended to rouse again a spirit of friction and ill will. Between the United States and Britain it became particularly noticeable and unfortunate, and it became evident that the governments of both nations should take steps to check its growth.

The fact that at this very time virtually all the nations of the world had entered into a solemn covenant in the pacts of Paris, the so-called Kellogg-Briand pact, to renounce war as an instrument of national policy and in future to solve their controversies only by pacific means, did not of itself remove the danger which was being created by naval competition. True, the execution of that instrument was a vitally important event. It laid down a new international policy and it had behind it a general and overwhelming popular support.

It proposed a new era, but new eras do not come out of old conditions merely by virtue of good resolutions for the future. To cure evils which have been created by mischievous conditions, the conditions themselves must be changed. In order to create a situation where no nation will resort to war as an instrument of national policy, there must be established, in addition to the promise not to make war, a larger measure of confidence than now exists in the ability of the different nations of the world to maintain their pacific intentions under all the temptations which are sure to confront them. Affirmative, practical steps must be taken to carry out the good resolution and to begin the evolution in international good will upon which the success of that resolution depends. Otherwise the failure of the good resolution may produce a condition worse than if it had never been made.

Situation Summed Up.

Thus the situation as it stood a year ago may be summed up as follows: The nations of the world had been taking definite practical steps toward a new regime of peace by the partial naval disarmament of the Washington treaty. They hal also entered into a formal covenant to renounce war altogether as a national policy. But the practical steps of disarmament were incomplete and new suspicions and irritations were growing up in consequence.

And the peace pact was thus far a mere paper promise. Its fate was trembling in the balance. Whether this paper was to become a live system and thus to mark the opening of a really new era in the world's progress or whether like many other good resolutions it should fade away into nothingness, depended on the practical steps which should be taken to make it good.

From this background the Government of the United States under President Hoover and that of Great Britain under Prime Minister MacDonald started last year the movement to change the old dangerous conditions, to complete the work begun by the Washington Conference, to close the last possibility of naval competition between their own peoples and the other peoples of the world, and thus to take a long step forward toward making effective the noble intentions of the Kellogg-Briand pact. Negotiations between the two governments were begun in the summer of 1929. They were carried on at the personal conference of Mr. Hoover and Mr. MacDonald at the Rapidan in October. Their purposes were set forth in the following joint statement issued by them on October 9 after this personal meeting:

"We have been guided by the double hope of settling our own differences on naval matters and so establishing unclouded good will, candor and confidence between us, and also of contributing something to the solution of the prbblem of peace in which all other nations are interested and which calls for their cooperation.

"In signing the Paris Peace Pact, 56 nations have declared that war shall not be used as an instrument of national policy. We have agreed that all disputes shall be settled by pacific means.

"Both our governments resolve to accept the peace pact not as a declaration of good intentions, but as a positive obligation to direct national policy in accordance with its pledge."

Meeting a Culmination.

Out of these beginnings came the call for the London conference and out of the London conference came the London naval treaty. Thus that treaty is not merely an attempt to establish a relationship for the time being between the three fleets of America, Britain and Japan; it is the culmination of a ten-year movement toward peace between the various naval powers of the world and also a step in the vitalization of the Kellogg-Briand pact. Of course, it is not equal to the vision of the two men who issued the Rapidan statement. In human affairs no realization ever matches the vision, and limitation of arms is not a single step but a continuous process.

But the treaty is a long step forward in that evolutionary process. It prescribes a complete limitation and a cessation of competitive building between the navies of America, Britain and Japan—the three greatest naval powers of the world. Between them if this treaty is ratified there is to be no further naval competition or the rivalry, suspicion and ill will which is sure to arise out of it. With these three powers two other powers—France and Italy—have joined in certain important agreements in the treaty. They have joined in a six-year extension of the battleship holiday.

They have also joined in a covenant to outlaw ruthless submarine warfare—the kind of welfare which dragged America into the great war. And finally they have given to the limitation treaty of the other three powers their approval and hearty concurrence, with the promise to continue their own negotiations in the hope of ultimately joining the other three in a similarly complete limitation.

Pending for Ratification.

This limitation treaty is now pending for final ratification in each of the three countries to which its full restrictions will apply—America, Britain and Japan. In each of these countries it is exciting vigorous opposition in certain quarters. But the source of this opposition and the arguments which are made against it give fresh evidence of its true value and of the real basis upon which it stands. In each country the opposition comes mainly from some extremists among the professional warriors of that country while at the same time in each country civilian public opinion is giving it overwhelming support.

Furthermore, the things which are said in criticism of the treaty by warriors in one country are directly in conflict with the things which are said in criticism of it by warriors in the other countries. American admirals are saying that the treaty will not establish parity between America and Britain but will make the American Navy inferior to the British navy. At the very same moment British admirals and former lords of the admiralty are declaring that the treaty imposes naval inferiority upon Great Britain and supremacy upon the United States.

American admirals are declaring that the treaty makes impossible a successful war with Japan, while at the same moment Japanese admirals declare that the treaty makes it impossible for the Japanese navy "adequately to protect the Japanese nation." In Japan one unfortunate naval officer is reported to have committed suicide as a protest against the treaty and two others have recently resigned for the same reason.

Out of this clash of opinions two results are clear. First, that a treaty so evenly criticised on opposite grounds by extremists in all three countries must come pretty near to the central line of fairness and justice between all three. All treaties which like this one involve a compromise of opposing interests must necessarily contain some concessions by each party. In the case of this treaty the concessions are apparently so evenly distributed that exactly opposite results are being claimed to flow from the treaty in each of the three countries. All of these predictions of evil can not be true; probably none of them are.

Naval Officers Handicapped.

But there is a deeper reason why these criticisms should not prevail against the treaty. The critics are naval officers—fighting men. They are handicapped by a kind of training which tends to make men think of war as the only possible defense against war. It is not their function to consider the preventive measures of international relations which are intended to make war less likely. They do not weigh the factor of international good will or rightly evaluate machinery which will prevent war by substituting other remedies for the settlement of disputes between nations.

They are thus likely to be blindfolded to one-half of the horizon—a very important half. Under these circumstances they are naturally against all naval limitation. For it is difficult for them to see that naval limitation itself by checking mutual suspicion and promoting good will is one of the most effective preventives of war. It is hard for them to realize that a navy which seems to them merely large enough for defense may seem to the other nation to be so large that it must be intended for offense.

They thus are apt to ask for larger navies than the man who can see the whols horizon. It is especially difficult for them to make the decision which must be made by every government as to the proper size of an armament reasonably sufficient for defensive purposes, but which will not seem provocative or disturbing to other nations. In the language of Prime Minister MacDonald, when he was here last year, "They are willing to take the risks of war but they are not willing to take the risks of peace."

Do not misfnderstand me. I have no intention of including all naval and military men in this criticism. It would be a gross injustice to the two services and to the many broad and fair-minded officers within them. For two years, as Secretary of War under President Taft, I had the honor of being in constant association with the officers of the general staff of the Army, and among them were many men whose grasp of these questions was conspicuously broad and fair and statesmanlike. Again at the London conference we delegates had the benefit of the assistance and advice of the commander in chief of the American fleet, Admiral Pratt, as well as of several other able naval officers, than whom I can not imagine men with fairer minds or a better-balanced view of all of the conditions which entered into the making of the Treaty. Admiral Pratt's statement in favor of the treaty before the Senate committee on foreign relations was conspicuous for its statesmanlike analysis and fair appraisal of the opposing elements of the problem.

Military Viewpoint Narrow.

I am speaking of a tendency—the tendency of the professional military viewpoint. That viewpoint has cropped out in all three countries in respect to the treaty, and it has been conspicuous in some of the testimony which has been given before the Senate committees. It is narrow. It only covers a portion of the field which must be considered in matters of national security and defense, and its limitations and dangers have long been recognized by the American people.

From the very foundation of their government the American people have placed the decision of these matters in the hands not of their admirals and generals, but in the hands of their civilian representatives. By our Constitution the size and character of the American fleet, so far as it is determined by appropriation, rests with the President and Congress; so far as it is determined by treaty it rests with the President and the Senate. The naval officer is relegated to the function simply of giving advice on technical matters to these civil officers who have the duty of making the decision.

In these respects the American people have only carried out the traditions and methods of all the English-speaking peoples of the world which have existed for at least 300 years. The last Englishman who sought to create a navy larger than the wishes of the representatives of the British people was Charles I, and his action in trying to collect for that purpose what was known as "ship money" without the consent of the House of Commons resulted in the civil war in which he lost his head. Those Americans today, who are suggesting that the size and character of the American fleet must be determined solely in accordance with the views of the admirals of the fleet are not only seeking to reverse the traditions of three centuries, but are suggesting the surrender of what has hitherto been regarded as one of the most priceless rights of the American people and one most necessary for the protection of its liberty.

Breadth of View Needed.

Certainly never was the necessity of breadth of view shown more clearly than in the case of the present treaty. Certainly never were the dangers of a narrow militaristic viewpoint more clearly made manifest. Here is a treaty which represents the latest step in a constructive progress toward international good will of over ten years. It is a result of negotiations begun over a year ago and carried on through fourteen weeks of careful deliberation in London. So far as the security of America is concerned, those American rights were represented by a delegation of seven gentlemen, at least three of whom had worn the uniform of the United States as soldiers during the last Great War and who, therefore, from personal experience are well aware of the ravages of war and the vital need of a proper national defense.

The treaty deals with a proposed American fleet of a total tonnage of 1,125,000 tons. The chief differences of opinion in the Navy relate merely to 30,000 tons or three ships and merely to the method in which those three ships should be armed—whether with 8-inch or 6-inch guns. And as to this question there is a difference of opinion within the Navy itself, where the commander in chief of the fleet and many others agree that the treaty is right.

Yet because of this slight difference of opinion in respect to less than 3 per cent in tonnage of the total fleet certain opponents of the treaty would throw overboard all of the benefits of this great movement, all of the admitted advantages of the treaty, and go back to an era of unrestricted competition with Japan and Great Britain. Never was the narrowness and intolerance of militarism exhibited in a more striking light. Never was the wise foresight of our forefathers which placed the decision of such matters in different hands more clearly vindicated.

Postponement Is Discussed.

The opponents of the treaty are now urging that its consideration should be postponed until next autumn after the elections. They say that more time is required for its proper consideration by the Senate. Let us look at that argument. Probably no treaty has ever been before the Senate of which the essential questions involved have had such long and thorough publicity as those of this treaty. For the issues of this treaty which are in controversy are very narrow and they have been publicly debated for over three years. The comparative values of the 6 and 8-inch cruisers as well as the tonnage of each which may be required by the three powers were the chief questions discussed at the Geneva conference in 1927. Those questions have been well known by the public ever since.

Over 100 press correspondents attended the London conference last winter and flooded the press of the world with a continuance of this discussion. When the treaty reached the Senate an innovation on former committee procedure in such matters was determined on and the treaty was discussed before committee on foreign relations, not as heretofore in private sessions but in public sessions, with a large press representation in attendance. Not only that but a second committee of the Senate, the committee on naval affairs also held public sessions and its proceedings were fully reported in the public press.

Finally, the Senate is having for its deliberations the benefit of the advice of two of its leading members, Senator Robinson and Senator Reed, members of each of the two great national parties, who also were members of the American delegation in London, and who are acquainted with every step of the negotiations. Probably never within the history of this country have there been before the Senate for decision, questions where there has been more opportunity given the Senate for obtaining information and less chance of the Senate being taken by surprise or deceived.

Consequences of Delay.

On the other hand, what will be the consequences of delay? Discussion of the treaty thus far has been entirely without regard to party politics. In the negotiations in London, as well as in the discussions before the Senate, committees, Democrats and Republicans have considered the questions before them purely as national and never as party questions. This is as it should be and as our Constitution intended in the senatorial consideration of international treaties.

But if the ratification of the treaty should be postponed until the autumn, there will be projected into every senatorial contest the bitter efforts of a single group of newspapers which is now devoting itself to the defeat of the treaty. These efforts do not now and would not then consist in a discussion of the real questions involved in the treaty. The irresponsible misrepresentation, the spirt of international suspicion and ill will, which thus far has marked the editorials of this group would be poured into every canvass in an effort to align candidates on one or the other side of this controversy.

The possibility of war between this country and Britain or Japan would be discussed in every district and alleged sinister motives and purposes toward us on the part of these two other nations would be conjured up and paraded before the voters. This could have no other result than to breed unfounded suspicion and ill will. It would not only tend to drag the treaty into party politics but it would go far to neutralize the efforts which our Government has made during the past ten years to cultivate friendship and good will with these other nations. It would go far to destroy the benefit and purpose of the treaty when ratified.

The London naval treaty represents a definite constructive step on the long road toward international good understanding and peace. Its ratification will insure that step. Its defeat would undo the progress of many years. Unless we wish to reverse the well-matured policy of this country for nearly ten years, the treaty should be ratified and ratified promptly.

SENATE COMMITTEE BACKS DATA DEMAND

would not then consist in a discussion of the real questions involved in the treaty. The irresponsible misrepresentation, the spirit of international suspicion and ill-will, which thus far has marked the editorials of this group would be poured into every canvass in an effort to align candidates on one or the other side of this controversy.

"The London naval treaty," Mr. Stimson continued, "represents a definite constructive step on the long road toward international good understanding and peace. Its ratification will insure that step. Its defeat would undo the progress of many years. Unless we wish to reverse the well-matured policy of this country for nearly ten years, the treaty should be ratified and ratified promptly."

Secretary Stimson in his speech says the Senate has not only had public sessions by two committees but has had the benefit and advice of Senators Reed and Robinson who were members of the American delegation.

"Probably never before within the history of this country," Mr. Stimson adds "have there been before the Senate for decision, questions where there has been more opportunity given the Senate for obtaining information and less chance of the Senate being taken by surprise or deceived."

Text of Resolution.

The resolution adopted by the foreign relations committee yesterday reads as follows:

Whereas, this committee has requested the Secretary of State to send to it the letters, minutes, memoranda, instructions and dispatches which were made use of in the negotiations prior to and during the sessions of the recent conference of London; and

Whereas, the committee has received only a part of such documents; and

Whereas, the Secretary of State, by direction of the President, has denied a second request from this committee for all of the papers above described; and in his letter to the chairman of this committee has attempted to establish the doctrine that the treaty of London must be considered by the Senate "from the language of the document itself and not from extraneous matter;" therefore be it

Resolved, That this committee dissents from such doctrine and regards all facts which enter into the antecedent or attendant negotiations of any treaty as relevant and pertinent when the Senate is considering a treaty for the purpose of ratification, and that this committee hereby asserts its right, as the designated agent of the Senate, to have free and full access to all records, files and other information touching the negotiations of any treaty, this right being based upon the constitutional prerogative of the Senate in the treaty-making process; and be it further

Resolved, That the chairman of this committee transmit a copy of these resolutions to the President and to the Secretary of State..

COMMISSIONERS FIX LIMIT ON BUILDINGS

Action Under Shipstead Law Further Bar to Plans of Methodists.

SIXTY-FOOT HEIGHT SET

Height limitations for buildings on various streets around Government buildings were fixed yesterday by the District Commissioners under authority of the Shipstead law.

Among the streets involved is the north side of Maryland avenue northeast between First and Second streets, on which the height limit for buildings was fixed at 60 feet above the curb. It was near the corner of First street and Maryland avenue that the Methodist Board of Temperance Prohibition and Public Morals proposed to erect a large apartment house. The board sought to have its property adjoining the Methodist Building rezoned so as to permit erection of a 90-foot building, but said that it was intended to erect one only 71 feet high. The zoning commission refused the change, and the new limits fixed yesterday by the Commissioners adds another barrier.

Seventy feet was fixed as the height limit for buildings on the east side of First street northwest between B and C streets adjacent to the Senate Office Building.

Sixty feet was fixed as the height limit for buildings on the east side of Second street northeast between East Capitol and B streets adjacent to the new Supreme Court Building, while 70 feet was the limit placed on the east side of Third street southeast between East Capitol street and Pennsylvania avenue adjacent to the new Library of Congress. Seventy feet also was the limit fixed for the south side of Pennsylvania avenue between Second and Third streets southeast, and the south side of B between First and Second streets southeast, both of which will front the new Library of Congress.

Seventy feet was the limit fixed for the east side of First street southeast between B and C streets, and 90 feet was fixed as the limit for buildings on the south side of C street southeast between First and South Capitol streets southeast, and between South Capitol street and Delaware avenue southwest. These streets are adjacent to the House Office Building and proposed additions.

Americanization School To Award Certificates

A class of foreign-born women from the Americanization School will receive certificates in home hygiene and care of the sick at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Red Cross District Chapter House. Gen. F. W. Keffer will address the class and Mrs. T. W. Richards will award the certificates.

The class, under the direction of Mrs. M. F. Conway, was financed by the Jane Delano Post, No. 6, American Legion. The Red Cross furnished the classroom and transportation.

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

ROBERT F. SISK, always with a ready pen in his hand when it comes to dashing off news about the Theater Guild, announces the purchase by that organization of two new plays by American authors. The first is by Dan Toteroh, who gave up acting for playwrighting and literature in general, having produced a novel or two. Mr. Toteroh's new play is called "Distant Drums," and has to do with the conquest of the American continent. The other play is "Conjur," by Margaret Freeman; a play about Negroes.

"FIRST time seen in Washington" is a slogan of which the National Theater Players are rather proud—when they have the opportunity to revive a play never produced on a local stage. It doesn't happen often, of course, that a stock company has a chance to put on a Broadway success that Washington hasn't seen; for in its hey-dey—later transcribed to hey-hey—this old town saw them all. However, George Tyler's splendid production, "Your Uncle Dudley," never got to the banks of the Potomac—one of the first Tyler productions, by the bye, that neglected the Nation's Capital. Anyway, it will be here next week, with Walter Gilbert playing the title role.

ALL lovers of Shakespeare will mourn the death of Henry Clay Folger, whose generosity makes possible the establishment in Washington of what Henry D. Fruit, of the Shakespeare Society, fittingly terms, "the world's richest intellectual heritage"—that wonderful memorial library now in course of construction back of the Congressional. Mr. Folger, worth millions, was the owner of what is undoubtedly the finest collection of Shakespeareana in the world. In a little while it will be at the disposal of American students.

SINCE Washington has the honor of being his birthplace, John Philip Sousa, the bandmaster and march king, came here first to play his latest contribution to a list of stirring marches known round the world—"Royal Welch Fusiliers." It was heard for the first time at a recent Gridiron dinner. Now Harry Askin, manager for Sousa, flashes the word here that the commander has accepted an invitation extended by the British government to conduct his new march upon the occasion of its presentation to the British regiment to which it is dedicated. This will take place at the regiment's thirtieth anniversary celebration of the Boxer expedition in London on June 25.

Police Arrest 15 In Gambling Raid

Paraphernalia Is Seized in T Street Building; Rum Taken in Cafe.

Gaming material and a quantity of liquor were seized by police raiders headed by Sergt. Oscar J. Letterman yesterday afternoon.

The gaming raid was in T street near Sixth street northwest, where police say they rounded up fifteen men and gaming material. They formally charged John Brown with keeping a gaming table and released fourteen others as material witnesses.

The raiders visited a restaurant in H street near First street northwest and arrested Roy B. Sarton and James D. Barry. The former was charged with sale, possession and maintaining a nuisance and the latter with sale and possession. Police say they confiscated two quarts of liquor.

TWO MEN IN CUSTODY IN KIDNAPING SCARE noticed the colored man trying to entice the girl into the automobile.

The first attempt failed, he said. Later the colored man returned and took the child away. Kramer noted the license number of the automobile which he turned over to the Alexandria police who flashed it to Washington.

Station Clerk Thomas B. McCormick at the Fourth Precinct, relayed it to McGrath at the bridge. McGrath noticed a machine coming through Potomac Park. As it passed him he saw the little girl huddled close to the colored man. Gladen ignored the command to stop and McGrath commandeered an automobile and gave chase, overtaking the automobile near the Virginia side of the bridge.

Woman Confirms His Story.

Gladen said he was taking the child home after giving her an automobile ride. Miss McCarthy bears out this story, saying that the colored man brought the child to her house and she ordered him to return it.

Gladen was taken to the Fourth Precinct. Meanwhile, Sergt. Lawrence Padgett, of Alexandria, arrested Hays near the Herbert home. H eis being held for investigation. Excitement ran high in the neighborhood and a large crowd gathered in front of the place. Fearing violence, the police have put additional men on the force.

Hays, according to Alexandria police, claims to be a close relative of Miss McCarthy. Although Miss McCrathy says she loaned the car to a young man named "Clint." Gladen also referred to Hays as "Clint."

Negro Sticks to Story.

Detective Sergt. Edgar Simms, Detective George W. Welker and Sergt. Padgett questioned Gladen last night but he insisted that he was only taking the child for a ride. They could discover no motive for the act and intend to question him further today. The child was unharmed.

When Mrs. Herbert first missed the child she was told by Frances Fitzgerald, 7 years old, who lives in the same house, that a colored man had given her a nickel and had driven her away.

Detective Sergts. Clarence Talley and Harry Coles questioned Gladen at the Fourth Precinct and he told them substantially the same story he repeated to the Alexandria police.

Meanwhile, Virginia, at the Fourth Precinct Station, was enjoying herself. In the short time that she was there her pockets were filled with change. Bare footed and dressed in red rompers, she climbed all around the place.

So well did she enjoy her stay that when a woman came for her to take her to the House of Detention she objected so strenuously that the police matron decided to leave her at the precinct.

Dry Officer Goes Free After Killing Man

Savannah, Ga., June 12 (A.P.).—William Frazier, 38-year-old Negro, was shot and killed here today by Prohibition Officer Owen C. Strickland. Strickland said he shot the Negro as he resisted arrest after fleeing from a liquor-laden automobile.

The coroner said he found a loaded pistol in Frazier's hand. Strickland later was freed at an inquest, the coroner's jury holding that he shot in self-defense.

Pimples in Blotches Disfigured Face. Healed by Cuticura.

"My face was affected with pimples that were in blotches. They were hard and red, and itched and burned. The pimples festered and scaled over, and later formed sore eruptions that disfigured my face. The trouble lasted about six weeks.

"I tried several remedies without success. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and purchased some. After ten days' treatment I was better, and after using three cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." Capone Breakfast Champagne Feast

Chicagoan's $1,000 Gift to Miami's Community Chest Returned.

Miami, Fla., June 12 (A.P.).—The story of a champagne breakfast at the home of "Scarface" Al Capone, and of the Chicago racketeer's attempt to gain entrance to Miami society, and of the return of his gift of $1,000 to the Miami Community Chest was brought into the hearing on padlock proceedings against the gangster's Miami Beach home in Circuit Court here today.

The story was told by R. B. Burdine, Miami department store owner, who declined to tell of the champagne incident until he was ordered to describe it by Circuit Judge Paul D. Barns. Under authority of the judge, Burdine launched into a long account.

Other witnesses came before the court, generally to testify that the reputations of Capone and his residence were bad. S. D. McCreary, director of public safety for Miami, went further and said the reputations were "terrible."

"YOU START FIRST."

There was recently held in England a free trade conference "to discuss various aspects of free trade and to give expression to free trade doctrine in the terms of 1930 conditions, and thus effectively to counteract the insidious attacks on free trade under their newest disguise as empire free trade." It is significant that the most rabid free trader invariably espouses tariff protection in one guise or another as a necessity of economic prosperity. Lord Lothian, for example, told the conference that "the astounding prosperity of the United States was due to the fact that it was the largest free trade area in the world." This is an indirect tribute to the value of the tariff wall with which the United States has surrounded herself. He said further that the economic system would be improved if "the world were divided into five or six moderately protected 'zollvereins,' each balanced in the sense that it had its own manufacturing, raw material and agricultural production." This is pure advocacy of the principle of protection.

During the conference, Sir Alan Anderson said that the nations met at Geneva and talked about abolishing trade barriers, and then went away and said to each other, "You start first." The conference of the international chambers of commerce, he added, "had come to the conclusion that there were too many nations with trade barriers." Actually, there are more than 70 nations having high protective tariff walls, and 90 per cent of these tariffs are higher than the existing American tariff or the tariff that would be imposed under the bill scheduled to be voted upon by the Senate this afternoon.

No nation is willing to take the initiative in tearing down a tariff wall. What, then, of the bugaboo of "foreign retaliation" which the opposition has raised in a last-minute effort to cause the defeat of the Smoot-Hawley bill?

Every time the tariff has been changed, the nations have threatened retaliation. But the United States continues to be the outstanding merchant to the world. The explanation is that American goods, manufactured by well-paid workmen in factories that are mechanical marvels, are better and cheaper than the goods of other nations, manufactured by poorly paid workmen using antiquated methods. The public, everywhere, buys what it considers the best product for the money. So long as American factories turn out superior products, reasonably priced, there is no reason to fear that they will not command purchasers.

With 90 per cent of the foreign tariffs already higher than the American, it should be obvious that retaliatory measures already are in effect. They have not harmed American industry. The bugaboo of retaliation should not influence the voting in the Senate this afternoon.

THE SUN AND THE WEATHER.

The Smithsonian Institution vouches for the statement just issued from its editorial rooms that the "weather from day to day is not a haphazard occurrence, as many people believe, but is subject to calculation." The institution assures us that these calculations will be made with increasing accuracy in the future, for weeks and perhaps months in advance. There is, however, an "if" attached to the promise, for the pamphlet adds: "If the conclusions presented are verified and accepted by other research workers, it will mean a revolution in present methods of forecasting."

H. H. Clayton, author of the pamphlet, foresees that the forecasting of pressure and temperature will be made in much the same way that ocean tides are now predicted, except that the periods used will be solar periods rather than lunar periods, and will have to be treated in a special way owing to changes in phase and amplitude.

Mr. Clayton gives a synopsis of the results of twenty years of his researches in the pamphlet of 49 pages. He has been aided materially by the reports from the stations maintained by the Smithsonian in Africa and Chile for the observation of the radiation of the sun's heat.

It will be a cause of extreme satisfaction alike to the baseball fan and the farmer, the aviator and the navigator, to know that Mr. Clayton has demonstrated the value of the method he employs in forecasting. In November last he made a quantitative forecast of pressure at Chicago for 27 days in advance, and the "correlation of the forecast with the observed pressure was 64 per cent." He also computed weather maps for the United States, showing pressure distribution for a week in advance and, according to his report, just about hit the nail on the head, as the "forecast maps bear a close resemblance to the observed maps."

For centuries the queen of the heavens has been depended upon by the mariner who is interested in tidal movements, and 99 per cent of the old-time farmers were guided in their sowing, and even in the weaning of their pigs, by the position of Luna. It has remained for the Smithsonian Institution to turn to Old Sol for advance news of what may be expected in the way of weather.

WHO RESPECTS THE LAW?

The conferees on the District bill can not agree upon the sum which the United States should contribute toward the cost of governing the District of Columbia. The House conferees insist that $9,000,000 is a liberal contribution. The Senate conferees support the Senate's amendment, which increases the contribution to $12,000,000. A law provides that the United States shall contribute 40 per cent. If the law were observed by Congress the Federal contribution would be more than either the House or Senate proposes to appropriate.

But who has any respect for law?

FARM BOYS AND GIRLS.

Three years ago the Department of Agriculture arranged to bring a couple of hundred young farmers and farm lassies to see for themselves just what the department means in the life of rural America. The boys and girls were all members of 4-H Clubs and came from nearly every State of the Union. A year later the pilgrimage was repeated, and last year again there descended upon the National Capital two boys and two girls from each State that is sufficiently interested in its agricultural future to maintain these clubs.

The fourth visit will occur on June 18. The young visitors will be quartered, fed and entertained "al fresco," with day trips to the Arlington Experimental Farm and to that at Beltsville, Md. The former is attractive to the grower of grains, fruits and vegetables, while the Maryland place is noted for its live stock and chickens. The chickens especially attractive because that Beltsville manager will have piles of the choicest Maryland product fried and ready for distribution and consumption.

At the assemblies each morning the visitors will have an opportunity to listen to the Secretary of Agriculture, the Secretary of the Interior, and other men of prominence. But it is not to be a wholly technical visit. The boys and girls will be taken on sight-seeing trips to Mount Vernon, the Soldiers Home, and all the other interesting points in and around Washington, and in the evenings there will be camp fires and entertainments of various sorts.

The prime object of the pilgrimage is to provide opportunity for representative rural young people from all the States to study the work and facilities of the Department of Agriculture, to see other divisions of their government at first hand, and to consult on means for promoting extension work among young people on the farms. Former meetings have proved of inestimable benefit in the home districts of the pilgrims, and there is every reason to believe that the gathering of 1930 will have like results.

COST OF CITY GOVERNMENTS.

The constantly increasing cost of municipal government was the subject of discussion at the recent session of the New York State conference of mayors and municipal officials in Utica this week. The mayor of White Plains, Mr. McLaughlin, who is president of the association, called attention to the fact that during the past ten years the cost of government in 57 cities of the State has increased 210 per cent. This increase is more notable in the smaller cities than in the more populous municipalities like Buffalo, Rochester and New York.

"We are now spending more for betterment than for service," said Mr. McLaughlin, "which is the exact reverse of conditions ten years ago, in 1918." The corporate debt of the cities is growing more rapidly than the corporate value of the properties upon which that debt is based, for while the total assessed value has grown only 112 per cent, the funded debts has increased 140 per cent. The per capita cost of maintaining the governments of cities of the Empire State has increased 166 per cent in ten years.

It is probable that statistics of the cost of running the machinery of government in all the other States, if available, would show very large increases in such costs during the last decade. Improved roadways, public buildings, especially school buildings, increases in salaries and wages for all public employes account for a very large proportion of these increases. There is no indication anywhere of a lessening of such payments, either for services or improvements.

When Congress appropriated $1,000,000,000 for the maintenance of the Federal Government Speaker Reed remarked that "this is a billion dollar country." There are several billion dollar cities within the borders of the United States today. Billions in 1930 mean little more than millions meant in 1896, so far as public expenditures are concerned.

CRIMINAL CARELESSNESS.

During the spring months Maryland lost more than $250,000 from forest fires, which burned over 60,000 acres of timber. In Virginia forest fires destroyed many homes and farm buildings besides scores of head of live stock and thousands of nesting game birds. The American Forestry Association reports that all along the Atlantic Coast forest fires raged throughout the spring to a greater extent than was ever before recorded. "These fires have rendered hundreds of persons homeless and jobless," says a bulletin of the association, "besides burning over hundreds of thousands of acres of forest land, valuable in timber and as recreational areas, and have destroyed wild life of the woods."

On one day, May 4, more forest was burned in Connecticut than during the entire year 1929.

Throughout the New England States, New York and New Jersey, as well as in Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina, careless smokers are held responsible for more than 50 per cent of the damage, while brush burners, railroads, campers and miscellaneous causes, such as burning buildings, chimney fires, children playing with matches, lightning and incendiaries are other causes which have made the fires this spring the worst in years.

It may become necessary to require motorists, campers and fishermen to take out licenses to enter any woodland territory and compel them to "check in and check out," in order to prevent fires. This plan would necessitate the employment of an army of inspectors and guards, but the cost of such a force during the camping and fishing season would be insignificant compared with the damage done during this one season of 1930. So great is the menace that Gov. Roosevelt of New York issued a proclamation forbidding persons going into the Adirondacks and Catskills for any purpose other than necessary work. The Governor of Rhode Island proclaimed the fishing and hunting season closed, and the Governor of New Hampshire restricted entry into the woodlands of that State.

CHAIN STORES, 56,674.

The Federal Trade Commission is endeavoring to ascertain just how far the retail business of the country has fallen into the hands of "chain stores." Thus far 1,060 of these organizations have reported to the commission, revealing that the syndicates, corporations and individuals owning the chains operate 56,674 stores. While all the schedules sent out by the commission have not been returned, those which have been received include practically all the large systems.

The extent of the control of retail merchandising and the wide range of business covered by these chains can be gathered from the reports, which show that 262 chains operate 38,421 stores devoted to the sale of meats and groceries; 145 chains operate 4,213 shoe stores; 119 control and conduct 2,329 general department and dry goods establishments; 263 conduct 2,369 clothing stores; 72 chains handle the business of 3,594 variety stores; 23 others have 141 stores in which furniture and musical instruments are sold; 33 other chains operate 265 hardware, lumber and implement stores. Tobacco chains, while fewest in number—there are only 15 of them—appear to be spread over more territory, proportionately, than any of the other combinations. The tobacco chains operate 3,328 stores, while the 24 candy companies sell "sweets to the sweet" in 460 places.

A Georgia court rules that it's the wife's duty when motoring with her husband to warn him of the approach of other vehicles. As if such a ruling were necessary!

Representative Griffin says that the House should be given treaty-making authority. But the House can't even make a peace treaty among its membership.

SECRET TREATY PAPERS

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Today's editorial in The Post, entitled, "Naval Treaty Papers," proceeds on the theory that the "President is right" in withholding the contemporaneous memoranda and secret documents from the Senate, unless the Senate agrees to withhold these secrets from the American people whose vital interests are affected by the treaty. In substantiation of this position, Washington's admonition to "observe good faith with all nations" is cited to show that the President's action will preserve the "rule of good faith in international dealings."

It is difficult to follow this reasoning. What the American people demand of their officers is "good faith" in the conduct of their officers toward the American people.

Washington's advice to observe good faith in the performance of our agreements with all nations is nothing but the fundamental and necessary law of international association that has been observed by civilized states from time immemorial. It has no reference whatever to the secret contemporaneous notes and interpretative exchanges between the diplomatic agents of sovereign states thought necessary by the negotiators themselves to prevent misunderstanding and possible bloodshed.

Considering that it is the people who possess the sovereign power in this country; that they have delegated to their President and Senate the law-making power of making treaties; that "the good of the people is the supreme law" implied in the exercise of this power, can it be possible that the "good faith" subsisting between the President and Senate and the people implies that the sovereign people can not be trusted with a complete understanding of a contract that may affect the liberty, lives and property of every man, woman and child in the United States? Is this treaty so bad that its real meaning, as disclosed by these secret documents, is a betrayal of our most sacred rights?

If Mr. Stimson will consult any of the clerks in the Bureau of Diplomacy of his department, they will tell him that the Supreme Court has frequently decided that such "secret" documents and contemporaneous declarations of negotiators of treaties are always resorted to to determine the general object, the particular sense or the exact purpose of language employed which is either ambiguous or liable to contrary interpretations—which destroy the element of mutuality or common agreement that so often has provoked long and bloody wars. The case of Brawley vs. United States, 96 U. S., 168,-173, which covers this point, is known to all lawyers.

Foreign diplomats are assumed to know this law; for even in diplomacy "Ignorance of the law is no excuse" for a foreign diplomat to insult the whole American people by secretly corrupting the minds of our agents. What is more insulting to a sovereign than to be told by another sovereign that he will confide a secret to an agent he would not presume to whisper to the agent's sovereign. Such etiquette is very unusual.

Since 1648, there have been 150 general treaties of peace—one for every two years—to end wars brought about by the secret side-notes of the peacemakers. We want to know if there are any of these side-notes slipped into this treaty. O. N. F.

New York World: We still wonder why new commodities, especially in this age of indorsements, are not reviewed just as new books and new plays are. What does an old shaver, unbribable, think of the new Gillette blades? What do the writers who use this or that fountain pen or typewriter think of it? Most men have tried many brands of razors; many motorists have owned or driven more than one brand of motor car. Why not a review of a new car instead of a statement by the president of the company to the effect that the current model attains perfection at last?

More Than Climate Needed.

Chicago News: Los Angeles has numerous elements of growth besides climate and passionate real estate salesmen. Among them, of course, is its amazing motion picture industry. Annexation of numerous fast-growing suburbs willing to sacrifice their independence in return for the benefits of the city's remarkable water system accounts for a fair share of the increased total. In addition to those attractions Los Angeles has developed a splendid ocean port and a domestic and foreign trade which energetic and progressive business men seek constantly to enlarge. Indeed, Los Angeles has developed the booster business to unprecedented heights.

THE EASY JOB.

It doesn't take brains
And it doesn't take grit,
It doesn't take pains
Or original wit.
If it's not teasy
There's nothing to it,
If the job's easy
Dullards can do it.

It doesn't take thought
And it doesn't take time,
If it's easily wrought
It is sold for a dime.
If unimpeded
You placidly view it,
Skill isn't needed
A dullard can do it.

So you, though you sigh
As a hard task you meet
It's the odds you defy
That make victory sweet.
It's the dreary up-hilling
And doubt till it's ended
That make the task thrilling
And makes the prize splendid.

If to succeed
Doesn't call for your best
If in the deed
Of your strength there's no test,
If care isn't present
And grief added to it,
The task is too pleasant
And dullards can do it.

To Control a Horse You Must Control Its Mind and Let It Control the Legs.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE greatest force in the world is the opposite of force.

It is passive resistance—resisting an opponent by doing nothing at all.

Does that seem absurd to you?

It has seemed absurd to unthinking men for 2,000 years, but at intervals a wise man teaches it again, and those who have the wit to learn find themselves unconquerable.

Jesus taught it, and the world called him a visionary—an impractical dreamer.

Tolstoy taught it and the world laughed.

Gandhi taught it—and for a time his teaching threatened to deprive Britain of an empire.

There were 300,000,000 natives of India under control of a corporal's guard of Englishmen—an ignorant, untrained, unwieldy mass directed by an efficient machine.

Gandhi taught the mass to resist—to stand still and do nothing—to refuse all civil cooperation—and the English were helpless.

Passive resistance had the victory almost won, and then some of Gandhi's too zealous followers foolishly trusted to violence.

That was playing Britain's game. It was military rebellion and invited violent suppression. A little rifle fire, a little butchery and the English were masters again.

That happened some years ago. This time Gandhi failed more quickly because his followers more quickly lost patience and became violent.

If all of India should unite in ignoring all things alien no power on earth could move her.

The people might be slaughtered in droves—imprisoned until the jails were filled to the limit—and yet the inert, impassive, stubborn millions would remain unconquered and unconquerable.

If you want an illustration nearer home observe the universal violation of law.

The millions who refuse to obey are not violent.

They do not, except in rare cases, oppose force with force.

They simply ignore the law, and though the prisons are crowded to overflowing and new arrests are made each hour, the Government is helpless.

Without cooperation government can not exist.

If all of the people should refuse to pay taxes no power could collect them.

If all men should refuse to register for military service no power could coerce them.

When any group sufficiently large decides to ignore authority at any cost its triumph is certain.

And that same passive resistance—refusing to fight and yet stubbornly determined to have its own way—will triumph wherever there is controversy.

You can shoot an elephant, but you can't make it do tricks if it decides to loaf.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

PRINCESS HELEN BREAKS THE NEWS TO MICHAEL.

(Michael, the boy king, has not yet heard of his father's being proclaimed monarch and is, with a very bored manner, planning on the usual court routine.)

Michael—What time do I have to review soldiers today, mommer?

Helen—You won't have to review any today, son.

Michael (very much surprised and pleased)—Goody! Goody! I won't have to get all dressed up till tomorrow then, will I?

Helen—You won't have to review any troops tomorrow either, Michael, or any other day for a long, long time.

Michael (incredulously) — Because why, mommer?

Helen—Because your father is king now.

Michael—How can daddy and I both be king?

Helen—You can't. You're not king any more, because daddy has come home.

Michael—Is daddy going to stay home all the time, or will I have to be king again once in a while?

Helen (with a flickering smile)—I don't know about that, Michael.

Michael—But daddy is going to stay a long time this time, isn't he?

Helen—Very likely.

Michael—And as long as he stays king I won't have to get all dressed up so much and ride around in so many big open hacks and stand still while so many soldiers march by?

Helen—No, my son.

Michael—And I won't have to wear funny hats and carry white gloves any more?

Helen—Not any more, Michael.

Michael—And I won't have to spend whole days saluting?

Helen—No; no more.

Michael (sympathetically)—And will daddy have to review all the soldiers, and go around all dressed up all the time and ride in big, rattly hacks 'nd everything now?

Helen—Yes, Michael.

Michael—And have to smile at everybody everywhere whether he knows 'em or not?

Helen—Yes, my son.

Michael—And will he have to be surrounded all the time by all those funny-looking men with long, black whiskers?

Helen—I'm afraid so, Michael.

(Here tears come to the boy king's eyes. His mother picks him up and holds him on her lap.)

Helen—Why, Michael, what are you crying for? You shouldn't mind not being king any more.

Michael (quite flatly)—I don't mind not being king. I'm just awfully sorry daddy won't never have any more fun!

ANOTHER EINSTEIN THEORY.

Prof. Einstein now says that space has turned around and is eating up matter. Maybe he's been caught in traffic on a Sunday auto trip.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Wilson Hinted at a Mediation Body to Reconcile President and Congress.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am quoting from "Congressional Government," by the late Woodrow Wilson. In the first part of the last chapter, entitled "Conclusion," Wilson says: "The cure for this state of things (the Commons and the King were at loggerheads) which Sundaeland had the sagacity to suggest, and William the wisdom to apply, was the mediation between King and Commons of a cabinet representative of the majority of the popular chamber, a first but long and decisive step toward responsible cabinet government. Whether a similar remedy would be possible or desirable in our own case it is altogether aside from my present purpose to inquire. I am pointing out facts, diagnosing, not prescribing, remedies. My only point just now is, that no one can help being struck by the closeness of the likeness between the incipient distempers of the first parliaments of William and Mary and the developed disorders now so plainly discernible in the constitution of Congress. Though honest and diligent, it is meddlesome and inefficient, because it is without the guidance of recognized leaders, without adequate information, and destitute of that organization out of which alone a definite policy can come."

The next several paragraphs are prophetic, and the remainder of the chapter directly and incisively critical; however, he does not suggest definite changes which should be made in order to correct the defects he sees in the political machinery.

It would have been a most valuable contribution to the science of government had the late President of the United States, after eight strenuous years in one of the three most critical periods in our national history, added a final chapter to this admirable work, in which the "remedy" could have been presented. Even so, the editors of papers, members of Congress, and the wise men at the crossroads might, with great profit, re-read the chapter headed "Conclusion." GROVER W. AYERS.

Deny Drivers' Permits to Diplomats. Exchange Detectives With Other Cities—Do Away With Signs—Provide a National Civil Cemetery and Plenty of Swimming Pools.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It would be a splendid thing if all diplomats and their staffs owning automobiles should be required to employ only American chauffeurs and themselves be forbidden to operate cars on the streets of Washington. If such diplomats and their official families were refused drivers' permits and required to employ American citizens, who could easily be held responsible for violation of the traffic laws, there would be fewer accidents here each year, and certainly less reckless driving. No diplomat, immune from the laws of this country, should be permitted to operate his own car anywhere in this country.

It would be a good idea if an exchange of detectives, policemen and traffic directors were effected between the Washington, New York and Chicago police departments. An interchange of experience and ideas would be most helpful.

All prohibitory signs should be done away with. Who owns the streets, anyway? Who owns the parks, the rivers, the public buildings, &c.? If, in France or England, any one should have the temerity to place a "Keep-off-the-grass" sign around a public park or building there would be a riot.

There should be created a Federal civil cemetery for those who have served the country in a civil capacity. Have a section reserved for members of Congress and make it plenty big—the places originally reserved for them in Congressional Cemetery are occupied.

If "Our Darling Willie" could have gone to any one of a dozen or more municipal swimming pools, instead of having been obliged to disport in the Potomac, the Eastern Branch or the canal, there would be less populous cemeteries. Let's have plenty of swimming pools. EMMETT JOHN.

Chicago Can Put a Stop to Gang Warfare and Murder by Running Down and Hanging Gunmen.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the Chicago Tribune of June 11 there appeared an editorial, "The Challenge," which was written as the result of the death of Alfred J. Lingle, a reporter of the Tribune, who was murdered last Monday. The editorial reads, in part, as follows:

"The meaning of this murder is plain. It was committed in reprisal and in attempt at intimidation. What made Lingle valuable to his newspaper marked him as dangerous to the killers. It was very foolish ever to think that assassination would be confined to the gangs which have fought each other for the profits of crime in Chicago. The immunity from punishment after gang murders would be assumed to cover the committing of others. The challenge of crime to the community must be accepted. It has been given with bravado. It is accepted, and we will see what the consequences are to be. Justice will make a fight or it will abdicate."

Gangsters have ruled Chicago long enough, and now it is time for these assassins to be put out of the picture. No steps were taken to apprehend the murderers when killings were confined within their ranks, as it was thought that a dead gangster was better than a live one. Now that the killers are striking down citizens, the gangs must be eliminated by wholesale.

Chicago is mightier than this gang of murderers. Let the people of Chicago put the fear of God into gangland by running down and hanging notorious gunmen. ALFRED SANDBOY.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Dr. Prestes Is Guest at White House

Brazil's President-elect Entertained by Mr. Hoover.

By JEAN ELIOT.

As a brilliant climax to a day crowded with varied and interesting activities, Dr. Julio Prestes, President-elect of Brazil, was entertained at dinner last night by President Hoover. Mrs. Hoover is convalescing from her recent illness in the President's camp on the Rapidan and there are no ladies in Dr. Prestes' party, so only men were invited to meet the President-elect of Brazil.

The absence of the ladies detracted somewhat from the colorful aspects of the fete, but it was marked by considerable picturesque ceremonial. The White House drawing rooms were decked with early summer flowers, the Marine Band played through the evening, and the entire group of White House aids, brave in full dress uniform, was on duty.

Vice President Curtis headed the group of distinguished officials asked to meet the President-elect and the only absentees from the Cabinet group were the Secretary of War, Mr. Hurley, who is at West Point for commencement exercises at the Military Academy, and the Secretary of Labor, Mr. Davis, also out of town.

The Ambassador of Brazil, Senhor S. Gurgel do Amaral, was present, with members of Dr. Prestes' suite and the staff of the Brazilian Embassy. Representatives of the Senate and the House, State Department officials and a distinguished group of publicists were also included.

The table, with its beautiful golden service, was decorated with pink roses, hollyhocks and maiden hair fern.

The list of guests included:

The Vice President.

The President-elect of Brazil, Dr. Prestes.

The Ambassador of Brazil, Senhor do Amaral.

The Secretary of State, Mr. Henry L. Stimson.

Senator Irineu Machado.

Rear Admiral Heraclito Belfort.

Senhor Fernando Prestes.

Senhor Cyro de Freitas Valle.

Senhor Jose Cochrane de Alencar.

Senhor Decio de Houra.

Senhor Lazary Guedes.

Dr. Jose Martins Fontes.

The Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Andrew W. Mellon.

The Attorney General, Mr. William DeWitt Mitchell.

The Postmaster General, Mr. Walter F. Brown.

The Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Charles Frances Adams.

The Secretary of the Interior, Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur.

The Secretary of Agriculture, Mr. Arthur M. Hyde.

The Secretary of Commerce, Mr. Robert Patterson Lamont.

Senator Claude A. Swanson.

Senator James E. Watson.

Representative John Q. Tilson.

Representative John N. Garner.

Representative J. Charles Linthicum.

Representative Henry W. Temple.

Mr. Ogden L. Mill, Undersecretary of the Treasury.

Mr. Thomas D. Thacher, Solicitor General.

Mr. George Akerson.

Mr. Walter H. Newton.

Mr. Francis White, Assistant Secretary of State.

Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce.

Mr. Warren D. Robbins, United States Minister to El Salvador.

Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director general of the Pan-American Union.

Mr. Paulo Coelho de Almeida.

Senhor Mauro de Freitas.

Commander Jose do Couto Aguirre.

Dr. Dana C. Munro.

Mr. George Barr Baker.

Mr. Ira E. Bennett.

Mr. William P. MacCracken, jr.

Mr. Edward B. McLean.

Mr. Frank C. Munson.

Mr. Frank B. Noyes.

Mr. Frank C. Page.

Mr. W. M. Ritter.

Mr. Nicholas J. Whelan.

Mr. Clarence M. Woolley.

Capt. Charles R. Train.

Commander Augustin T. Beauregard.

Lieut. Col. Charles B. Moore.

Dr. Joel T. Boone.

Capt. Allen Buchanan.

Col. Campbell B. Hodges.

Capt. Train is shortly to succeed Capt. Buchanan as naval aid to the President.

The Brazilian Ambassador entertained at luncheon yesterday at the embassy for Dr. Prestes, his guests including members of the Brazilian colony in Washington.

While the President-elect of Brazil, who is the guest of the Nation, is staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meyer in Crescent place, members of his suite are quartered at the Mayflower. In this group are Admiral Belfort and his aid, Lieut. Alberto L. Martins, Capt. T. R. Moreas Rego, Capt. Mario de O. Sampaio, Lieut. Flavio de Medeiros and Lieut. Mario P. de Oliviera. The Brazilian consul to Baltimore, Dr. Vincio da Veiga, has joined the Brazilian visitors for the duration of their stay here.

Senator Irineu de Mello Machado and his wife, the former Mlle. Jeanne de Ardoff, of Paris, with whom he visited Washington shortly after their marriage last spring, are also at the Mayflower for a few days. They will return to South America the end of the month.

Senator Machado served his country for about twenty years in the House of Representatives preceding his present position, which he has held for the last fifteen years. He is also professor of industrial law at the University of Rio de Janeiro.

He did not accompany the official party of President-elect Prestes, but arrived in New York on Tuesday evening.

The Italian Ambassador and Nobil Donna Antonietta de Martino left town yesterday for New York, whence Mme de Martino will sail tomorrow for Italy. The ambassador will return to Washington on Sunday.

Cuban Envoy to Sail For Europe Saturday.

The Cuban Ambassador and Senora de Ferrara have gone to New York and will sail tomorrow for Naples whence they will go to Geneva to remain several weeks. Senor de Ferara is Cuban delegate to the League of Nation's assembly.

The Belgian Ambassador and Princess de Ligne and their little family will go next week to the cottage they have leased near Annapolis. The Ambassador and his family returned to the Capital Sunday evening, after spending a short time in Belgium.

Dr. Olaya Will Speak On Radio Sunday.

Dr. Enrique Olaya, President-elect of Colombia and for eight years the Minister from that South American nation to the United States, will speak Sunday afternoon in the weekly Conclave of Nations program over the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Mr. Charles Stephenson Smith, chief of foreign service for the Associated Press, will introduce the diplomat. Mr. Smith has covered news stories in all parts of the globe. He recently returned from a tour of South and Central America, where he inspected bureaus maintained by the Associated Press in tha area.

Dr. Olaya expects to leave town next week and will sail on June 25 for Colombia.

Baron and Baroness van der Elst sailed yesterday for their home in Belgium after a brief visit to this country. They came for the wedding of the latter's sister, Miss Caroline Roebling and Mr. Alexander Hagner.

formerly Miss Olga Crandall. Her marriage took place last evening. Mrs. Burch is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Crandall.

Chevy Chase Nuptials Are Pretty Rites

Miss Rachel Willson Is Married to Mr. F. H. Myers.

A picturesque wedding took place yesterday in All Saints' Episcopal Church in Chevy Chase, when Miss Rachel Carter Willson, daughter of Mrs. Charles Gilpin Willson and the late Mr. Willson, was married to Mr. Frank Hammett Myers, son of Mrs. William R. Myers and the late Mr. Myers, of Charlotte, N. C., and Washington.

The ceremony was performed last evening at 8 o'clock by Bishop Henry J. Mikell, of Atlanta, Ga., assisted by the Rev. Dr. Henry Teller Cocke, rector of the church. Bishop Mikell is national president of the Kappa Alpha Fraternity, of which the bridegroom is province commander.

The church was decorated with pink peonies and gladioli. On the altar were silver vases filled with the same flowers against a background of ferns and palms banked on either side of the chancel. Standards of peonies and gladioli marked the pews.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Robert P. Hains, of Boston. She wore a gown of ivory satin fashioned on princess lines and trimmed with rose point lace. A long train of satin fell from the waist with another train of tulle falling from the shoulders. She wore a lace veil, which had been brought from China, fashioned in a cap and caught on either side with orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Frank E. Laimbeer, a cousin of the bride from Garden City, Long Island, was matron of honor, and Miss Dorothy Bradford was maid of honor. Both wore gowns of turquoise blue lace combined with chiffon and long blue silk mitts. They carried pink roses tied with blue tulle.

The bridesmaids were Miss Elsie Talbert, Miss Gladys Crump, Miss Mildred Bursley and Miss Convere McAden, a cousin of the bridegroom, from Charlotte, N. C. They were dressed alike in pink lace frocks with tulle insertions and wore pink silk mits. They carried pink peonies tied with blue tulle.

The best man was Mr. Joseph McPherson, of Miami, Fla., and the ushers were Mr. James Carson, of Charlotte, N. C.; Mr. Frank Burke, of Louisville, Ky.; Mr. Adrian Massie, of New York; Mr. Eugene Yount, of Williamsport, Pa.; Mr. Henry Muir and Mr. Lea Gilpin Willson, brother of the bridegroom.

A reception was held at the Columbia County Club for relatives and a few close friends, after which there was dancing. Mr. and Mrs. Myers left for a wedding trip later, the bride wearing a navy-blue crepe ensemble with a small hat to match. After the wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Myers will make their home at 3754 McKinley street, Chevy Chase, D. C.

Among out-of-town guests for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Hains, of Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Johnson, of Binghamton, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Willson, of Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dickman, of Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. Henry McAden, of Charlotte, N. C.; Mr. and Mrs. James Carson, of Charlotte, N. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Francis Forsythe, of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Willson, of Waynesboro, Pa.; Commander and Mrs. Paul W. Hains, of Jamestown, R. I.; Dr. and Mrs. Alfred Eastman, of Newark, Del.; Mr. and Mrs. Richard K. LeBlonde, of Cincinnati.

Mrs. George J. Burke, of Indianapolis, Ind., and her son are guests of Mrs. Burke's aunt, Mrs. Elizabeth Northrop, of the Wardman Park Hotel, and her sister, Mrs. Grace Smythe, of Columbia road. Mrs. Burke is being much entertained during her visit here.

Dr. and Mrs. Edward A. Campbell, of Southern Pines, N. C., are in Washington, for a short stay and are guests at the Dodge Hotel.

Mrs. A. Geary Johnson and her son, Mr. A. Geary Johnson, jr., have taken a cottage at Hyannisport, Cape Cod, Mass., for the summer and will start today by motor for New England.

Miss Carter Is Married to Mr. Johnston

Many Washingtonians at Nuptials Held in Warrenton.

A large group of Washingtonians motored to Warrenton, Va., to attend the marriage yesterday of Miss Frances Scott Carter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Carter, to Mr. Robert Guthrie Johnston, son of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Robert Johnston, of Washington. The ceremony in St. James Church was performed by the bridegroom's father, who is rector of St. John's Church, Washington, and who was assisted by the Rev. Paul Bowden, rector of St. James. Mr. Randolph Hicks, of New York, the bride's uncle, gave her in marriage.

The bride wore a gown of white satin trimmed with beautiful old rose point lace, with a veil of tulle, and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. Miss Virginia Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Waddy B. Wood, of Washington, was maid of honor, wearing a gown of pale blue chiffon, a rose pink picture hat and carrying roses and delphinium. The two little flower girls, Miss Isabelle Hilliary and Miss Rice Barrett, were in pink organdie frocks and carried baskets of early summer flowers. The church was decorated in pink roses and delphinium, carrying out the colors worn by the bride's attendants.

Mr. Larry Mather, of Montreal, was best man and the group of ushers included Mr. Patrick Robinson, Mr. Harrison Colfelt and Mr. Brinton Colfelt, of Philadelphia; Mr. Randolph Carter and Mr. Ian Montgomery, of Warrenton; Mr. Harris Kirk, of Baltimore, and Mr. Robert Hinckley, of Washington.

A reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony. A group of pretty girls, friends of Miss Carter, assisted. They were Miss Janet Ball, daughter of Mrs. Henry Winfield Watson, of Washington; Miss Edith Nesbit, Miss Julia Keith, Miss Mary King, Miss Dorothy Montgomery and Miss Hilda Hordun, of Warrenton; Miss Louise Randolph, of Washington, and Miss Sally Appleton, of Warrenton.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Hicks, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Keith, of Fairfax, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Brinton Colfelt, of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Morrison, of Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dove, Mrs. Helberg, Dr. Buckner Randolph, jr., and Mrs. Maurice Pilson and Miss Margaret Pilson, of Washington.

When Mr. Johnston and his bride left for their wedding trip Mrs. Johnston wore a blue ensemble with a white blouse and a blue hat. On their return they will make their home in Washington. The bride is a granddaughter of Dr. Robert I. Hicks and on her father's side is a descendant of the Carters, of Shirley.

Mr. Paul Mayo, finance of Miss Katherine Sutherland, and Mr. George Marshall will entertain at supper on June 28 at the Club Chantecler, and George Gershwin, famous composer, will come from New York to attend the party. Other New Yorkers who will attend are Miss Marjorie Oelrichs and Mr. Jack Warburton. Mr. James Cromwell, son of Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury, will also come to Washington for the party.

Miss Sutherland will have as her only attendant in her wedding on June 30 Mrs. Jules Glaenzer, of New York. Mrs. Glaenzer was before her marriage several years ago, Miss Kendall Lee, of Washington.

In Bridesmaid's Role

Harris & Ewing.

MISS VIVIAN VESTAL, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Albert H. Vestal. She was bridesmaid at the marriage of Miss Ruth Williams, daughter of Judge Thomas S. Williams, of the Court of Claims, and Mrs. Paul William Hansen.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Kenny, Jr., To Sail for Bermuda.

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Kenny, jr., who eloped several days ago, will sail tomorrow for a brief honeymoon in Bermuda. Mrs Kenny was formerly Miss Adelaide Bride, of Washington.

They are at present in New York, where they went to see Mr. Kenny's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Kenny, of 820 Fifth avenue.

They will make their home in New York, where Mr. Kenny is employed by his father.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Tait will spend the greater part of the summer in Geneva. Mr. Tait will take a course at the Geneva School of International Studies.

Senator James Couzens has purchased the residence at 2850 Woodland drive, built a few years ago by Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Dick, of Chicago. Senator and Mrs. Couzens will remain until the end of the congressional session at 3110 Woodland drive, which they leased last autumn.

Bud to Make Society Bow Tomorrow

Miss Rion Fortescue to Be Honor Guest at Twin Oaks.

Taking a leaf from Philadelphia's book, Mrs. Granville Fortescue will present her daughter, Miss Rion Fortescue, to society in Washington tomorrow. In Philadelphia most of the debutantes are introduced at summertime garden parties, whereas in Washington it is the custom to crowd most of the festivities for the younger group into the early winter. However, Miss Fortescue will be a sophomore at Smith College next year and will not be in Washington during the early season, so her mother will present her to her friends at this time.

The tea will be given tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock in the garden of Twin Oaks, home of Miss Fortescue's grandmother, Mrs. Charles J. Bell, and Miss Fortescue will be assisted by a large group of next season's debutantes.

Mrs. Bell and Mrs. Fortescue have as guests the latter's son-in-law and daughter, Lieut. and Mrs. Thomas Massie. Lieut. Massie has been ordered to duty at the submarine school at Honolulu and he and Mrs. Massie will start on Monday on their journey to Hawaii.

A wedding of interest to Washington took place last evening, when Miss Olga Crandall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Crandall, became the bride of Dr. William Thompson Burch, son of Mrs. Edgar F. Burch, of Leesburg, Va.

The ceremony was performed at 6:30 o'clock at the Mayflower Hotel, by the Very Rev Mgr. P. G. Gavan, and was followed by a wedding supper at the home of the bride's parents for those who had attended the marriage. At 10 o'clock there was a reception to which additional guests had been invited.

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of antique satin with a long full court train. The veil of tulle fell from a cap of seed pearls and the bride carried an arm bouquet of calla lilies.

The two sisters of the bride, Mrs. LeRoy Sherman and Mrs. John Payette, were matrons of honor and wore frocks of flesh satin with long full skirts of varying shades of blue and large pink hats. They carried golden roses and delphinium.

The other attendants were Miss Ruth Babcock, of Atlantic City; Miss Augusta Horns, of Newark, N. J.; Miss Dorothy Collins, Mrs. Charles Raedler, Miss Katherine Doyle and Mrs. Earl Kennedy. They were dressed alike in frocks of blue net, with long tiered skirts and large blue hats, and carried old-fashioned bouquets of pink, blue and lavender.

The best man was Mr. Edgar F. Burch, of Chicago, brother of the bridegroom, and the ushers were Mr. LeRoy Sherman, Col. Bruce Magruder, Maj. Ben Jacobson, of Columbus, Ohio; Dr. J. B. Smith, of Bluemont, Va.; Mr. Albert Lamont, of Red Bank, N. J., and Mr. Frank Schouten, of Towson, Md. Mr. John Payette attended the best man at the altar.

After the reception Dr. and Mrs. Burch left for their wedding trip. They will spend six months in Vienna, as Dr. Burch will be doing postgraduate work in the clinics of Budapest and Vienna.

On their return they will make their home in Alexandria, Va.

The Ambassador of Turkey, Mr. Ahmet Muhtar, will entertain at luncheon tomorrow in compliment to Mr. G. Howland Shaw, of the U. S. foreign service, who has been appointed counselor of embassy at Ankara and will leave shortly for his new post. Mme. Enver, daughter of the ambassador, who is his guest, will be hostess. Although the capital of the Turkish Republic is at Ankara, formerly known as Angora, most foreign embassies and legations maintain residences at Istanbul, the Turkish name—now official—for Constantinople.

Miss Mary Parker Corning, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Parker Corning, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wardman and their daughter, Miss Helen Wardman.

Mrs. George Barnett Leaving for France.

Mrs. George Barnett will sail for Europe on July 5 and will go to the south of France to visit her daughter, Mrs. Robert Dickey, jr., in her villa at Pau. Mrs. Barnett is at present at Wakefield Manor, her country home in Virginia, and has with her her mother, Mrs. Montague.

Mrs. Watson Freeman Clark will leave Washington today for Sandwich, Mass., where Mr. Clark and Miss Charlotte Freeman Clark will join her later.

Representative and Mrs. Richard S. Aldrich will sail today for Europe on the S. S. Homeric. They will be accompanied by Mrs. Aldrich's daughter, Miss Dora White, and the younger members of their family.

Admiral Grayson to Stay In Europe for Summer.

Accompanied by Mr. Bernard Baruch, Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson has sailed for Europe and proposes to remain abroad most of the summer. Mrs. Grayson and the Grayson boys will remain in town until August, when they will go to Warrenton, Va., for the rest of the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee P. Warren are at the Barclay Hotel in New York for a few days, as are Mr. and Mrs. Floyd P. Waggaman and Mrs. Blair Banister, all of Washington.

Addison T. Smiths Have Ohio Guests.

Representative and Mrs. Addison T. Smith have with them at the Hotel Roosevelt the former's niece, Mrs. Samuel Smith and her daughter, Miss Martha Smith, of Cambridge, Ohio.

Representaitve and Mrs. Smith had a dinner on Wednesday for Mrs. Samuel Smith, Miss Martha Smith, Mr. and Mrs. William M. Smith, brother and sister-in-law of Representative Smith; Mr. and Mrs. Walter F. Smith, son and daughter-in-law of the hostess, and Martha Louise Smith and Bennie Jo Smith, grandchildren of Representative and Mrs. Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Smith entertained at dinner last evening at their home in Lyon Village, Va., for Mrs. Samuel Smith and Miss Martha Smith, who will leave tomorrow by motor for their home.

Mrs. Edward F. Hutton, of New York, arrived yesterday at the Wardman Park Hotel from White Sulphur Springs. Mrs. Hutton will remain at the hotel until Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Willington, of London, England, who are spending some time in America, are staying at the Willard while in Washington.

Mrs. Robert Reeves Returns to Boston.

Mrs. Robert Reeves, who has been the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Strom, at McLean, Va., for the last two weeks, has returned to her home in Boston to join her husband, who was injured recently.

Mr. and Mrs. John Barnes Milliken have closed their apartment at Tilden Gardens and have gone to their cottage at Rehoboth Beach, Del., where they will pass the summer with their two children, Mollie and Dick.

Mr. Milliken was until recently a member of the United States Board of Tax Appeals.

Mrs. French Strother Visiting in New York.

Mrs. French Strother and her sister, Miss Clark Farley, have gone to New York. They will return to their apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel after a visit of about ten days.

Miss Jacqueline Churchill and Chester Morrill, jr., will be presented in a recital at the headquarters of the American Association of University Women on Saturday evening at 8:15 o'clock by Mr. LaSalle Spier. The program will be made up of two piano selections, with Mr. Spier at the second piano.

Mr. George Fuller, American Consul at Kingston, Ontario, and Mrs. Fuller are now in Washington at the Mayflower for a short visit.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Proctor have closed their house on Kalorama Circle for the summer, and sailed for Europe on the Leviathan on Wednesday.

Mrs. Fitzhugh Lee, of Marietta, Ga., is spending a few days in Washington at the Mayflower and will go from here to Fort Monroe to meet her son, Cadet Fletcher Cole, of the United States Military Academy, who will be there with other members of the first class for maneuvers.

Mr. and Mrs. Ramsay Return to Capital.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ramsay, of Geneva, Switzerland, who have been visiting in this country for some time, have returned to the Wardman Park Hotel for a few days before going to Pocono Manor, Pa.

Mr. W. A. Foote and Mrs. Foote are at the Powhatan while in Washington. Mr. Foote is in the foreign service.

Mrs. E. A. Harriman entertained a small party at luncheon yesterday at the Carlton.

Tau Beta Phi Sorority To Convene in Capital.

Tau Beta Phi Sorority, Inc., which is holding its annual convention at the Mayflower Hotel over the week-end, will open its list of functions with a reception in the Italian Gardens at 8:30 o'clock tonight.

At this entertainment the district president, Miss Ann O'Leary, will present Eta Chapter, from Atlanta, Ga., with a sorority banner. The district president will be given the national president's pin to be worn until next year, and a gavel is to be presented by Mrs. Myra K. Brown, to Miss Betty McNamara, toastmistress of the banquet to be held on Saturday evening. Officers for the incoming year will be elected at this meeting. The convention will be continued tomorrow.

Our flag chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will celebrate Flag Day by having a garden luncheon at the Allies Inn Saturday. Afterward the members will assemble at the home of the regent, Mrs. Albert M. Walker, 1710 F street, to listen to the Flag Day radio program presented under the auspices of the national society, D. A. R., by Lowell Fletcher Hobart, president general.

Art Promoters Club Give Final Musicale.

Officers of the Art Promoters Club gave their final reception and musicale last night at the home of Mme. de Lagnel, on Kalorama road. Members of the society met for nomination and election of officers for next year at 8 o'clock. The reception and musicale began immediately after the business meeting.

Among those who appeared on the program were Mme. Louise Couthinho, concert pianist; Miss Margaret Louise O'Brien, lyric soprano; Miss Eleanore Colborn, Miss Pauline Bruner, Miss Leona Bixler and Mr. Victor Neal.

Miss Mae Henriette Vance, Miss Mittie Eugenia Burch and Miss Della Frances Bogue received the guests and made presentations. Miss Margaret Louise O'Brien, vice president of the Art Promoters Club, headed the committee in charge. Assisting her were Miss Pauline Bruner, Mr. Victor Neal and Mr. William E. Huntington.

The League for the Larger Life will give a house warming at its new lodge at Calvert Beach, Md., on Saturday. Six automobiles will leave the Y. W. C. A. corner Seventeenth and K streets, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Bathing and canoeing will be the order of the afternoon. Dancing and music will be features of the evening, following an al fresco supper.

Blood Pressure

When dizzy spells, headache, shortness of breath, warn you that you have high blood pressure, don't begin to worry—worry increases the dangers of high blood pressure. Be sensible. You can bring your blood pressure under control if you take the right treatment in time. Such statements as "I reduced my blood pressure 40 points"—"I overcame a condition of dangerous high blood pressure" prove the merits of Mountain Valley Mineral Water from Hot Springs, Ark., in such conditions. This natural mineral water aids elimination through the kidneys and retards the accumulation of poisons which are causes of increased blood pressure. It will help you—if you don't wait too long. Phone for our booklet today. Met. 1062. We deliver.

Fifth Avenue Fashion

A new wrapped tiered treatment gives the figure smart slenderness in this lovely polka-dotted printed crepe silk.

It's so appropriate for town, for resort or the afternoon bridge.

The bodice molds the figure, and accents the natural waistline through shirring at either side.

Style No. 144 can be had in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42-inches bust. The medium size takes 4 yards of 39-inch material with ½ yard of 35-inch contrasting.

Printed voile, chiffon, plain crepe silk, printed dimity and printed batiste are nice ideas for its development.

Price of pattern 15 cents. Address Fashion Dept., Washington Post, 259 Fifth avenue, New York City.

CONTRACT BRIDGE.

In the early days of Contract, many contended that an original suit-bid of one, especially if vulnerable, should not be made unless the bidder was at least one trick stronger than he had to be to make the bid in Auction. This soon was found to be unsound, and now it is recognized that initial suit-bids may be made in Contract on the old Auction material and that light bids are even more advantageous than they were in the older game.

Initial suit-bids by dealer may shut out artificial one-Club bids and forcing two-bids by second hand when that player is a believer in either of those systems. Initial suit-bids also shut out many No Trump bids that would be made by second hand if dealer passed.

Original suit-bids of one not only shut out many adverse bids, but also encourage the bidder's partner to make an advantageous declaration which an original pass would have discouraged. Even when second hand overcalls the suit-bid and obtains the contract, the partner has received valuable lead-indicating information. Perhaps more important than all else, suit-bids of one made on light material frequently produce partial scores when partner knows how to handle the situation.

Two objections have been urged against suit-bids which are backed by no more than two-high-card tricks. One objection is based on the forcing system which does not permit a two-bid with a six-trick hand. When that system is being used, a one-bid may mean so much strength that the partner feels constrained to jump it whenever he holds even moderate strength. Then when the original bid has been a low minimum, disaster is apt to follow. That objection does not disturb those who do not use forcing bids.

The other objection, which applies to any system, is that such holdings as Ace-King-x-x-x or Ace-Queen-Jack-x-x with nothing on the side lack defensive value, and the partner expecting more strength may make an unfortunate double of an adverse suit-bid. It is quite true that this happens occasionally, but such cases are rare because a skilled player allows for that possibility. The losses resulting from light suit-bids mount to little compared with the gains produced by them.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE.

"GEMINI."

IF June 13 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 9:30 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m., and from 9 p. m. to 10:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 5 a. m. to 6:30 a. m., and from 6 p. m. to 7:30 p. m.

Outside influences on this date are of a nondescript character; and there will be no urge to do things and little courage to fight for things.

The children born on this June 13 will have an enthusiastic, impulsive and somewhat aggressive nature. They will show signs of irritability and will take unkindly to discipline. Intellect and not intuition will lead them through life.

Your pride more than anything else is the driving force of your life, and it enters into all phases of your existence. Were it not for your pride, you would probably be doomed to accept a seat of mediocrity, for you are not a naturally energetic being.

You will try to lead your own life, and will strike out a path for yourself. Much that you do, both wrong and right, will be unexpected by your friends, and contrary to their advice. You are likely to have more than one occupation, or you will change your vocation several times. Partnerships will not bring you good luck or happiness.

You are always seeking an outlet for your very strongly developed paternal or maternal affections, and children quickly run to your protecting arms.

Successful people born June 13:

1. Francis Dana, statesman and jurist.
2. Winfield Scott, soldier of War of 1812.
3. John P. K. Henshaw, P. E. bishop of Milwaukee.
4. Gustavus V. Fox, naval officer, first monitor to cross the ocean.
5. Mary L. B. Branch, author and poet.
6. Frederic W. Root, composer.

Jane Interprets the Mode

No, we didn't take bites out of the border of the cape and dress—it's the fashionable ragged edge, on coral georgette. (Courtesy of Heim, Paris).

Paris, June 12.

WITH the modern woman being elegant as she is both outdoors and in, the inevitable result of lounging pajamas wear is—elegance. What the Paris couturiers have done to create lounging luxury for her is a delight to the eye and a boon to the heart.

Rose satin in itself is rich and soft and feminine and alluring. Skillfully cut, intricately incrusted, lace enhanced, it is the supreme expression of refinement for the lady at home. It is an atmosphere—for living as it is lived!

A sleeveless jacket, well fitting, over a trouser that flares and flares to her heart's content, comfortable for sleeping and lovely for morning when the matching, rather long, negligee-coat is added. Not a luxury, really, these satin and lace pajamas, when they wash so easily and so beautifully, when they wear so well.

And if you aren't inclined to rose, for color, if you are the olive-skinned brunette type, nothing could be more flattering than eggshell satin. Pure white is queenly. And black satin is quietly rich.

• • • •

Oh, yes, we were walking through the Lido the other day, on the Champs Elysees, only just looking for interesting things to sketch or write about. To be sure, stopping to buy the latest tango hits in sheet music, and some records of our latest goofiness, the Creole Beguine and Mazourka, when we saw the peachiest pajama suit that there's just no use trying to live without. This time even goofy I (to whom bank balances that balance are a foreign language) know I have to live without it for awhile at least!

Ennyhow 'twas rose-colored satin with trousers and sleeveless top beautifully hand edged and embroidered in ecru lace in the manner that is so chic now. Then, too, a long matching three-quarter length negligee coat, simply squirming with the intricate in-and-out embroidery of the lace.

• • • •

You know you can't go on forever without a day of reckonin! I don't mean your sins—they're sort of up to you, as it were. I mean modishly speaking—taking stock of everything big or little in your wardrobe and its relation to the other items, and seeing just where you're at. What can be made over into new costumes and what must be thrown away? Will the last summer chiffon dress that is now too short at least be the making of a delightful blouse for your silk suit? Or should the old tight-legged pajama now be taught to flare? All of which in a nut-shell means—send a stamped, self addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post before you start mauling your old things, and get all the helpful suggestions about "makeovers" in this week's illustrated leaflet.

• • • •

We get so that we just beam all over these days when we show you a Heim dress. And there doesn't seem to be much more to say about it, so we always think that you can probably tell by the sketch how gorgeous it is. How do you like, for instance, the adorable afternoon frock from this house that I showed you today? It is of coral georgette with a matching cape—and well, I guess I'll let you rave about it in your own way.

• • • •

And then there is the tricky new watch I promised to sketch for you one day with its matching cigarette lighter, long and narrow and squatty. I wonder how many of those we can have made to order before the unbalancing bank balance lies down and dies?

• • • •

And then, also, we urge you again to be sure to look for the weekly Dare fashion letter in The Sunday Post each week.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

JUNE DO'S AND DON'TS FOR GARDENERS.

DON'T forget to water your window boxes every day and be sure to remove all dead or dying blossoms. Also, pinch the centers out of the terminal shoots of the coleus plants at least once in three weeks. This will keep the plants from becoming leggy.

Don't let your sweet peas suffer for water any time. Pansies and sweet pea blossoms must be removed to keep the plants from going to seed, or there will be few if any more flowers.

Never attempt to raise more flowers than you can care for. A few well-raised plants are worth much more than a garden full of neglected unsightly specimens.

Never take the advice of an unsuccessful gardener, no matter how reasonable it may sound.

Don't be too greatly cast down by failures. One failure may mean that you begin to wonder why and eventually you find both the cause and the remedy.

Don't fail to join a horticultural society or a garden club if there happens to be one in your vicinity. The meeting will prove most stimulating and helpful in every way.

Do let me urge you to make use of any available garden literature that may come your way. There are so many splendid garden magazines which will tell you much that will be helpful to you to solve your individual garden problems. The advertisements of these publications will also tell you where to buy both plants and garden accessories.

When in doubt consult the garden book shelf of your nearest library. When purchasing garden books, see that they have an index. A garden book is a book to be used as you use your cook book, therefore it is more practical when well indexed.

Do not neglect to cultivate your larkspur. If the plants are not staked do stake them at once. This is the season for sudden thunder showers which may ruin your plants in a half hour.

Remember that the more you cut your Canterbury bells the more flowers you will have.

(Copyright, 1930.)

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed, stamped enveloped is supplied.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

HOW TO SELECT SHOES.

(Bureau of Chemistry.)

Most shoes are made over lasts built according to a schedule of standard measurements for the ball, waist, instep, and heel, the schedule being based upon the average proportions for normal feet.

Shoes in which one or more of the foregoing parts are made larger or smaller, so that they do not correspond to the proportions of the standard schedule, are known as "combination last" shoes. They are designed for better and more comfortable fitting of feet not of the usual proportions throughout.

The service to be required of shoes is an important factor in selecting footwear. The lightweight, fancy shoe or slipper has its place, but it obviously is not on the farm or the street or in the office or shop.

SANITARY GOODS WEEK

Ask for the new Kotex Belts and Aprons as well as Kotex Pads

DURING Sanitary Goods Week, please consider seriously your sanitary accessories. Do you know the recent improvements that have been made? Do you know how really exquisite your sanitary pads, belts, aprons can be? Do you know all three Kotex accessories?

A new belt and apron

The new Kotex Belt and Apron are as perfect in their way as Kotex pads. Each offers an entirely new kind of sanitary comfort.

The belt is woven on a curve to fit, of fine, silky elastic. It is marvelously light in weight . . . flexible . . . dainty . . . and yet it stays firmly in place. It does not fold, wrinkle or bind. You'll appreciate the excellent quality . . . the firm satin tabs, the strong grosgrain ribbons for attaching pins.

The apron is made of finest Japanese silk, rubberized very delicately to prevent the apron from becoming sticky and gummy. This is an ideal apron for everyday wear, to keep skirts immaculately free from wrinkles.

Supply yourself with Kotex during Sanitary Goods Week. Pay particular attention to the pads . . . see how perfect Kotex is in every way. How snow-white and exquisitely clean, how soft, how resilient . . . how carefully shaped to be inconspicuous.

Buy all three Kotex products at any drug, dry goods or department store.

Principals Limit Schedules Of D. C. High School Teams

THAT Washington high school athletic teams will not be allowed to compete for intersectional honors with out-of-town teams was revealed by the publication of the new athletic rules which become effective at the start of the next school year in September.

A rule definitely forbidding postseason or out-of-town games having the nature of a contest between intersectional champions" deprives local teams from attaining any further championship glory beyond the limits of home fields.

In addition, no school may schedule more than four out-of-town overnight games in a sport during any one season, nor may any contest entail the loss of more than one school day not the absence from home of more than two nights, while another new ruling limits the scheduling of games with teams from schools only of recognized standing. Hitherto, there was no limit to the type of school which could be scheduled by a local team.

Out-of-town overnight games involving the absence of a team for a school day may be permitted, however, with the formal authorization of the superintendent of schools.

WITH JASPER POST.

Pete Chumbris has signed with the Sergt. Jasper Post Nine in the American Legion baseball series instead of the Victory Post Team as announced yesterday. Chumbris will be eligible to play with Sergt. Jasper Post Sunday.

LEGION NINES GATHER.

Athletic officers, managers and coaches of the six teams engaged in the District American Legion baseball series will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in the District Building, at which time the newly appointed department athletic officer, E. B. Lyons, will take charge of the series.

SCHMELING, NEAR DEFEAT, IS VICTOR ON SHARKEY'S FOUL; GERMAN DISGUSTED AT METHOD OF TRIUMPH, HE SAYS

SCHMELING CERTAIN HE COULD HAVE WON IF NOT STRUCK LOW

Max Says He Found Sharkey Easy to Hit and Worst of Fight Was Over When He Was Fouled; Invites American Return Bout.

By MAX SCHMELING
(As Told to Paul Gallico.)

NEW YORK, June 12.—I did not want to win that way. I want to be heavyweight champion of the world, but not on a foul. And I would have been. My head was clear. Sharkey had done his worst. Did I go down? I wouldn't even take smelling salts in my own corner.

When I did not go down in that third round and come out for the fourth, I feel that Sharkey is not the same any more. I can see it in his eyes. I hit him a good left hook in the mouth. I know that I can come on now. I think he is not so much any more. You notice that I am a little more careless, eh

Oh, I am disgusted. Yes, I am heavyweight champion of the world, but I want to prove it; I promise you I would have proven it. And when Sharkey fights me again I do prove it.

When I climb out of the ring I say to Sharkey when he comes over to shake my hand—"Jack, I give you revenge. I give you revenge whenever you want to fight again." You know what I mean—another chance.

Warned Jack in Second Round.

That is not the way to win a championship fight. That was the second time I speak to Sharkey. The first time is in the second round. I say to him, "Jack, be careful, you hit me low." I have my glove down, my right glove, way low and he hit me on it with a left hook. If I do not have my glove down there, I am fouled right then. He says nothing to me. Not during the whole fight does he say anything.

That fight goes just the way I think it should. The first round we are both careful, no? I expect that. You see those left hooks I hit him so his mouth bleeds? Yeh, then I know I can hit him.

The second round I am still careful. Sharkey boxes good. I want to fit what he has, you understand. I must find out what is his worst. If I get past that, then I begin to come on.

All right, n the third round I get it. You see that? Sharkey hits some good ones. It is his worst. I knew that. I can see how he tries. Once when he missed I hear him breathe and I know he have everything on it, as you say.

Says Head Was Clear In the Third.

All right, I lose that third round, but I know what Sharkey has. And I do not care. My head is clear. When Jacobs gives me the smelling salts, I push them away. I don't want them. Look, I see everyone at the ring side, you Paul and Eddie Neale, Pegler, all the people I know. I think just what I do.

Then comes the fourth round and I think you see the difference in me. I tell Joe Jacobs when the bell rings, two more rounds and I go after him strong. He can not hurt me any more, see? I n the fourth round I give him a right on the head. That he remembers, yes?

And the left hook is all right. And then I am up against the ropes. Sharkey throws the right. I duck under, and in comes the left hook. It is low. You see it. I do not have to tell you. It is terrible pain. I can not move. I am nearly mad. What must I do? No one knows whether the referee says I am fouled. Sharkey is over in my corner for a minute. Tehn I hear that I, that I am heavyweight champion of the world. And there is no lift in my heart. It was ont the right way. I did not want it so.

Hopes to Repay the American People.

To the American people I can only say that some day I hope I can pay them back for how they were cheated tonight. And from the bottom of my heart, I can only thank them for a fairness to a stranger in their land that has never been equaled in the history of sport.

I tell you that the German people will never forget how a lone boy came to your land. How he fought your American champion, and how when he was helpless and distress, with no thought for the glory of possibly keeping the championship in America, the officials called the decision as they saw it, and not as they would have wished it. This wonderful fairness has done something to my heart and I will never forget. I owe a debt to the American people and I swear to you that some day I will repay and so too will my country.

SIDELIGHTS

In the first preliminary to the Sharkey-Schmeling battle Ralph Gicucello, 186-pounder from Long Island City, scored a technical knockout over Peter Brand, of Holland, 169, in the third round. The referee stopped the bout after the Dutchman had been floored twice for counts of nine.

The customers were the first to get a "long count" at the Jack Sharkey-Max Schmeling bout. The first of the so-called "ringside seats" were exactly fourteen rows from the ring.

Four rows were devoted to the "working press" and ten other rows were given over to "patrons," including some of the best minds in attendance.

David Belasco, in his well-known sombre clothing suggesting the clergy rather than the stage, was the first patron to take a seat in the select circle.

As the sun dropped behind the big triple-deck grand stand and removed itself from competition with the glaring flood lights over the ring, amateur weather prophets sniffed the air and said there would be no rain. The wind, they declared, was from the wrong direction.

The bleachers filled early in the evening. The right field seats, occupied during the baseball by an enthusiastic crowd to whom Babe Ruth is the only major league player, was first to hang out an S. R. O. sign, followed by capacity crowds in dead center and left center.

The ring was placed near second base between the pivot station and the pitchers' mound. Ground keepers of the big baseball plant had taken steps as far as possible to protect their beloved turf but watched with apprehension as the thousands trampled across the infield.

Most of the customers came in with coats on their arms. They were not needed and did double duty, serving as cushions.

Four referees came to the stadium, but none knew which would be called upon to act as the third man in the ring in the titular bout. The four were Jim Crowley, Patsy Haley, Jack Denning and Arthur Donovan. Six judges also appeared with the choice for the main bout to fall on two. James A. Farley, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, addressed the officials in a body before the preliminaries started, stressing the importance of the championship battle and urging the unidentified man to be fully aware of his responsibilities.

Frederich von Prittwitz und Gaffron, German Ambassador to the United States, and Charles Francis Adams, Secretary of the Navy, were present as guests of James J. Walker, Mayor of New York.

James J. Corbett was the first former heavyweight champion to put in an appearance at the ringside, occuping a seat several rows from the ringside, but evidently prepared to move closer when events became more interesting.

Gene Tunney, retired champion, with Mrs. Tunney, had good seats, far from the twenty-sixth row where the former heavyweight king was reported assigned. The last champion of record was in position to see everything.

Baseball was well represented. Manager John J. McGraw and most of the Giants were on hand. Dan Howley led a substantial delegation of his Cincinnati Reds, while the league leading Brooklyn Robins were out in force. A few of the champion Chicago Cubs slipped over from Philadelphia to be in on the crowning of a new heavyweight champion.

Blow Clearly Low, Says Tunney

Retired Champ Sure That German Was Incapacitated.

YANKEE STADIUM, New York, June 12 (A.P.).—Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight champion, said Jack Sharkey palpably fouled Max Schmeling, unintentionally, but nevertheless unmistakably.

"It was a foul," said Tunney a few minutes after Schmeling had been carried from the ring.

"It is unfortunate, very unfortunate, for clearly the foul was absolutely unintentional, but it was obviously a foul.

"It was a blow that will cause excruciating pain and there is no doubt in my mind that Schmeling was incapacitated."

"Will Schmeling's name be placed on the Tunney-Muldoon Trophy?" the self-deposed heavyweight king was asked.

"I can't say as to that and I would not like to venture even an opinion at this time," was the reply.

Tunney Saw That Foul Was Coming.

"You know I am not the person to say who shall be declared the champion and perhaps I should not give even an idea of what I think."

"Did you see the foul coming?" Tunney was asked.

"I did. I am quite familiar with that punch and know its dangers. If it is not timed exactly right it will result in a very damaing low blow."

The retiring champion added that he had enjoyed the bout immensely until the unsatisfactory conclusion.

"It is much more comfortable out here than in the ring," he said with a smile.

Buelow's Share of Bout Attached for $10,000

New York, June 12 (A.P.).—The share of Max Schmeling's purse for tonight's fight that is due to go to Arthur Buelow, his repudiated German manager, was attached to the extent of $10,000 today by an order granted by Supreme Court Justice Valente.

The order was issued on application of Harry Hechheimer, a lawyer, and represents his claim for legal services rendered Buelow in the proceedings before the New York State Athletic Commission in which Buelow's managerial capacity was upheld.

Buelow, while no longer active as Schmeling's manager, is due to get 12½ per cent of Schmeling's earnings from the fight which are forecast at about $150,000.

Compston's 67 Beats Leo Diegel by 7 and 6

Nottingham, England, June 12 (A.P.).—Leo Diegel, American professional golf champion, was beaten, 7 and 6, by Archie Compston, big English pro, in an eighteen-hole match today. Continuing the round, Compston scored a 67, setting a new record for the course.

Horton Smith fared better, beating out his English opponent, C. A. Whitcombe, 1 up.

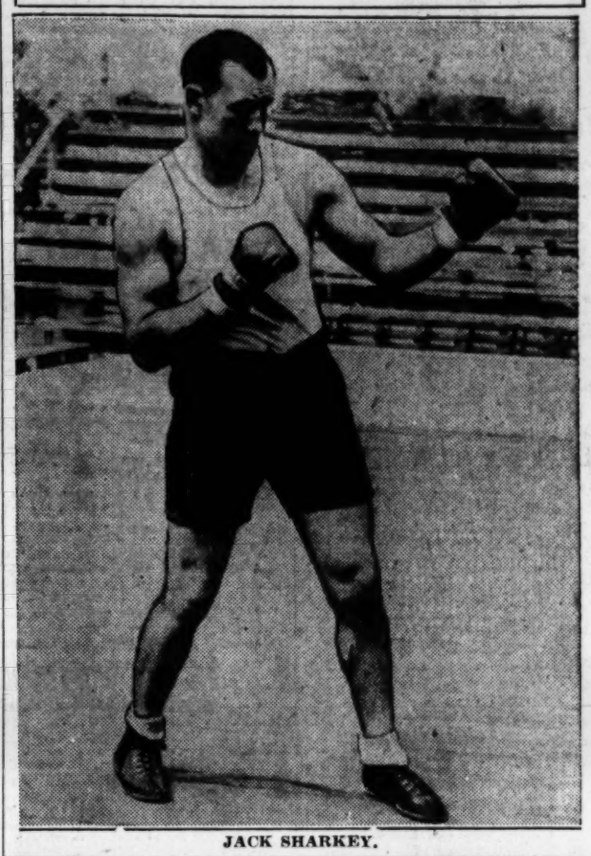
VICTORY VANISHES ON FOUL



JACK SHARKEY.

Radio Transcript of Fourth Round Describes Scene at Time of Foul

Following is Graham McNamee's verbatim description over the radio of the fourth round of the Sharkey-Schmeling bout last night as transcribed in the Washington office of the Dictaphone Co.:

ROUND FOUR.

They approach each other cautiously now. Sharkey slips that left in and lands high on Schmeling's forehead with short straight lefts. Jack feinted with his right, put two lefts to the face—Max sailed in and threw his right to the side of the head but Jack's defense is certainly marvelous tonight, better than I have ever seen him before. Jack is backing up now. Then his left and his right finds the side of Max's jaw. First the left tnd then that short cool hooking right of Jack's came over but that left hook is doing some business and teh left hook and the straight left.

They aren't doing a thing for the moment—Jack is boxing staright up as Max is taking it, coming in very low. Jack raises with his left and socks him with the right. Max throws a right smack at Jack's face and landed prettly—Jack seems awfully tsrong. Of course he is much heavier than the German boy. Jack is backing away a little but as he backs he stops backing takes his swing—he landed a left swing to the side of Max's head. Now they are out just boxing there sparring in the center of the ring again looking at each other. This is the slowest round we have had so far. Not much action.

Max swings a long right but Jack blocks it with his arms and shoulder. Jack keeps pouring away with that left hand and as Max came in he tried as hard a right cross as he could possibly bring but it was short and Max was not touched. They both seems a little bit awkward and tired in this round. They don't seem to be doing much so far.

Max caught Jack on the face with a half opened glove. Jack's right came over after a feint with the left on the side of Max's jaw and it was plenty hard. Again the right but Max duckedin below it in to time to catch it behind the ear instead of on the jaw. Max certainly can take it—he has taken plenty rightnow . He has takenp lenty in three and one-half rounds already. Not doing any business now for the moment. Jack has that right of his cocked all of the time. Max let his right go but again a little short. Jack's longer reach and superior boxing ability has the German boy pretty well baffled as a general thing.

goes down, claiming a foul. Max is down, claiming a foul. Jack has Schmeling swung; Jack swung a long left to the mid section and Max walked over to his corner and is sitting down. At the same instant the blow was struck the bell ended the round. It looks as though the blow was in the pit of the stomach. Jack looks very worried over in his corner, and they are making an examination to see whether or not it is a low blow. Jack is up and has come over to Max's corner, and Max evidently can not rise. This is the opening of the fifth round. Jack has gone over in an attempt to get Max to continue.

The card for the fifth round has been raised and we do not know what is going to happen. I believe Max will lose on a knockout in the fifth. It is not in the fourth. It is in the fifth, because he was still fighting in the fourth. The decision has not been reached. Jack is over in his corner standing quietly—a trainer alongside—a towel over his shoulders. Max seems unable to rise. They can't even * * * Max for the firts time is able to take a little drink of water, but his face is still writhing in pain.

Jack almost fainted—we do not know why yet. Yes, Max wins on a foul. It could not have been an intentional foul, as Jack had hit Max five or six times. Max is hurt pretty badly and we could not get him to the make, and they are taking him out; but he is not doing any particularly good walking.

Radio Pictures of Bout To Be Sent to Berlin

New York, June 11 (A.P.).—Photographs of tonight's Sharkey-Schmeling fight are to be transmitted by radio to Germany for possible publication in newspapers in Berlin.

Photoradio equipment developed by Capt. R. H. Ranger and other R. C. A. engineers will be used to send the pictures by short wave from Station WIZ or WAZ at New Brunswick, N. J., operated by remote control from the Broad street office in New York.

The pictures are to leave New York immediately after the fight. Their publication in Germany will depend upon the results obtained. Tests under way for several nights have brought fair results.

LANGLEY AT CROSS ROADS.

The Langley Seniors will travel to Bailey's Cross Roads Sunday to meet the nine of that vicinity. All Langley players are asked to meet at 651 Columbia road at 12:30 o'clock.

Blow Unseen By Referee, Judge

Low Blow Is Upheld After Parley With Second Judge.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.
Special to The Washington Post.

YANKEE STADIUM, New York, June 12.—Jack Sharkey fouled Max Schmeling in the fourth round of their prize fight for the heavyweight championship of the world this evening and Schmeling was awarded the victory and the championship on this ground. They had their battle in the Yankee Stadium with about 70,000 customers present and more than $740,000 of the customers' money in the vaults.

Sharkey was far ahead of Schmeling at the time the fight ended, having punched him into a dazed condition in the first minute of round three, when Schmeling had to go deep into his reserve strength for the stamina to keep going. The concluding punch, a left to the body was delivered as Sharkey leaped at his man close to the ropes.

There was a quick muffled drum of gloves. Both of Sharkey's mitts hammered the body, a right hand landing close to the line of Schmeling's trunks. Then unseen by mose of the crowd, unseen by one of the judges and apparently unseen by the referee, Charlie Crowley, a left hand ripped in low and Schmeling flopped to the canvas in a little puff of resin dust, his dark features wrenched in an expression of agony and one hand clawing at his abdomen as if he had stopped a bullet.

Crowley Irresolute In Crisis.

Crowley, the referee, ignoring Schmeling's mute show of complaint, turned to the knockdown timer, who had risen at the margin of the ring and was banging on the deck with his bung starter. Crowley again faced about and seemed irresolute. He did not disqualify Sharkey, but neither did he pick up an drepeat the count.

When the timer had rapped five times the bell rang, ending the fourth round, and Schmeling's seconds, wearing sweaters in the orange and black of the German flag, went tumbling through the ropes in a wild dash to pick up their man. Joey Jacobs, Schmeling's manager; Max Machon, his trainer, and Doc Casey, his third second, grabbed him up and hauled him to his corner, although he was able to use his legs. They whirled the brass arm of the stool up from the ring post, placed it under Schmeling and eased him down.

Referee Appeals To Other Judge.

Crowley still made no decision of foul, but walked across the ring to consult Charlie Matthison, one of the judges. Matthison said he hadn't seen the punch. Meantime, the intermission was speeding and the fight, officially, was still on. Sharkey sat in his corner, awiating the next bell, strangely quiet, for so erratic a man. Crowley then appealed to Harold Barnes, the other judge, who had been sitting just under the fighters as they came along the ropes on his side of the ring.

"The punch was low," Barnes said, and just as the bell rang for the fifth round Crowley walked to Schmeling's corner, apparently still with no definite opinion. At the ball, Sharkey jumped from his corner, rushed half way to Schmeling's corner and stopped dead, with his hands down as Joey Jacobs raged along the ropes, screaming at the press row and calling upon the world to witness that his fighter had been foully dealt with.

"That judge says foul," Jacobs yelled at Crowley, an dthen, turning to the other seconds in his corner, he raised his voice to ashrill squawk. "Don't let him out of that corner," he commanded. "Keep him on the stool. He was fouled, and they're trying to get away with it."

Sharkey, Waiting, Gnaws at Lip.

Sharkey retired to his cowd, and, with the heavyweight championship and its million-dollar value slipping away from him in the comedy of the 24-foot square, his demeanor was a startling contrast with his shrieking, cursing hysteria of that night in Miami, four months ago, when he fouled

YANKEE STADIUM, New York, June 12 (A.P.).—In a sudden and bewildering finish, Max Schmeling was proclaimed the victor over Jack Sharkey on a foul in the last few seconds of the fourth round of a fifteen-round match that failed dismally in its object of crowning an undisputed heavyweight champion of the world.

The black-haired young German, after being on the verge of a knockout in the third round from as vicious a two-fisted attack as Sharkey ever let loose, crumpled up against the ropes in the fourth round and fell writhing in agony to the floor from a left hook that landed fully 2 inches below the belt and in the left groin.

Amid scenes of the wildest confusion and uproar, as the managers, seconds and handlers clambered into the ring, Referee Jimmy Crowley dashed from one side of the ring to the other in quest of a decision on a blow he admitted not seeing. The bell rang for the end of the fourth round, Schmeling was carried, limp and groaning to his corner, and several minutes elapsed before Crowley finally reached his verdict in the German's favor.

One Judge Calls Foul Unhesitatingly.

The nifal blow, unquetsionably a low one, was landed directly in front of one of the judges, Harold Barnes, and on his unhesitating testimony that Schmeling had been fouled, Crowley made his decision to the accompaniment of wild scenes within the ring as well as from without. The other judge, Charles F. Matthison, concurred in the verdict, although he also was deprived of a full view of the abrupt finish.

It was a stunning disappointment to the big crowd, estimated at nearly 80,000, that had come to see a new heavyweight king crowned as successor to the retired Gene Tunney. It had cheered Sharkey as he battered his youthful foeman into a state of grogginess in the third round and appeared satisfied that the American would go on to demonstrate his mastery.

Probably no more than a few hundred spectators actually saw the low blow struck and so close together were the fighters on one side of the ring, up against the ropes at the time, that barely a quarter of the assembled 500 experts had anything approaching an unobstructed view of the deciding punch.

Crowd Boos Entire Proceedings.

Under the circumstances there was a spectacular outburst of disapproval on the part of the crowd, which booed the principals, the referee and everything connected with the proceedings as Schmeling, still in apparent agony, was carried bodily from the ring and to his dressing room.

Sharkey, again in the midst of a chaotic scene reminiscent down to

FIGHT BY ROUNDS

FIRST ROUND.

Sharkey fought carefully with his left but could not touch the German's head. He missed and Max stepped in with a sharp left hook to the chin and neatly blocked the Boston sailor's counter. Max bobbed under Jack's left hook, his left to the chin and fell in close with a slug to the body. Sharkey, a big man anyway, looked a physical superior of Schmeling in every way. As Sharkey missed a left, Max whipped over his first right, a short smash that thudded on Sharkey's head. Jack appeared shocked and stormed madly forward. He clinched, however, and they were sparring carefully at the bell.

ROUND TWO.

Sharkey seemed to argue with his seconds in the corner and came out on his toes boxing carefully. The black-thatched German dove in with a left and right to the body and Sharkey hammered both hands to the head. They clinched, wrestled and Sharkey pumped a left to the head. He met Max coming forward again with a sharp right to the cheek and stabbed the German off balance with his left. Sharkey grew more aggressive, but ever watchful of Max's right, and he stabbed for the head. Max did not seem to mind, although he stepped into two uppercuts and he banged a left hook and another short right on Sharkey's head. The sailor warmed to his fight, hooking left to to the body and right to the head, but Max sneaked over with a left hook, and Sharkey banged the German with a straight right on the chin and they stabbed until the bell sounded.

THIRD ROUND.

Sharkey tore after the beagle-browed Teuton and they swapped rights to the chin on the ropes. Both were clean, jarring punches. Max sneaked over another right and banged on Sharkey's body in close while the sailor tried to tie him up. A short right full on the chin shook Schmeling. A barrage of rights sent him floundering. Another right sent him to the ropes and he came out badly hurt and holding for dear life. Sharkey, cool as falling snow, stepped into Schmeling with a left and another right. He was taking his time. Cutting his man down. Max stumbled through the blows, arms wrapped around his head. As he slowly recovered the German shot a feeble left hook to the chin. Sharkey then stepped in with two left hooks that doubled Max up and sent him back to his corner a bit staggery at the bell.

FOURTH ROUND.

Schmeling's seconds rubbed his neck with ice and gave him deep draughts of smelling salts while Sharkey sat across the ring complacently awaiting the kill. Sharkey stepped into Max with a left jab, a right punishing blow to the chin and disdainfully brushed aside Max's countering left.. The dogged German rallied and fired a right-hand bolt into Sharkey's chin that shook the American. The crowd roared as it landed and Sharkey tossed caution aside for a second to fling both hands widely at the crouching Schmeling's head.

Sharkey settled down, smiled disdainfully, took another right and smashed both hands to Schmeling's body. He crossed a wicked right to the German's chin but Max stayed up. As they clinched Sharkey tried repeatedly to twist Schmeling. Max went down under a left to the body claiming a foul.. He could not rise. There was another mad scene as the seconds stormed into the ring yelling foul, while Referee Crowley could not seem to make a decision. It was a perfect repetition of the Miami fiasco, as Schmeling, in agony, was carried to his corner and rolled on his feet. Still Crowley refused to make a decision and the ring now was full of seconds arguing.

After several minutes of arguing Crowley decided that Sharkey's left hook had been low and Max Schmeling was new heavyweight champion by reason of foul.

STEVINSON BEATEN, 4 SURVIVE IN COLUMBIA GOLF

Frost Defeats Champion By 1 Up

—Pick up ASHER Bank

Howell Easily Beats Frost in Quarter-Final Match.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

THE semifinalists who will play this morning in the championship flight of the Columbia Country Club invitation tournament are Paul J. Frizzell vs. Clyde B. Asher, both members of the Columbia Club, in the upper bracket and William R. Howell, of the Hermitage Club, Richmond, Va., and the 18-year-old winner of the Middle Atlantic championship, paired against Roger Peacock, of Indian Spring, the present District junior champion, in the lower half.

The contest between these younger golfers may, after all, be the feature match of today's play.

The matches yesterday in the first sixteen were marked by several upsets, notably when Miller B. Stevinson, of the Columbia Club and District amateur champion, was defeated in the morning round by Norman B. Frost, Columbia, who, after a gallant struggle, won on the nineteenth hole when he ran down a birdie 3. In the afternoon round, in the defeated eight, Stevinson was eliminated from the tournament when he was defeated 1 up on the home green by Walter R. McCallum, Washington.

Evans Fades From Title Flight.

Although Peacock, who tied for the medal with a card of 35-36—71, still survives, W. Carlton Evans, Columbia, who also had 71 in the qualifying round, has passed out of the picture. He won in the morning on the nineteenth hole from Arthur H. Urban, after a dispute as to an occurrence on the tenth hole which was decided in his favor by the golf committee, but he faded away in the afternoon round when he was defeated by Frizzell, 3 and 2. Frost, who had won in the morning from Stevinson, proved an easy victim in the afternoon for "Billy" Howell, by the wide margin of 8 up and 6 to play. Otherwise, there were no serious upsets in the two rounds of match play in the championship flight.

The features of the day's play were the extended matches in the several sixteens. In the first sixteen, Evans defeated A. H. Urban on the nineteenth green; and in the afternoon, Urban, playing in the consolation of the first flight, was carried to the twentieth hole before he bowed to Thomas J. Webb, jr., Washington, three putts on the decisive green being his undoing.

In the second sixteen, Albert R. Mackenzie, Columbia, defeated his fellow member, J. M. Johnston, on the nineteenth green, and in the consolation of the second sixteen John W. Merritt, Columbia, won from Maury Fitzgerald, unattached, Two-dollar mutuels paid—HOT SHOT, $4.08, $2.42, out; EQUATION, $2.50, out; FETISH, out.

HOT SHOT, away in full stride, raced into lead and, steadied along under light restraint, was never threatened. EQUATION, always in closest pursuit, could not get to the leader, but kept his position safe to easily beat off FETISH and BLAZE THE TRAIL. BLAZE THE TRAIL was outrun in final drive. FETISH could never reach contention.

SECOND RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 2-year-old maiden fillies. Start good. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:50. Off at 2:50. Winner, E. F. Prichard's b. f. (2), by Transmute—Baby Lynch. Trained by C. E. Gross. Value to winner, $900; second, $200; third, $100. Time, 0:23 4-5, 0:50 1-5, 1:04 2-5, 1:11 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TRANSGRESSION, $15.26, $8.10, $5.02; SPRING CLEANING, $9.84, $6.62; WATER PORT, $4.08.

TRANSGRESSION began forwardly and, slightly outpaced for the first half, responded well when called on to reach the stretch turn and, going around on the outside, wore down leader, headed SPRING CLEANING and came away handily to easily beat by four lengths. SPRING CLEANING, off with an advantage, enjoyed a clear course and, racing straight, showed much the most speed while saving ground to the stretch, but could not match the winner's challenge. WATER PORT closed a good gap from a slow beginning and, closing resolutely, headed the others. SHASTA SNOW raced on the outside, went evenly and could not improve her position.

THIRD RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:18. Off at 3:18½. Winner, Rose Home Stable's b. c. (3), by The Porter—The Minx. Trained by S. S. Hucheson. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $200; third, $100. Time, 0:24, 0:48 2-5, 1:14, 1:42.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PORTMANTEAU, $4.88, $3.00, $2.18; PLAYBALL, $2.96, $2.34; VALDOSTA, $2.28.

PORTMANTEAU went along steady under restraint while showing the way to opposition to stretch, then weakened a bit and was joined on even terms by PLAYBALL. Neal bore in and kept Marcum in close quarters and, while latter could not use whip freely, PORTMANTEAU finished first at the end. PLAYBALL was sent up to the winner in a strong bid an eighth away, persisted in hard drive, but was held safe. VALDOSTA went fairly well and had no mishaps. FORT DEARBORN was outrun. MR. DICK tired after the first three-quarters.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:50. Off at 3:51. Winner, La Brae Stable's b. f. (4), by Sobreski—Maloma. Trained by D. F. Cannon. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $200; third, $100. Time, 0:25, 0:50 1-5, 1:16 2-5, 1:44, 1:59 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—THEORIST JANE, $13.42, $6.00, $4.08; ILLUSTRIOUS, $12.94, $5.80; FIRE UNDER, $4.78.

THEORIST JANE away well and under restraint first half mile, but when ready took the lead, went up fast on outside on stretch turn, drew away and won eased up. ILLUSTRIOUS also came out on restraint reaching the stretch turn, quickly drew into contention on outside, shook off ROYAL CHARGE, could not get to winner, but held FIRE UNDER safe. ROYAL CHARGE, lacked speed, was badly outrun to stretch turn where he finished strongly. ROYAL CHARGE made a good effort in final eighth, worked his way into a contending position, but tired. PAT FIELD gained slowly. BLACK BART closed a big gap.

FIFTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $1,600; allowances. The Gladiola. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won ridden out; place, easily. Went to post at 4:15. Off at 4:20. Winner, W. C. and E. W. Reichert's b. f. (3), by Polymelian—Kitty Williams. Trained by J. Carter. Value to winner, $1,200; second, $250; third, $150. Time, 0:23 1-5, 0:47 2-5, 1:13 2-5, 1:27 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TIPPY TOE, $19.56, $4.96, $2.44; PANSY WALKER, $3.30, $2.26; GALLADAY, $2.32.

TIPPY TOE moved up fast approaching the far turn, headed the leaders and drew into good lead and continued well to stretch, where she was ridden out under strong hand ride to the end. PANSY WALKER, under restraint, was forward contender throughout, came again strongly just around the final turn, but, under listless handling, hung in final eighth. GALLADAY had speed, but began dropping out of it after first half mile, lost ground on outside and was also listlessly ridden. HONEY LOCUST tired in final issue.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,400; allowances. For 3-year-olds and upward. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:48. Off at 4:48½. Winner, Hal P. Headley's br. g. (3), by D'Orsay—Blue Top. Trained by W. W. Taylor. Value to winner, $1,100; second, $200; third, $100. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:48, 1:16 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DARK ENTRY, $19.46, $5.58, $3.96; FLAG TIME, $3.32, $2.84; AMERICAN THUNDER, $3.82.

DARK ENTRY, outpaced to the stretch, began gaining on the leaders steadily, stole up on the inside in final eighth and, closing strongly, wore down AMERICAN THUNDER and held safe FLAG TIME. FLAG TIME had speed and, keeping never far off the pace, charged up strongly on the outside in final drive, was not good enough for the winner, outgamed AMERICAN THUNDER. Latter forced TOMBEREAU'S pace to the stretch, finally raced later into defeat, headed him and drew clear in the lead, but faltered in hard final drive when others challenged. TOMBEREAU set fast early pace, but quit in the stretch run.

CHAMP BOWS IN WOMEN'S TOURNEY

Mrs. Nicolson Loses to Mrs. Meckley by 2 and 1.

MRS. HUGH T. (DOROTHY WHITE) NICHOLSON, who for the past four years has held the title of District women golf champion, was yesterday eliminated from the District women's annual championship tournament on the course of the Washington Golf and Country Club by Mrs. Betty Meckley, formerly champion of the Mohawk Country Club, Schenectady, N. Y., and now a member of the Beaver Dam Club.

She will play the final round today against Mrs. S. F. Colladay, Columbia, who has twice been runner-up in the Congressional Club women's championship.

Both Mrs. Meckley and Mrs. Nicolson played fine golf in the semifinal round yesterday, each having identical scores of 41—39—80, but Mrs. Meckley won on the seventeenth green, 2 and 1. She was 1 up at the turn and although the match was squared on the tenth, Mrs. Meckley won the twelfth, thirteenth and fourteenth, making her 3 up.

Mrs. Nicolson Wins 15th and 16th.

Mrs. Nicolson staged a comback by winning the fifteenth and sixteenth holes, but when she lost the seventeenth by driving out of bounds, the match was over. The cards:

Out—
Mrs. Meckley	6	3	5	5	4	4	5	6	3	—41
Mrs. Nicolson	3	4	5	6	6	5	4	5	3	—41
In—
Mrs. Meckley	5	3	5	4	3	5	4	5	5	—39—80
Mrs. Nicolson	4	3	6	5	4	4	3	6	4	—39—80

In the second and third flights the final rounds were played yesterday, Mrs. H. B. Hird, Manor, capturing the second flight after a prolonged battle of 21 holes against Mrs. Frank R. Keefer, Chevy Chase. The consolation in the second flight was won by Mrs. E. M. McClelland, Manor, who defeated Mrs. Jerome Meyer, Woodmont, 1 up.

In the third flight, the winner was Mrs. B. C. Hartig, Manor, who defeated Mrs. P. L. Ransom, Army, Navy and Marine Corps, 3 and 2. The consolation in the third flight was won by Mrs. J. E. McCabe, Washington, 4 and 3, defeating Mrs. F. Kenyon, Bannockburn, 4 and 3.

CHAMPIONSHIP FLIGHT — Semifinal round—Mrs. Betty Meckley (Beaver Dam), defeated Mrs. Hugh T. Nicolson (Washington), 2 and 1; Mrs. S. F. Colladay (Columbia), defeated Miss Winifred Faunce (Manor), 1 up, 19 holes.

CONSOLATION—Miss Dorothy Hunter (unattached), defeated Mrs. Grace Bruines (unattached), 5 and 3; Miss Susan Hacker (Chevy Chase), defeated Mrs. McCook Knox (Chevy Chase), 5 and 3.

SECOND FLIGHT—Final round—Mrs. H. B. Hird (Manor), defeated Mrs. F. R. Keefer (Chevy Chase), 1 up, 21 holes.

CONSOLATION—Mrs. E. M. McClelland (Manor), defeated Mrs. Jerome Meyer (Woodmont), 1 up.

THIRD FLIGHT—Final round—Mrs. B. C. Hartig (Manor), defeated Mrs. Paul L. Ransom (Army, Navy and Marine Corps), 3 and 2.

CONSOLATION—Mrs. J. E. McCabe (Washington), defeated Mrs. F. Kenyon (Bannockburn), 4 and 3.

NATS BEATEN BY CHISOX, 10-6; DROP TO 3D PLACE

Homers Give Victory to Chicago

Burke and Thomas Pounded as Nats Lose Lead.

Bluege, Jolley and Jeffries Make Home Runs.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

COMISKEY PARK, Chicago, June 12.—The headway in the pennant race that the Nationals gained by their victory here yesterday was lost this afternoon when they bowed to the White Sox, 10 to 6. Coincident with Cleveland's 4-0 defeat of the Athletics at Cleveland, the Nats dropped to third place, still a game and a half behind the leaders, while the Indians usurped second place, a half game ahead of Washington.

Three home runs featured the game, Ossie Bluege, for the Nats, and Smead Jolley and Irvine Jeffries, of the home team, being the contributors. Bluege's clout came in the fourth with two on, and temporarily put the Nationals in the van, but Jolley's in the fifth, also with two on, gave the natives back the lead, and they added to it before the contest ended.

Bob Burke and Ted Lyons were the starting pitchers, the latter finally winning his ninth game after having lost four in a row since his eighth victory was turned in. He granted twelve hits, with Rice, Goslin and West getting two each, and probably would not have gone the route but for the big lead under which he wroked toward the end of the game.

Burke Not in Poor Form.

Burke did not pitch a poor game, allowing but six hits in as many rounds. Several were extra-basers, however, and were good for five alien runs. Myles Thomas, who relieved him, was ineffective, granting seven hits and five runs in two rounds. Had Thomas checked the home batters, the Nats would have won, for they rallied in the ninth to score three runs.

As the teams passed the half-way mark, the Nationals were leading by a run but quick as a flash conditions changed in the lower half of the fifth and the next canto started with the Sox on top, 5 to 3.

Cronin misjudged his ability as a ground-coverer in the second, rushing out between Goslin and West only to let Reynolds' looper drop out of his reach for a double, helping the natives to take the lead. This was turned into a run when Clancy singled after Cissell had fanned.

Nats Take Lead In Fourth.

This run stood up until the fourth when Goslin led off with a scratch single. After Cronin had lofted to Reynolds, Myer singled Goslin to third, advancing an extra base on the throw-in. Then Bluege, who has not been hitting well of late, decided to make up for lost time, and poled a homer into the stands in left.

The Sox got one of these runs back in their half, the result of Reynolds' opening triple, a base on balls, and Clancy's grasser, on which Cronin started a snappy double-play, and then rallied to pass the Nats in the next session. With one dead, Lyons singled and, after Kerr had lined to Goslin, Watwood singled. Jolley then followed Bluege's example, dropping a homer into the stands, although he selected the right-field sector, instead of the left, for his shot.

Chisox Clinch Game In Seventh.

Round seven contained a Washington threat, Pinch-hitter Tate singling and Rice walking with one dead, and then the Chisox sewed up the game with a three-run rally. Thomas, who had relieved Burke, was greeted by Autry's real single and Lyons' scratch hit. Kerr then sacrificed both along, one scoring on Watwood's high bounder off the home plate and two more registering when Reynolds came through with his third hit of the day, a line single to left-center.

A walk, a sacrifice and Jefferies' homer gave the Chisox two more in their eighth and then the Nats staged a rally but unavailing finish. A walk and theft by Cronin, and singles by West, Rice and Cronin were good for three runs, but these were not enough to change the complexion of the game.

NATS' OFFER OF TRADE SPURNED

Donie Bush Refuses to Listen to Plan for Reynolds Deal.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

CHICAGO, June 12.—Indications now are that if the Nationals do land a right-handed hitting outfielder in a trade, it will have to be in a deal with the St. Louis Browns. As a matter of fact, club officials will not even admit that they are trying to make a deal here, but there is a strong rumor that they were after Carl Reynolds, but that Donie Bush would not even listen to a Washington offer.

At this writing, Reynolds seems to be riding on the crest of a wave of popularity. While he did nothing to write home about while at bat in yesterday's game, he had a great day today. He has been making many timely hits, several of which have won games for the Sox, and is so popular that the White Sox boss probably would be afraid to let him go because of the adverse comment a move of this kind would make among the Chicago fans.

Deal in St. Louis Is Possibility.

Next to Reynolds, Fred Schulte, of the Browns, is said to be the player whom the Nats crave and there is a possibility that steps will be taken toward getting him, when the Washington Club arrives in St. Louis next Saturday morning. Manager Walter Johnson will admit nothing, however, except that he needs a hard-hitting club-swinger of right-handed persuasion; in fact, he believes that a player meeting these qualifications might just about "make" his club.

"We're right up there now in a fight which I believe will be a four-cornered one, for the Yankees are likely to have something to say about where the flag will fly next season," He said, "A little added punch at this time would do wonders."

Should the Nats fail to get Schulte from the Browns, their only hope is in picking up some one whom one of the other clubs has to free in order to be within the player limit of 25, which takes effect at midnight next Monday. Via the waiver route, Johnson can hardly hope to get a player capable of stepping in as a regular, but he might possibly pick up some one who would fill in as a utility man, especially as a pinch-hitter.

Tate Is Best of Pinch Hitters.

In this latter respect, the Nationals are also lamentably weak. Johnson has not a single right-handed hitter on his bench who likely would come through in a pinch role, while his best bet from among his extra southpaws is Catcher Bennie Tate. The latter failed earlier in the season, but cracked out a clean hit the last time he was called upon and repeated again today. He has been particularly effective in past seasons, it will be remembered, especially during the 1924 and 1925 seasons.

Weather permitting, the series with the White Sox will come to a close here tomorrow afternoon. Adolph Liska, honest although underhanded, will draw the Washington pitching assignment, while Skipper Donie Bush is expected to use Bob Weiland, a young southpaw.

Henry P. Edwards, manager of the service bureau of the American League, visited the Washington Club headquarters this morning accompanied by two photographers and every member of the Washington Club was snapped in his street clothes. It is the league's idea that fans would like to see their idols in other than their working clothes.

Idea Registers With Goslin.

The idea went over big with the players, especially with "Goose" Goslin. "They take all of those movie stars when they are all dressed up and I think it is a fine scheme to do the same with us. When they snap us in uniform, we're generally hot and all mussed up and the pictures don't do us justice. We've got some really good looking fellows on our club, better looking than some of those movie heroes." The Goose did not mention whether or not he classed himself among the "good-lookers."

IN THE WAKE OF THE GAME

COMISKEY PARK, Chicago, June 12.—There has been considerable discussion among the "grandstand" managers regarding Manager Walter Johnson's policy of invariably calling for the hit and run, instead of the sacrifice in an effort to advance runners who have gotten base life at the start of innings. While the former undoubtedly is the more effective when it works, it is not working often due to the fact that the rival infielders now look for this play.

Not only do the third and first sackers play their regular positions, dismissing the possibility of bunts, but the second-sacker and shortfielder do not leave their positions until after the ball has been hit. As this plan of alien defense seems to have checked the Nats' effectiveness on this play, it looks as if it would be smart baseball on Johnson's part to change his mode of attack.

West led off with a single in today's game and was an easy victim at second on Rice's roller to Cissell and it was only because of the batter's speed that a double play did not result. Rice managed to beat the ball to first by a small margin and to carry on to second when Kerr's peg hit him.

Cronin went well over toward second to make a nice play on Watwood's roller in the first, but tried to cover too much territory in the second when he called for the catch on Reynolds' looper to short left and the ball fell safe for a double. This later was turned into a Chicago run.

Starting the Nats' second, Kerr traveled to left center to make a nice catch of Myer's near Texas Leaguer.

The official scorer was unable to decide whether an error should be charged to Cissell or Clancy on Goslin's tap in the fourth and so he compromised by giving the Goose a hit. The tap was right at Cissell, but Clancy stumbled getting back to first and the second sacker held the ball too long before making the peg.

Sammy West came in fast to take Jeffries' pop fly ending the home fourth, just when it looked as though Myer would duplicate Cronin's act of the second frame and call for a ball which he couldn't get. Just previously Jeffries had driven a foul into the stands in left, which missed being a homer, which would have tied the score, by only a yard or so.

Rice, who had his second long consecutive-game hitting streak of the season broken at seventeen yesterday, started another by singling in the fifth canto today.

Reynolds crashed a drive, which sent West almost to the flagpole in deep center for a good catch ending round 5.

Lyons raced in front of Clancy for Bluege's grasser in the sixth, taking the ball only about 2 yards from the initial sack.

Burke made a nice catch ending the sixth. On Jeffries' pop near the box, both Bluege and Cronin called for it. Bob stepped aside and then, just as the ball was about to fall safe, made a dive for it and snared it.

Lyons, who hits right-handed against southpaws and left-handed when facing orthodox flingers, made hits from both sides of the plate today. He singled cleanly off Burke in the fifth, shot one past Bluege against Thomas in the seventh and then doubled in the eighth. On his blow in the "stretch" frame, Bluege made a nice barehand stop, but he was in no position to throw out the runner at first.

Watwood raced back and well toward right to rob Hayes of at least a double ending the eighth round.

INDIANS BEAT A'S TO GAIN 2D PLACE

Brown Gives 4 Hits as Homers Aid in 4-0 Victory.

CLEVELAND, June 12 (A.P.).—Stacking up three home runs, one of which scored two men, Cleveland defeated Philadelphia today, 4 to 0, and landed within one game of first place in the American League. The Indians displaced Washington in the runner-up berth.

Two of the homers were made by Morgan in the third and seventh innings. These were his tenth and eleventh of the season. Myatt's homer in the second scored Averill ahead of him. Averill had been hit by a pitched ball.

This was Brown's seventh victory of the season. He allowed the Athletics only four hits. Earnshaw permitted the Indians eight hits.

Yanks Pound Hoyt To Beat Tigers, 14-2

Detroit, June 12 (A.P.).—The Yankees had their bats in good working order today and so evened matters with the Tigers, winning the second game of the series, 14 to 2.

Ed Wells, who once wore a Tiger uniform, held his former teammates to six scattered hits, while the Yanks hopped on Waite Hoyt, once of New York, and his successors, Charlie Sullivan and Red Herring, for 22 safeties. Babe Ruth drove out his twentieth home run of the season with a smash over the right field fence in the fourth to lead the attack in which every Yank, who started the game, made at least one hit.

FOUL UNSEEN BY REFEREE, JUDGE

Jacobs Calls on All the World to Witness Low Blow.

Fainting Philip Scott, of England, but won, nevertheless.

Sharkey stood, stately and composed, although gnawing at his upper lip. In a few seconds more the fight was over, and, with Jacobs still screaming for his million-dollar prize, Crowley decided to concur with Barnes on the foul.

There have been only three important heavyweight prize fights since last Christmas and all of them were marred by claims of foul. Otto Von Porat fouled Fainting Philip Scott in the Garden ring last December with $90,000 worth of trade on hand. Sharkey fouled Scott in Miami two months later with a gate of $190,000, but won nevertheless. Tonight's happening seemed to prove that the foremost prize fighters nowadays can't fight more than four rounds without fouling.

Rule Would Deprive Sharkey of Purse.

There is a rule on the books of the New York Prize Fight Commission forfeiting a prize fighter's money in proportion to the rounds remaining unfought when he delivers a fould and according to this Sharkey would be kcdoed about $148,000 of his money, amounting roughly to $185,000, receiving pay only for the rounds fairly fought.

This would reduce his honoarium to about $37,000, but it appears that the prize fight commissioners made a secret decision to waive their own rule in this prize fight because it involved so much money. Humble prize fighters will continue to feel the discipline of the commission when the foul out and if this exception be class legislation it is nothing to some of the legislation that the New York Prize Fight Commissioners have handed down in the past. As usual, however, there will be no redress for the customers.

Broadcasting of Fight In Germany Is Foul

Berlin, June 12 (A.P.).—Radio broadcasting of the Sharkey-Schmeling fight turned out to be a series of fouls in Germany.

For the first, atmospheric conditions wrecked the broadcasting on short waves from the United States, and the fans had to be content with a fragmentary report relayed by local announcers. For the second, thousands of listeners in cafes were disqualified between the first and second rounds for listening after the police closing hour and were forced to leave without hearing the result.

A number of places continued to bootleg the radio returns after dimming their lights, however, so that some of the listeners heard the story of how Schmeling gained the decision on a foul.

Finals Are Reached In Woodmont Golf

The final round in the women's golf championship at the Woodmont Club will be played this morning between Mrs. R. Goldenberg and Mrs. E. R. Nordlinger. In the semifinal round yesterday, Mrs. Goldenberg won by default from Mrs. J. Nordlinger, while Mrs. E. R. Nordlinger defeated Mrs. H. Bensinger, 5 and 4. The second flight was won by Mrs. T. D. Peyser, wh odefeated Mrs. J. Schulman, 3 and 2.

Abolition of Baseball Announced at Gonzaga

A definite decision to abandon baseball in favor of track was made yesterday by Gonzaga High School after a consideration of the move for the last few days. The move closely follows a similar one by Devitt, which announced its intention to major in track early this week.

With a cinder path planned for its new stadium at Thirty-fourth street and Bennings road, Gonzaga will be well equipped for track.

Phils Beat Cubs, 5-3, Before Rain Falls in 6th

Philadelphia, June 12 (A.P.).—Claude Willoughby scored his first victory of the season today when the Phillies won an abbreviated game with the Chicago Cubs by 5 to 3, the Phils thus taking the lead in the series. The game was stopped in the sixth because of rain.

The Phillies knocked Osborn out of the box when they clinched the game in the fourth inning. Chuck Klein, Phils rightfielder, made three singles and ran his consecutive game hitting streak to 29 games.

English hit a home run for the Cubs.

SPECULATIVE TREND RULES STOCK SALES

Closing Prices Are Slightly Lower Following Erratic Course.

BROKER LOANS DECLINE

New York, June 12 (A.P.).—Trading in stocks followed a speculative pattern today. Prices declined sufficiently in the forenoon to carry several important issues to new lows for the year, but recovered in the afternoon, only to relinquish part of the rally in late profit taking. Closing quotations were in the main moderately lower.

With the exception of some distress liquidation that came out in the early hours, the day's movements seemed to be largely the result of professional operations. There was little news and that was of a mixed character. At least two developments received a favorable interpretation, first, the success of the German loan and, second, the ease in call money.

The Young plan bonds, offered at 90, were said to have been well taken and commanded a premium of about a point when admitted to unlisted trading privileges. Money renewed at 3 per cent, but dropped to 2½, the lowest in more than two months, and was available outside as low at 2. Repayment of loans was substantial.

Copper Prices Are Cut.

Two successive cuts of ¼ cent each were made in the price of copper, bringing the figure down to 12½ cents. Most of the larger producers, however, held to the 13-cent level. The reduction followed an announced increase in stocks of the red metal.

The brokers' loan figures showed a decline of $103,000,000. Although some surprise was expressed at the size of the decrease in view of the extent of this week's losses in quoted values, it was pointed out that much of the selling had been of the short variety. Loans for out-of-town banks rose $58,000,000, but those for New York City member banks' own accounts fell $112,000,000.

The weekly Federal Reserve statement disclosed a shrinkage of $35,000,000 in the total of credit outstanding and also a moderate decline in discounts. Holdings of Government securities gained $35,000,000.

160 New Lows Recorded.

A survey of the stock list revealed that about 160 stocks had made new lows. In this connection, however, it was pointed out that the entire list is now not far from the year's bottom and that each successive decline may be expected to uncover a rather large number of fresh minimums. Among the issues breaking through their previous low levels were American Telephone, New York Central, Chrysler, Auburn Auto, Studebaker, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio, Lackawanna, Lambert, Simmons, Bethlehem Steel, Gillette, Union Carbide, Sears Roebuck and Pullman.

The fluctuations of the so-called pivotal stocks were within a range of 3 to 6 points. U. S. Steel, for example, got as low as 161, but the appearance of prompt support, apparently from the large banking interests which were reported to have placed large orders for the stock at that figure, caused a prompt retreat by the short interest, and it rallied to 165, closing 2 points lower for a new loss of half a point.

American Telephone sold down to 215 but recovered to 218½. At the closing price of 216½ it was 1½ below Wednesday's final quotation. American can broke to 219, moved back to 135 and closed at 132, off 2½. New York Central's minimum was 163½, its high 168 and its closing price 167½, up 1¾. Standard Oil of New Jersey broke below 70, finishing at 71 for a small net loss.

J. I. Case Loses 5 Points.

The widest fluctuation of the day was made by the volatile J. I. Case, which traveled a 17¾-point course to close 5 points lower. Eastman Kodak, Allied Chemical, Worthington Pump and Auburn Auto also made broad moves.

Commodities again declined. Wheat averaged about a cent and a half lower and corn eased fractionally. New crop cotton months touched new lows for the season on a break of $4 a bale in July, the spot month. Covering reduced the declines and the close was steady at a net decline of 2 to 9 points on the later deliveries and 32 points on July. Sugar futures also made new lows and likewise recovered.

Foreign exchanges were rather mixed. Sterling firmed, but the Spanish peseta dropped several points.

Rumors were numerous throughout the day. One of these reports said that the Morgan interests have acquired indirectly a large block of National City Bank stock. Although the holding was said to be insufficient to represent control, it was reported large enough to insure representation on the board of directors. Confirmation was lacking.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, June 12 (A.P.).—Cotton was nervous and unsettled today with a sharp early decline under a renewal of trailing liquidation in July contracts, followed by rallies in the later trading.

Offerings of July were more active and urgent than previously this week with the decline extending to 14.21 or 79 points below yesterday's closing quotation. The decline was checked at this level by covering, while the offerings tapered off and the near month closed at 14.68, representing a recovery of about 47 points from the lowest.

New crop months broke early with new October selling off to 13.48, but later rallied to 13.75 for that position which closed at 13.66. The general market closed steady at a net decline of 32 points on July and of 2 to 9 points on later deliveries.

The opening was steady at a decline of 3 to 8 points under selling promoted by relatively easy cables, a generally favorable view of the weather news, and small private consumption figures for May. There was considerable covering which absorbed the early offerings, but it was supplied on bulges of a few points, and the market soon weakened under more active liquidation of the July position which was supposed to include selling for both foreign and domestic account.

The near month weakness had an unsettled effect on the general list, but the offerings tapered off after the break of nearly $4 per bale from yesterday's closing quotation. New crop months sold about 23 to 27 points net lower while the July liquidation was in progress, with old October selling down to 13.47 and December to 13.65 but were steadied at these figures by covering and made new high prices for the day on some position in the later trading.

The old October sold up to 14.08 or 5 points net higher and the new December rallied to 13.89 but closed several points off under realizing or liquidation. Closing quotation for July showed a premium of 102 points over new October compared with 125 points at the close of the previous day.

The New York Cotton Exchange service estimated domestic consumption for May at 481,000 bales compared with 668,000 last year with the daily rate about 7,300 bales less than a year ago. Part of the earlier selling here was attributed to weakness in the stock market when rallies in stocks may have brought in some Wall street buying later.

Exports today 3,498, making 6,549,171 so far this season. Port receipts 5,096; United States port stocks, 1,715,142.

NEW GERMAN OFFER MARKS BOND SHARES

$1,050,000 of Issue Sold; Flotation Depresses Foreign Section.

DOMESTIC LIST UNEASY

New York, June 12 (A.P.). — The German Government International 5½ per cent bond made its debut in the dealings on the New York Stock Exchange today and was hailed a great success, with sales at a premium and sales totaling $1,050,000.

The appearance of the bond on a when-issued basis, simultaneously with the offering of the $98,250,000 American portion of the $300,000,000 German loan was easily the feature of the day's developments in the listed bond market. Bond men were elated, as considerable trepidation has been evidenced as to the reception it would be accorded. The German bond sold as high as 91¼, and closed at 90⅜ as compared with the offering price of 90.

Competition of the German issue depressed other bonds in the foreign group, and the domestic list was irregular at the close. Trading, however, was in a broad list, and the sales for the day maintained the level of the last two days.

Uncertainty over the German issue, probably the largest peace-time bond offering ever made, though dwarfed by war loans, has been regarded as one of the principal factors in the desultory course of the market since last March's spurt. With its terms known and the bonds definitely started into the channels that ultimately lead to the strong boxes of permanent investors, the market is expected to respond. A further stimulus is the reduction today of the call money rate from 3 to 2½ per cent. With money available at 2½ officially, and 2 per cent in the outside market, bond houses expect investors will be attracted by the profitable return offered by bonds of high yields.

The inquiry for railroad bonds was extensive, but few rose appreciably and many yielded ground. St. Paul 5s ended the day with the price at the lowest this year. Rail convertibles were ¼ to ½ point lower. International Telephone 4½s declined 2 points, but quite a few stock privilege issues tuned up with the late rally in stocks and were higher at the close.

Sales of United States Govenments tapered off with prices steady. Liberty 3½s and Treasury 3⅜s of 43-47 made new 1930 highs. The demand was small, however, except for Liberty 4th 4¼s, which held unchanged.

FRASER ELECTED AID TO GAS LIGHT FIRMS

Capital Man Will Serve as Vice President for Both Companies.

OTHER OFFICERS NAMED

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

George B. Fraser, reelected vice president of the Georgetown Gas Light Co., yesterday, was also elected vice president of the Washington Gas Light Co., succeeding Robert D. Weaver, who resigned to devote his time to other business affairs, notably those of the Georgetown Gas Light Co., of which he was reelected president yesterday.

Mr. Fraser is a native of Washington, his great-grandfather, James Fraser, coming here from Scotland in 1817, and the family has lived here ever since. He formerly was vice president and trust officer of the Munsey Trust Co.

In addition to Mr. Fraser, all other officers of the Georgetown Gas Light Co. were reelected yesterday and a prosperous business year was reported. Officers are Robert D. Weaver, president; George B. Fraser, vice president; Frederick K. Heupel, secretary and assistant treasurer; A. Gray Dawson treasurer; Richard A Ennis general auditor; James S. McInhenny engineer and Wilton J. Lambert general counsel.

Directors are Robert D. Weaver, George A. G. Wood, Fred S. Burroughs, Wilton J. Lambert, Charles C. Glover, jr., George B. Fraser and James M. Green.

Capitol Title Co. Sold.

Purchase of the Capitol Title & Guarantee Co. by the New York Title & Mortgage Co. was announced yesterday. The local company became affiliated with the New York concern in April and its management was placed in the hands of Ernest M. Weaver, assistant vice president of the New York firm. It is understood the New York company expects to continue the local organization as a branch office.

The local company opened offices in the Chandler Building in 1928 and became the representative of the New York firm in the District and adjacent counties of Maryland and Virginia.

Real Estate Mortgage Officers.

At the annual meeting of the Real Estate Mortgage & Guaranty Co., held yesterday, all officers and directors were reelected, a good business year reported and the semiannual dividend of 4 per cent on preferred stock was declared payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 20.

Officers are L. E. Breuninger, president; Thomas Somerville, Horace G. Smithy and Arthur Carr, vice presidents; W. F. Stickle, secretary, and Anton Stephan, treasurer. Directors: Henry L. Breuninger, L. E. Breuninger, Arthur Carr, Charles A. Carry, Wade H. Cooper, Fred Drew, T. C. Dulin, C. S. Duncan, Edward C. Ernst, Hayden Johnson, Sol Lansburgh, William Muehlsien, Horace G. Smithy, Thomas Somerville, Thomas Somerville, jr., Ariton Stephan and W. F. Stickle.

Election of Charles Carroll Morgan, a comanager of the Washington office of G. M.-P. Murphy Co., to the directorate of the Federal Storage Co., was reported yesterday. Mr. Morgan, prior to his association with the Murphy firm, was in charge of the bond department of John L. Edwards & Co. He is a former president, a charter member and a governor of the Bond Club of Washington.

Brooke Brewer has become affiliated with the local office of Mackubin, Goodrich & Co., managed by Kortright Church. Mr. Brewer was born in this city and educated in the local schools and the University of Maryland, in which institution he attained a national reputation as a football player. Prior to becoming associated with the foregoing firm of bankers, he was engaged in business for himself, dealing in automobile tires, oil and gasoline.

Prudential Building Directed.

At the latest regular meeting of the Prudential Building Association, its directors declared the regular semiannual dividend at the rate of 6 per cent per annum, payable July 1, on passbook payments of record June 5 Tuesday's low score in the second annual nonhandicap golf tournament of members of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, being played at Bannockburn Golf Club for the W. W. Spaid Cup, was won by Nathan Poole, Federal-American National Bank; Wednesday's, by Vincent Sheehy, Washington Loan & Trust Co.

Bond Club Outing.

The outing of the Bond Club of Washington will be held this afternoon and evening at the Burning Tree Club. Annual elections and a dinner will be held. There will be golf, putting, horseshoe pitching, stock exchange and ping pong contests.

Ralph Hayes, private secretary to former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker in 1916, has been elected vice president of Transamerica Corporation, international bank holding company.

At a recent regular meeting of the board of directors of Emerson's Bromo-Seltzer, Inc., the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share was declared on the preferred stock and common stock classes "A" and "B," which becomes payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 14.

District National Bank Director.

At the regular meeting of the board of directors of District National Bank held yesterday Dr. Arthur L. Day, noted physicist and a business executive, was elected a director of the bank to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late N. L. Sansbury. Dr. Day is a distinguished leader in the scientific world, being director of the geophysical laboratory of the Carnegie Institution of Washington and vice president of the Corning Glass Works, Corning, N. Y.

He is a member of the National Academy of Science, a bachelor of arts and doctor of philosophy of Yale, a doctor of science of Columbia and Princeton, a member and former president of the Washington Academy of Science, a member of the Geological Society of America, a member and past president of the American Physicists Society, a member of the American Chemical Society, American Philosophical Society and a foreign member of the Academy of del Lincei of Rome and of the Turin Academy. He was awarded the John Scott Medal for scientific achievement in 1923. He is also a member of the University Club, of New York City, and of the Cosmos Club, of this city.

Potatoes' Price Structure Sound

Fair Production of Apples Seen; Small Peach Crop Forecast.

The demand for potatoes has been active this season, and the underlying position seems fairly good, the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported yesterday, and there was an upturn in prices this week. The output for June will hardly be greater than last year, however, and probably much below June, 1926 and 1927.

Another year of moderate production of apples is in prospect, according to the June report, although the output may be a little larger than that of 1929. Condition in Virginia is rather low at 34 per cent compared with 57 last year and in Maryland also the percentage of 50 is lower than that of June, 1929. Condition of the peach crop as reported in June was lowest since 1921, and total production on basis of condition would be a little less than last year or the five-year average.

Outlook for the pear crop is slightly better than for apples, owing chiefly to large production expected in the Pacific Coast region and favorable conditions in western New York, but a light set is indicated. The prospect is for light yields in Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia. Watermelons are in moderate but increasing supply in Northern markets, and prices tend steadily downward, but large melons were still bringing 75 cents to $1 each.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, June 12 (A.P.).—The Valspar Corporation announced today that it has merged the Detroit Graphite Co., of Detroit, Mich., and the Dominion Paint Works, Ltd., of Walkerville, Ontario, with its already existing units. Plans for consolidating the activities of the two units do no contemplate any change in management or loss of identity. Headquarters of the Detroit Graphite Co. will remain in Detroit and the officers will remain as at present, certain of them to be elected directors of the Valspar Corporation.

Henry A. Scandrett, president of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific Railroad, said that the road expects in the next few months to effect some savings in maintenance, which so far this year have been about on a par with last year. He said that grain loadings so far this month have been about the same as last year, and that loadings of other commodities are somewhat behind a year ago.

O. F. Van Sweringen has been elected a director and chairman of the board of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad. Other directors elected were Alva Bradley, Leonard P. Ayres, D. S. Barrett, jr.; John Sherwin, jr.; H. G. Dalton and G. A. Tomlinson, all of Cleveland; A. D. Geoghegan, New Orleans; John R. Flippin, Memphis, and W. W. Reilley, Buffalo, N. Y.

William H. Williams resigned today as chairman of the board and member of the managing committee of the Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad. He will be succeeded by L. W. Baldwin, president of the Missouri Pacific, which with Western Pacific jointly controls the Denver & Rio Grande Western. It was said that a special stockholders' meeting would be called to elect the Van Sweringen directors who have applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to place seven representatives on the road of nine.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, June 12 (A.P.).—Big selling and sharp breaks in prices for wheat today followed rains that assured better prospects for spring wheat growth, especially of the Canadian crop. Auspicious conditions for the harvest of domestic winter wheat had also a bearish influence, and North American export business was of only limited volume, most of it Canadian. Acute weakness of the cash market, with prices outdoing any previous low record for since 1914, tended further to pull wheat values down.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled 1¼c to 1¾c lower than yesterday's finish, but ¾c to 1c up from today's bottom level. Corn closed ¼c to ⅝c down, oats ⅛c to ¾c off and provisions unchanged to 10c decline.

Although some liberalized standing orders to purchase wheat on declines helped at times to rally the market, buying was for the most part confined to persons who were able to collect a profit. In some quarters special significance was attached to the fact that no brisk upturns in values were achieved, although prices today were below any point reached since the middle of May. Bears made much also of sharp breaks shown in today's closing quotations on wheat at Liverpool, and of the fact that export demand was apparently not stimulated by price declines on this side of the Atlantic, late estimates putting today's European takings from North America at 600,000 bushels or less.

At today's bottom figures, wheat values here showed a maximum setback of 7¾c a bushel compared with yesterday's close. This stage was reached simultaneously with receipt of a forecast of more showers for Canada. Reports of excellent rains in the American Northwest, Weakness of the Liverpool market was ascribed to pressure of American hard winter wheat for an outlet abroad as well as to improvement of conditions in Canada, France, Italy and Russia.

Corn and oats went lower, chiefly as a result of wheat weakness, but corn was steadied later by vessel charters taken out for shipment of 385,000 bushels of corn to Buffalo.

Despite firmness of the hog market, provisions were responsive to downturns in the value of grain.

Closing indemnities:

Wheat—July, 1.01⅜ to 1.01½, 1.04½ to 1.04⅝; September, 1.04½ to 1.04⅝, 1.07¼ to 1.07⅜; December, 1.09¾ to 1.09¾, 1.12½ to 1.12⅝. Corn—July, 79¼ to 79¼, 80½ to 80⅝; September, 80 to 80⅛, 81⅛.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

VALUE OF PROPERTY JUMPS $30,000,000

Alexandrians Hear Speech by Assesor Hinting at Decrease in Levy.

GRADUATION RITES SET

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

An increase in assessed valuation of real property in Alexandria from $15,000,000 to $45,000,000, and a reduction in the tax rate to yield the city slightly more revenue than at present, was seen at the mass meeting of property owners held Wednesday night, when C. S. Taylor Burke, one of the board of assessors recently appointed to make an assessment, addressed the meeting. Mr. Burke said he had been told by Charles H. Callahan, commissioner of revenue, that the present rate is based on approximately 35 per cent of the actual value of the property, and the intention of the board is to make the valuation somewhere near the actual value, with a reduction in the tax rate from the present figure of $2.65 on each $100 to probably $1 per $100. The final figures, Mr. Burke said, will not be turned over to the city council until that body agrees to lower the present tax rate. The city council is understood to be figuring on a rate of $1 per $100.

Walter W. Pollock, of the Manufacturers Appraisal Co., of Philadelphia, engaged in the task of making maps and gathering other data in connection with t' land assessment now under way, addressed the meeting. Several persons asked questions regarding the assessment now in progress, which were explained. The first protest against tentative values placed upon certain properties, on behalf of a number of residents of Murtle and Maple avenues, was entered by P. J. Conlon in a written petition addressed to the board of assessors. This directs attention to the fact that the tentative valuation of property on these streets is placed at 20 cent a unit foot, and that the streets are unimproved. The sewer lines, it was pointed out, are on private property and were constructed at the cost of the property owners, and the valuation placed on these properties is compared with 17½ cents for Mount Ida avenue, which is improved with a concrete roadway. The petitioners also expressed the opinion that the valuation on Holly street of 12½ cents a foot is excessive.

It was suggested at the meeting that meetings be held from time to time and the assessors notify property owners through the press of assessments made so that a better understanding may be had by having small groups discuss particular sections in which they are interested.

The gathering was a representative one, and in addition to property owners, was attended by a number of real estate men and several members of the city council.

The annual graduation exercises of the Alexandria High School will be held at 8:1 o'clock tonight in the auditorium of the Maury School. The address will be delivered by Dr. Walter R. Siders, field representative of the World Federation of Education Association. R. C. Bowton, superintendent of schools, will preside over the exercises, and invocation will be by the Rev. Emmett R. Spencer, pastor of Trinity M. E. Church, who will also pronounce the benediction.

Carroll Pierce, for the Kiwanis Club, will present rizes to the valedictorian and salutatorian. Lawrence Roland will present a special prize on behalf of the Rotary Club, and Henry T. Moncure, principal of the high school, will also present awards. The diplomas will be presented by Gardner L. Boothe, vice chairman of the school board. The valedictory will be by Charles T. Nicholson, jr.

Jefferson Graded School will hold its commencement exercises at 2 o'clock this afternoon, and the pupils who are leaving the seventh grade to enter high schoo lwill be addressed by the Rev. Pierce S. Ellis, D. D., pastor of the First Baptist Church.

Mary Washington Council, No. 4, Daughters of America, has elected these officers for the ensuing year: Councilor, James R. Mansfield; associate councilor, Mrs. Ethel Mitchell; vice-councilor, Mrs. Alice Robinson; associate vice councilor, Mrs. Viola Hudson; recording secretary, Samuel T. Park; assistant recording secretary, Miss Margaret Travers; financial secretary, L. J. Allen; treasurer, R. H. Hancock; conductor, Mrs. Iva Smith; warden, Mrs. Grace Ebhardt; inside sentinel, Mrs. Lucetta Monroe; outside sentinel, Mrs. Ruth Harrison; trustee for eighteen moths, Mrs. Annie Henry.

Officers will be installed at the council meeting in July by Deputy State Councilor Miss Sophie Mann, of Cherrydale.

Graduates of the Alexandria and George Mason High Schools were guests of the Kiwanis Club at its weekly luncheon yesterday in the George Mason Hotel. Approximately 100 students attended. A talk was made by Charles T. Nicholson, jr., valedictorian of the Alexandria High School and songs were given by the classes of the two schools. Robert G. Carter, president of the Kiwanis, presided, and the program was in charge of W. Selden Washington.

Robert Le Bruce Chapter, Order of DeMolay, sponsored by Mitheras Lodge of Perfection, of Washington, will confer both of its degrees tomorrow night in the George Washington Masonic National Memorial Temple here at 8 o'clock, on a clas of 100 young men. A large gathering of Masons of Alexandria, Washington and vicinity is expected to attend.

Fitzgerald Council No. 459, Knights of Columbus, has elected these officers for the year: William Lindsey Carne, grand knight; William Nugent, chancellor; Thomas J. McFarland, treasurer; Martin E. Greene, advocate; Carl Rothmund, warden; Thomas J. O'Reilly, inside guard; William H. Myers, outside guard; the Rev. Joseph Kelly, chaplain; William J. Greenan, financial secretary; delegates to the Chamber of Commerce, William A. Devaughan, with W. L. Carne as alternate.

The new officers will be installed July 9, when they will assume the dutles of tehir new offices.

The body of Mrs. Helen Walters Tomlin, wife of J. Robert Tomlin, a native of Alexandria, who died suddenly Wednesday at her home in Brooklyn, N. Y., as the result of an attack of heart trouble, was brought here yesterday for burial. The funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Tomlin is survived by a 15-year-old son, Walter Tomlin.

Funeral services for Mrs. Sigourney Ann Lloyd, 78 years old, widow of Robert Lloyd, who died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles C. Ross, Franconia, will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from the home of Mrs. Ross. Interment will be in Ivy Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Lloyd is survived by these children: L. E. Lloyd, of Orange; Mrs. W. C. Blankenbaker, Madison; Miss Belle Lloyd, Astoria, N. Y.; Mrs. C. C. Ross, Franconia, and Mrs. C. W. Perry, Franconia.

SCHOOL BOARD LETS LOUDOUN CONTRACTS

Building and Transportation Work Allotted at June Meeting of Body.

TEACHERS ARE NAMED

Special to The Washington Post.

Purcellville, Va., June 12.—The dates for the opening of the colored schools were set, various contracts for constructing and repairing schools were awarded, bids for the transportation of pupils were accepted and white and colored teachers were elected at the monthly meeting of the Loudoun County School Board held in the office of the county superintendent in Purcellville Tuesday.

The colored schools will open for the 1930-31 session on Wednesday, September 24, and the teachers' institute will be held on Tuesday, September 23.

The superintendent was authorized to purchase floor oil, chalk and erasers in quantity lots. John P. Bodmer will transport Pleasant Valley and Arcola pupils to Aldie at $116.60 monthly, S. P. Alexander from Millville to Middleburg at $90 monthly. Contracts were offered to E. T. Crim from Salem to Hillsboro at $75 monthly, to J. F. Fleming from Edgegrove to Hillsboro at $75 monthly, and J. A. Seaton from Daysville and Broad Run to Ashburn at $160 monthly.

Auditorium Job Let.

The contract for the construction of the Round Hill Auditorium was awarded to Clarence Case at $11,410, this sum to cover all labor and material for the job complete, including heating and electrical wiring, except lighting fixtures for the nine auditorium outlets, providing that the heating subcontract be let to Earl Poston by the contractor.

Bidders were awarded contracts for painting and the superintendent or a district trustee was authorized to attend to repair work on certain buildings during the summer.

The superintendent reported that Miss Louelle Brown had declined to accept her position at Lovettsville. Miss Katherine Bridges was transferred to Waterford and Miss Emma Clemens to Ashburn.

Teachers Are Appointed.

The following white teachers were appointed: Laura Green, Pleasant Valley; J. Lupton Simpson, principal of Waterford; Pauline Bell, Brooklyn; Minnie Lee Kepler, Emerick; Emma Wenner, Milltown; Elizabeth DeKay, high school subjects, Unison-Bloomfield, Rymple Cross, Lovettsville; Mrs. Mary B. Potts, home economics, Lincoln; Blanche Hutchison, Woodburn.

Colored teachers were named as follows: Christine Allen, Conklin; Theodora Ross, Nokes; J. A. Arter, Hillsboro; B. W. Murray, Mt. Gap; W. A. Walker, Mt. Pleasant; Anne Arnold, principal, Middleburg; Rosa Carter, primary, Middleburg; Cornelia Smith, Bull Run; Gertrude Stewart, Marble Quarry; Anna Gaskins, Willisville; Mrs. B. M. Norton, principal, Purcellville; Curtie Wing, Lincoln; C. L. Murray, Powell's Grove; Edythe O. Harris, high school, Leesburg; Leesburg J. C. Walker, principal, Leesburg; Annie Harris, intermediate grades, Leesburg; Mary Waters, primary grades, Leesburg.

Petersburg Students Hold Commencement

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., June 12.—Commencement exercises of the Petersburg High School took place tonight in the auditorium of the school building. There were 97 graduates, the largest number in the history of the school. The invocation was by the Rev. Henry C. Pfeffer, D. D., and the salutatory by Miss Helen Stephenson. Diplomas were awarded by Henry G. Ellis, superintendent of public schools. Medals and scholarships were awarded by H. D. Wolff, principal of the high school. Prizes were awarded by H. Augustine Miller, jr., assistant principal of the high school.

The address to the graduates was made by Dr. Walter R. Siders, distinguished speaker, author and teacher. Music was furnished by the high school orchestra.

AMUSEMENT PARK PROJECT PROPOSED

TRADERS LICENSES JUMP

The Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission has been asked by the Prince Georges County Commissioners to make a study of the possibilities of circumventing efforts to establish a colored amusement park on Defense highway between Vista and Lanham. Residents of Lanham have opposed opening the park.

As the proposed amusement place is outside of the metropolitan area and not subject to the zoning laws and the jurisdiction of the park and planning commission, it is not believed that there is any way to bar the opening of the park unless some legal step which is not now apparent is discovered.

M. Hampton Magruder, counsel to the county commissioners, is making a study of the situation.

The Prince Georges County Commissioners will meet with the road committee for Bowie District June 28 to discuss the opening of a new road to connect with the underpass at Amundel Station. The grade crossing at this point was closed by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

The number of traders licenses issued by the office of Summerfield D. Hall, clerk of the Circuit Court at Upper Marlboro, in the month of May, is believed to be a record for the county. There were 858 licenses issued, costing $17,146. There were 701 licenses issued in May of last year.

Brice Bowie, clerk of the county commissioners, has been directed by the board to suggest to the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad that the grade crossing at Sunnyside is extremely dangerous and that an underpass be built at this point. The action was taken upon the recommendation of the Vansville District road committee, of which Robert J. Houston is secretary.

In his report, Mr. Houston told the commissioners that the crossing is very high and narrow and that the approach from each side is wide enough for only one way traffic.

Prince Georges County Commissioner William A. Duvall left last night for Seattle, Wash., where he is to attend a meeting of the board of trustees of General Grand Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star. He is chairman of the board of right worthy grand trustees of the General Grand Chapter. The chapter meets every four years.

A special meeting of the Hyattsville town council will be held Monday night to discuss assessments against new property. Bids will be opened for a 350-foot long strip of concrete roadway with curbs and sidewalks on Schoepf avenue, which will give an outlet to Rhode Island avenue by way of Park avenue.

Hyattsville's tax rate for the new fiscal year will remain at 70 cents per $100 despite the increase in expenses because of the trash and garbage collection service recently inaugurated, an increase of $1,000 in the library appropriation, the outlay of from $4,500 to $5,200 for the lighting of Rhode Island avenue extended, an increase in police costs and other expenses. The addition of about $175,000 to the town's assessable basis has made the maintenance of the present tax rate possible.

The Penn Oil Co. has filed suit in the Circuit Court at Upper Marlboro, naming the county commissioners and the mayor and council of Laurel as defendants, in an effort to compel the issuance of a permits for the erection of a gasoline filling station at Montgomery avenue and the Baltimore Boulevard. The company has been fighting for the permit for nearly a year.

The town commissioners refused the permit on the ground that the property involved is in residential section and is across the street from the Baptist Church. The oil company, through Attorney T. Howard Duckett, charges that the refusal to grant the permit is arbitrary and without due regard to the rights of the company in the use of its property.

A tax rate of 25 cents per $100 has been fixed by the mayor and council of the town of Edmonston. This is the same rate as that fixed last year. Taxes in the town will be due July 1.

FALLS CHURCH MAN FREED IN RUM CASE

Fairfax Jury Finds Verdict of Not Guilty for Mills; Woman Is Fined.

RICE HERD AGAIN FIRST

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

Joseph Mills, of Falls Church, was found not guilty of a second offense of the State prohibition law by a jury yesterday in the Fairfax County Circuit Court. Mills and his son were arrested last month, after it was alleged that he had sold liquor to one of the Fairfax County police.

Dorothy Jones, of Seneca, Va., pleaded guilty to possession of liquor and destroying evidence. A fine of $50 and costs and 30 days in jail was imposed by Judge Walter T. McCarthy, but the court suspended the jail sentence during good behavior.

On petition of citizens of Mount Vernon magisterial district, of Fairfax County, the court appointed Arthur D. Kerby as justice of the peace in that district. The petition stated that this district requires a greater number of justices than the State code provides for and they asked the court to appoint Kerby. Kerby qualified yesterday before Clerk of the Court F. W. Richardson.

The May term of the court adjourned yesterday afternoon and there will be no more sessions in the county until September 15.

The herd of 31 mixed cows belonging to C. T. Rice, of Oakton, for the fourth time in succession led the milk and butter fat production in Fairfax Herd Improvement Association No. 2, by taking the lead last month.

The total production of the herd No. 2 was 688,720 pounds of milk and 2,722.27 pounds of butter fat, which makes the herd average 724.9 pounds of milk and 28.65 pounds of butter fat per cow. Of the 950 cows tested in the association, 85 were dry, 107 produced less than 40 pounds of fat and 15 were sold for beef. The other 59 cows made the honor roll requirements.

A Jersey cow belonging to Rice led the association in individual production, giving 1,659 pounds of milk and 82.9 pounds of butter fat. Sunset Hills Farms had 9 cows on the honor roll; C. T. Rice, Wheeler and Crippen and Kenilworth farms, 7 each; O. K. Miller, 4; J. B. Dowden, Jenkin and Wilson, T. B. Mason and Kidwell brothers, 3 each; A. C. Storm, Wallace Carper and B. F. Salisbury, 2 each, and J. A. Wheeler, A. M. Schuerman, Joseph L. Bristow and Mrs. S. Ulfelder, 1 each.

The Fortnightly Club at Herndon appointed a committee, consisting of Mrs. Russell A. Lynn, librarian; Mrs. George Ramsey Bready, Mrs. Arthur H. Buell, Mrs. George F. Buell and Miss Elizabeth Leonhardt, to take charge of the library. The grounds committee consists of Mrs. Albert Bates and Mrs. A. H. Buell. Mrs. Benjamin F. McGuire is chairman of the ways and means committee and was instructed to choose her own assistants.

The Woman's Club at Falls Church will meet tomorrow with Mrs. Fred Jones as hostess. The reports of the delegates to the State federation convention will be given at this time.

The sixteenth anniversary of 'the founding of the Herndon Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, No. 55, was celebrated in the Masonic Hall at Herndon. A large number of persons from Vienna, Clarendon and Potomac, Va., assisted the local members in their celebration.

The newly elected officers initiated three candidates into the chapter. They were Mrs. Lois G. Hutchison, Mrs. Mildred Cooper Kidwell and Mrs. Anna Crippin. Mrs. Mary M. North, of Washington, an honorary member of the Herndon Chapter, presented a large American flag and a gavel made from a piece of the door of the first Capitol Building in Washington. Addresses were made by E. E. Corden and Mrs. Corden, of Clarendon; Mrs. Burke and Mrs. Herbert, of Potomac, Va.; W. J. Phillips, of Richmond, and Dr. Charles F. Russell, of Herndon.

Following the business meeting and initiation refreshments were served, including a large birthday cake, decorated with sixteen candles.

Mayor Brown Loses Fight for Reelection

Special to The Washington Post.

Bedford, Va., June 11.—One of the most strongly contested municipal elections held in Bedford for some years took place Tuesday when J. Callaway Brown was replaced by J. W. Gillespie as mayor, and but two of the present council members were elected. A large vote was polled.

Newly elected council members are J. Mott Lindsay and George P. Parker, incumbents; Frank Johnson, W. G. Ramsey, A. J. Carper, A. J. Maupin, J. B. Bernard and L. D. Johnson.

Wife of W. C. Gloth Will Lose Alimony

Attorney Will Not Have to Pay $300 Monthly Nor $5,000 Back Money.

Commonwealth Attorney William C. Gloth, of Arlington County, Va., will not have to pay his wife $300 a month alimony nor the $5,000 back payments due, under a ruling handed down yesterday by the Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia, which reversed the decision of the circuit court.

Mr. Gloth paid the alimony for many months, but stopped after his wife shot him in March, 1928. Mrs. Gloth was sentenced to jail for the shooting, but was pardoned by the governor after serving less than a year.

John S. Barbour, of Fairfax, represented Mr. Gloth in handling the appeal of the decision rendered by the circuit court before the supreme court last January.

HIGH SCHOOL CLASS HOLDS GRADUATION

69 Winchester Pupils Hear Speech by Clergyman From Baltimore.

CAPITAL YOUTH HONORED

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., June 12.—A class of 69 received graduation certificates tonight at Handley High School, hearing an address by the Rev. Dr. C. E. McAllister, rector of St. Michael and All Angels' Episcopal Church, Baltimore. Exercises in the main auditorium of the Handley High School building were presided over by Garland R. Quarles, principal, who presented the class. Diplomas were presented by H. S. Duffey, superintendent.

The speaker was introduced by John M. Steck, chairman of the city school board of trustees. In the absence of Miss Mary Frances Ritter, seriously ill of ivy poisoning, the valedictory was read by Miss Ann Tucker McGuire. The salutatory was given by Edward Koons, son of John C. Koons, Washington, D. C.

The Handley Orchestra played, and the Handley Girls Glee Club sang.

ZONE APPEAL BOARD HELD UNABLE TO ACT

Can Not Rescind Permit Once Granted, Arlington Law Said to Provide.

GROUP MEETS THURSDAY

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

A study of the Arlington County zoning ordinance, it was revealed yesterday, shows that the zoning appeal board recently appointed by Judge Walter T. McCarthy, of the Circuit Court, does not have the authority to rescind a permit which already has been granted by the county board of supervisors prior to its creation.

The ordinance does give the zoning appeal board authority, it is pointed out, to reverse a decision of the administrative officer to the county board of supervisors.

As explained by members of the board, the procedure in securing a permit for the erection of a building now is through the office of the administrative officer, since the zoning of the county and the adoption of the zoning ordinance. When persons are not satisfied with the decisions of this officer they then have the right of an appeal before the zoning appeal board.

The board will hold its next meeting at the courthouse Thursday night, June 19, at 8 o'clock.

Attacking the holding of Howard L. Brewster, Capt. Crandal Mackey, who is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress from the Eighth Congressional District, in a statement given out yesterday declared the taxpayers of Arlington County can not understand why Brewster is being held in the county jail for a Federal offense at the expense of the taxpayers of the State of Virginia.

"Neither the Federal authorities, the Department of Justice agents nor the District of Columbia police want him. All of these have publicly stated that Brewster knows nothing whatever of the Mary Baker crime and has shown under questioning by his officers in the Army and by the Washington police and Department of Justice agents that he is a fakir, using his claims as having murdered the girl as a means of getting out of the Army by dishonorable discharge or in some other way. Not only have Brewster's statements been shown to be inconsistent and contradictory to known facts, but in taking the authorities over the ground where the important facts of the tragedy are known to have taken place he has shown ignorance of the territory.

"Amos C. Crounse, as former president of the Arlington County Bar Association and an officer of the court, an attorney in good standing, had a right to represent Brewster without being questioned as how he came to represent him."

Mrs. Mackey, of Cherrydale, was elected president of the auxiliary of the Arlington-Fairfax Counties Volunteer Firemen's Association at the meeting held last night in the Clarendon Firehouse. Other officers are: Mrs. R. E. Kendrick, of Falls Church, first vice president; Mrs. Julian Tapp, of Arlington, second vice president, and Mrs. Sara Elizabeth Carl, of Lyon Village, secretary-treasurer.

The auxiliary announces that it will hold a special meeting at the Clarendon Firehouse Thursday, June 19, for the purpose of arranging plans to assist the Firemen's Association at its annual convention and jubilee August 11 to 16, inclusive.

Following a new policy, the Arlington Rotary Club at its meeting held yesterday at the Washington Golf and Country Club had as its speaker one of its local members, M. E. Church, of Falls Church, a resident of the county for more than 50 years. Mr. Church in an interesting talk spoke of his many experiences in the early days when Arlington County was farmland and during its rapid development in the last 25 years.

A. F. Thelander was chosen as the club's representative to attend the International Rotary convention which meets in Chicago June 23 to 27, inclusive.

Funeral services for William M. Ricker, 25 years old, who died at Georgetown Hospital Wednesday afternoon, will be conducted from the home of his parents, 106 Pine street, Clarendon, tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock by the Rev. George H. Fielding, pastor of the Clarendon Methodist Church. Burial will be in Oakhill Cemetery at Fredericksburg.

Besides his parents he is survived by three sisters, Mrs. George Earickson, Miss Elinor Ricker and Miss Jane Ricker, and two brothers, Clifford Ricker and Edward Ricker.

Columbia Lodge, No. 285, A. F. and A. M., will go to Lancaster, Pa., tomorrow afternoon, where they will be the guests of Mount Joy Lodge at a special meeting to be held in the evening.

Arrangements have been completed for the trip to be made in special buses leaving from Peace Monument tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. It is understood that more than 75 members have planned to make the trip.

Mrs. Julian S. Tapp was reelected president of the ladies' auxiliary to the Arlington Fire Department at tis annual meting held last night in the firemen's new hall. Other officers are: Mrs. Elinor Scheffel, vice president; Mrs. J. E. Banford, secretary; Mrs. Rufus Trice, treasurer, and Mrs. Elinor Bell, corresponding secretary.

The newly elected officers will be installed at the July meeting. Committee in charge of the arrangements for intallation are Mrs. H. L. Wilson, Mrs. Carl Scheffel and Mrs. Emma Blackmer. The auditing committee consists of Mrs. George Cook and Mrs. John A. Dawkins.

The list of honor students at the Washington-Lee High School, by grades, as given out yesterday by the principal, S. P. Vandersllce, include the following: Ninth grade, Haddy Jones, Frank Holford, Norman Sims, Harriet Linger, Virginia Johnston, Johnston, James Coe, Henry Field, Carl Stevens, Russell Stevens, Alice Crawford, Ada Jones, Grace Ladson and Virginia Palmer.

The county board of supervisors holds it semimonthly meeting tomorrow morning at the courthouse at 10 o'clock.

The Thomas Nelson Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, meeting last night at the home of Mrs. H. W. Beattie, Strickler avenue, atClarendon, completed its plans for celebrating its second birthday with a picnic at Hains Point tomorrwonight.

Hooded Men Visit Labor Chautauqua

Supposed Klan Members Stage Demonstration at Danville, Va.

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., June 12.—Ten automobile loads of robed and hooded men, supposedly members of the Ku Klux Klan, Tuesday night staged a demonstration at the fair grounds where a labor chautauqua was being held under the auspices of the United Textile Workers of America. The group entered the grounds, circled the 3,000 spectators and after a few minutes quietly departed.

The visit was without incident, but recalls a recent incident in which labor leaders in the textile unionization movement here spiked rumors that the Ku Klux Klan intended ousting the union from quarters owned and used by the hooded organization as their headquarters.

Francis J. Gorman, vice president of the United Textile Workers of America, stated that the union's dealings with person from whom the hall was rented were friendly.

CONTEMPT CHARGE PUTS ALLEN IN JAIL

Former Policeman Calls Gloth "Polecat" in Court at Arlington.

BAKER CASE AFTERMATH

Robert J. Allen former Washington policeman must spend the next ten days in Arlington County Jail for calling Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth a "big fat polecat" and "liar."

Allen's jail sentence for contempt, which was imposed yesterday in Arlington Courthouse by Judge Bryan Gordon, climaxed the attempt of the former policeman to inject himself into the investigation of the Mary Baker murder case.

The former policeman, who held the spotlight during the sensational McPherson investigation, was held in contempt the first time Wednesday when he attempted to secure a hearing for Howard L. Brewster, who is being held in the jail for the murder of Mary Baker. Brewster had rejected Allen's offer of assistance and during the court procedure the former policeman is said to have called Mr. Gloth a "liar." The court imposed a fine of $10 at that time.

Yesterday the policeman was arrested for operating his automobile on District tags while a resident of Virginia. Allen said that the reason why he had not obtained Virginia tags for his car was because he had not decided whether he would remain a resident of Virginia.

When he had completed his excuse, Mr. Gloth said: "Are you through?"

Allen, turning to the Commonwealth's attorney, then said: "Don't talk to me, big, fat polecat."

Judge Gordon then held Allen in contempt and sentenced him to five days in jail.

"It's worth it," the former policeman declared when he heard the sentence.

Judge Gordon then decided to impose an additional sentence of five days on Allen. The judge said that he would have increased it more, but could not do so under the Virginia code. He, however, imposed a fine of $20 in addition to the ten-day jail sentence.

Allen was also fined $10 for not having Virginia tags.

The former policeman had a number of magazines under his arms when he appeared in court, and, fearing that Allen may have sought to be placed in jail so he could talk with Brewster, Sheriff Howard B. Fields had him incarcerated in the women's wing, far removed from the tier of cells where Brewster is confined.

Hearings Started On Rail Crossing

Cumberland Commission Holds Open Meeting on Proposal.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., June 12.—City crossing commission held its first public hearing yesterday. Chairman Thomas B. Finan explained that the State Roads Commission is now in a position to act, the City of Cumberland had authority and the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad is ready to participate. Other commissioners present were Ferman G. Pugh, Tasker G. Lowndes, Henry Shriver, William J. Morley and Charles G. Holzshu. District Engineer R. Mather and W. W. Gwathmey, assistant of the engineering department of the B. & O., were present.

F. Brooke Whiting, attorney for property owners on Union street, protested an overhead bridge approach, while Walter C. Capper, attorney for the Thompson Motor Co., protested the closing of Union street, which one of the plans calls for. John S. McCauley, president of the Cumberland Dry Goods Co., and John G. Lynn, president of the Kenneweg Co., opposed the closing of streets such as Baltimore, Union, Harrison and George.

Former State Senator David A. Robb expressed regret that an attorney had not been named to the commission, as any crossing plan would be bound to meet with the objection that property would be damaged. He thought a traffic expert might offer some solution. The hearings will continue for several days.

Confession Announced In Five Store Robberies

Clarksburg, W. Va., June 12.—Doddridge County officers today said a full confession to five store robberies in three counties of this section had been made by Wilfred Richards, 25, just brought to jail from New Salem, Pa., where he said he took part in another store robbery. He implicated others.

Thousands of dollars worth of loot was hauled
